1,000,000 May Strike.
Wind, Weather, Heat and Wheat.

Useful Newspaper Work.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE REAL and unpleasant news, as the week ends, is that one million men may go on strike in the steel and textile industries. The President will seek next week to prevent disastrous strike wars and keep business going, now that it has started.

Unfortunately, workers show a disposition to ignore the orders and advice of labor leaders, and the President can deal only with the leaders. He cannot come directly in contact with the mass of workers, although he can reach them with his voice and through printed appeals.

The strike is the big problem now. If, following more than four years without work, men decide that they won't take work when they can get it, or stay on a job when they have it, or let other men take it, restoration of prosperity will be difficult.

WATCHING THE price of wheat go up—December wheat yesterday sold at one dollar and seven cents and a half a bushel—farmers wish the government had let them plant all the wheat they wanted to plant, instead of paying them a bonus to plant less.

Until government can control weather, wind, rain and heat, as it controls farmers, it should be cautious about artificially and arbitrarily reducing crop wealth that the farms would produce, if left to themselves.

THE RUSSIAN Ambassador, whose instructions from Stalin are the same as those given to Russia's Ambassador to Japan: "Listen to everything, observe everything, say as little as possible," believes in seeing for himself and is about to make a trip of exploration and observation on the West coast, visiting Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

He might take the recently appointed, highly intelligent young Japanese ambassador with him on that trip across the United States, and up and down along the Pacific Coast. After such a trip, the Russian ambassador would probably say to the Japanese ambassador:

"Whatever difficulties we may have with each other, it is evidently wise to let this American country alone."

AN IMITATION of Hitler's Nazi party develops in Poland, where sympathy for Germany has been increasing in spite of large sums that France has contributed to build up an independent Polish nation. Poland's Nazi party, the "Grey Shirts" (every new dictatorial party, it seems, must have some kind of a shirt) includes in its program a war against Jews.

The official Polish Gazette, deploring the rise of a new anti-semitic party, warns Poland that "extermination of the Jews will not cure economic ills."

"Extermination" or rather driving out Poland's Jewish citizens, will go far toward destroying Polish business, a poor way to "cure economic ills," as the Spaniards discovered long ago. The official Polish Gazette "hopes that Poland will outlive attacks upon Jews, as it has outlived other stupid and dangerous political creeds."

THE POLISH "Grey Shirts," held responsible for "anti-Jewish outbreaks all over Poland," have established a daily newspaper, the Sztafeta, that prints daily violent anti-Semitic propaganda. Students, and young girls especially, are wearers of the light grey shirts, which, in place of the Nazi swastika, are decorated with an embroidered small sword.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT sent a telegram of congratulation to Arthur S. Draper, at the conclusion of his first year as editor of the Literary Digest. All working newspapermen are interested in Mr. Draper's success, because it confirms the theory that the best possible foundation for any branch of the publishing business is a thorough training in newspaper work.

Mr. Draper, before entering upon magazine editorship, had been a reporter, city editor, foreign correspondent, and had learned what things interest human beings and how to present them.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST is another "practical newspaperman" who proves that in building newspapers you learn to build other things. When he bought the Cosmopolitan Magazine, a well known magazine editor remarked:

"Mr. Hearst has done well with daily newspapers, but he will find himself out of his depth in the magazine field."

That magazine editor, who, by the way, was soon afterwards out of the magazine business, because he could not stay in it, saw the circulation of the Cosmopolitan, which sold two hundred and fifty thousand copies at fifteen cents a copy before Mr. Hearst bought it, rise rapidly. It sells more than a million and a half copies monthly now at twenty-five cents a copy.

FINDING MAGAZINES interesting, Mr. Hearst has accumulated about a dozen others, all successful, including Good Housekeeping, which also sells more than a million and a half copies monthly at twenty-five cents. To tell exactly how much money it makes, in this depression, might hurt the feelings of deservin' publishers.

THE PHILIPPINES think they want separation from the United States. They demand it, and this government seems inclined to give it to them, after having freed them from Spanish dominion, and, to some exent,

Coyne Aide on Stand Denies Mystery Calls

STEEL DISPUTE PUT UP TO ROOSEVELT

COYNE AIDE DENIES VOTE STEAL PLOT

Senator and Others Again May Ask Acquittal Order

Frank J. O'Halloran, Republican district chairman in the Ninth District of the Ninth Ward, took the stand in Federal Court today and denied that he consipred to steal votes at the 1932 general election.

The effect of O'Halloran's testimony was that he remained in the polling place from 7:30 p. m., election night, to next 4 a. m., that he made no mysterious telephone calls, that he sent no mysterious messages,

O'Halloran was the fifth of the seven defendants to take the stand. Previous defendants who testified in their own behalf were State Senator James J. Coyne, who government prosecutors conetnd was the ringleader of the conspiracy; his brother, Tom Coyne; Walter Butler, Fourth Ward district chairman; Martin Mullen, Tenth Ward district chairman.

2 MORE TO TESTIFY

The other two defendants, Assemblyman P. J. Maloney and Pat O'Malley, Coyne leader in the Strip, are expected to testify later.

Another motion for a directed verdict of acquittal probably will be made for O'Halloran, and the rest of the defendants.

Before O'Halloran took the stand two other witnesses supported his alibi. They were John Shaughnessy, clerk of the election board in the Ninth District of his ward, and John Kennedy, a city employe who was a watcher that election day.

POLICE PROBERS SET FOR ACTION

Political influence in the police bureau will be the first subject of inquiry by the Police Research Commission, which is scheduled to hold its first public hearing today.

The commission was created by City Council and is headed by Dr. Elmer D. Graper, University of Pittsburgh professor. The hearing today is scheduled to open at 2 p. m. in the City Council chamber.

Dr. Graper said the commission probably will take testimony on vice conditions later in its inquiry. He said:

"The primary object of the commission is to determine whether it is possible to have a non-political police department and to what extent there has been political interference with the police."

Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall and Ralph E. Smith, former Public Safety Director, have been asked to appear at the hearing today. Mayor McNair has been asked to send a representative.

The Rev. R. E. Snodgrass, North Side minister, who caused state police to raid North Side resorts several months ago, other ministers, social workers and civic leaders are expected to be heard.

The commission will make recommendations to Council after completing hearings.

Heat Wave Grips City, 1 Dead

Pittsburghers continued today to swelter under a relentless summer sun as the temperature threatened to exceed yesterday's peak of 90 degrees.

The first fatality of the heat wave here was recorded yesterday when Mary Jane Davis, 89, of 7145 Harrison avenue, Swissvale, collapsed in her home and died.

And seeking relief from the blistering rays, five nature-loving men nudists basked unblushingly yesterday in a skiff floating peacefully on the Monongahela River near Central Police Station.

NUDISTS FLEE

Sensing police interference, the quintet rowed to shore, donned clothing and scampered away.

During the five hours between 6 a. m. and 11 a. m. today the temperature had jumped 10 degrees, from 71 to 81. Weather Bureau officials declared no immediate relief was in sight and predicted that the peak today would be above yesterday's high of 90 and might approach the June 2 record of 95 degrees, established in 1895.

Prayers for Rain Unheeded As Mercury Soars in West

CHICAGO, June 2.—(INS.)—Prayers of sweltering millions in the parched Central States went unheeded today with drought and record-breaking heat spreading further destruction among farm crops of the Middle West.

Unless general rains fall over the sun-baked plains states within two weeks, a food shortage is imminent, agricultural experts admitted. Dr. W. C. Coffey, federal farm relief director for the Northwest, declared:

"The truth is the United States is threatened with a food shortage should the drought remain unbroken for another two weeks."

Snowstorms ushered in the month of June in Montana, Washington and Idaho.

A broiling sun that was blamed for 10 deaths here in 24 hours blazed down out of virtually cloudless skies. Crops that have thus far withstood the ravages of the long-continued drought were being parched in the fields.

Faces Tombstone Sale Fraud Charge

Four charges of obtaining money under false pretense were placed against Winson Taylor, 53, of Ford City, today following his arrest on a charge of selling grave stones which were not delivered.

County Detectives John T. Burke and John Duderstadt arrested Taylor on complaints from four families.

The detectives said Taylor made a practice of calling on recently bereaved families, collecting from $5 to $50.

LONDON, June 2.—(INS.)—Residents of Muzzaffarpur, a city of nearly 50,000 people in the province of Bihar, India, were thrown into a panic early today by a severe earthquake shock, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph. No casualties were reported. Muzzaffarpur was the scene of a disastrous earthquake a few weeks ago.

QUINTUPLETS IMPERILED BY FIRE

Doctor Optimistic, Sees 'Good Chance' For 5 Infants

By CHARLES E. BLAKE
International News Service.

CALLENDER, Ontario, June 2.—Fire last night threatened the lives of the quintuplet daughters of Mrs. Alzire Legros Dionne, who were 122 hours old at 6 a. m. today.

The threatened fire was caused by an overheated flue in the new stove that was placed in the barren living room of the Dionne family.

The stove was donated by neighbors when an unexpected cold spell struck the northern wilderness and made it almost impossible to keep the five young daughters warm in their incubator and large basket.

FIVE FEET FROM FIRE

Mrs. Dionne, the 25-year-old mother, and her five newly born quintuplets were in their bedroom less than five feet from the roaring fire.

Dr. A. R. Dafoe predicted that the pretty young mother would be able to leave her bed within a week or 10 days.

Nurse Yvonne Leroux reported this morning that the children had enjoyed almost a perfect night. It was the first night in 92 hours that the nurse was not forced to feed the youngest baby, Marie, drops of Jamaica rum to stimulate heart action.

SHOW RAPID GAINS

All of the children were fed regularly throughout the night at two-hour intervals.

Since the hectic hours of Thursday night when the cold weather threatened the lives of the children and complications set in, the children have all shown rapid gains.

ALLIES SCORNED BY MUSSOLINI

ROME, June 2.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini told 10,000 war volunteers today that Italy will fight her next war for herself alone, and not on behalf of any other nations pretending to be her allies. Il Duce declared:

"Italy's volunteers, if war is necessary, will shed their blood only for Italy. Experience has shown them that it does not pay to help by land and sea the people who pretend to be our allies."

Mussolini was interpreted as referring to France and her World War ally, Serbia, now part of Jugo-Slavia. France, he has said, did not give Italy the colonial territory promised in the London treaty of 1915 following which Italy eutered the war.

The volunteers gave the Premier a tremendous affirmative shout when he asked them whether they were ready to march as in 1914 and 1915. They shouted "Yes" again when he asked:

"Do you feel that tomorrow, if it is necessary to fight, that victory will embrace our flag"

'Trial of Mary Dugan' Banned in Germany

No reason was assigned, except that the play was considered "inappropriate."

UNION CALLS FOR AID OF PRESIDENT

Tighe Urges Executive Action to Obtain 'Redress' for Labor

Developments today in the capital-labor dispute in the steel industry included:

1—A statement by M. F. Tighe, steel union chief, placing upon President Roosevelt responsibility for the outcome of threats of a nation-wide holiday.

2—Gen. Johnson's declaration of his belief the issues will be settled and a strike averted through administration aid.

3—Mr. Roosevelt, in Massachusetts, studies reports from Washington, apparently confident of effecting peaceful end of the controversy.

Responsibility for the calling or averting of a nation-wide steel strike was laid directly on the doorsteps of President Roosevelt and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson in a statement issued today by M. F. Tighe, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

The statement, which had the formal approval of the American Federation of Labor, according to Tighe, flayed the government as "having failed in its trust to organized labor" by failing to enforce the collective bargaining provisions of the National Recovery Act. It charged:

"Since the day when the iron and steel code was inaugurated organized labor has bitterly suffered at the hands of the employers and has received no tangible redress."

ROOSEVELT ACTION

After declaring the workers had remained loyal to the government, but that their patience was now exhausted, the statement concluded:

"Only immediate and forceful action on the part of the President will put into effect the long-awaited enforcement of the workers' rights to bargain collectively through the representatives of their choosing.

"We look to the President for prompt and unqualified enforcement of the law. Gen. Johnson has given us assurance of his desire to co-operate in every way to bring about such enforcement.

"If the government does not put this enforcement into effect within a very short time, the responsibility for any consequence will rest entirely upon those who have deliberately vio-

DEBT DEFAULT FORECAST

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—An all-around default on the foreign debt payments due the United States on June 15 appeared probable today in the wake of President Roosevelt's firm message to Congress asserting the American people expect these debts to be paid.

Only little Finland, whose total obligation amounts to $8,726,645, is expected to meet its current installment of $166,538.

As for the others, Great Britain, who owes $4,636,000,000 and is due to pay $85,670,000; France, who owes $3,960,000,000 and is due to pay $59,000,000; Italy, Belgium, Poland, et al., nothing is expected—unless Britain has a last-minute change of heart.

It is understood, however, that Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, already has been instructed by his government to advise the United States of Britain's unwillingness to make full payment, and her unwillingness to make a token payment unless Mr. Roosevelt will again say he does not consider such a procedure to constitute default within the meaning of the Johnson act.

This act prohibits the floating of securities from any defaulting country in the American investment field. Mr. Roosevelt is in no position to make the statement.

Lloyd George Fights Blaze Near Home

CHURT, Surrey, England, June 2.—(AP.)—David Lloyd George, war-time prime minister of Great Britain, fought, despite his 71 years, today against a great heath fire which broke out a few hundred yards from his country home. A detachment of 400 soldiers was rushed to assist in the battle.

'Gag' Rule Marks Row in Congress As Recess Nears

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Democratic leaders of the House, armed with almost unprecedented authority, today planned to rule that body with an iron hand if necessary in their drive toward adjournment.

Having smashed a Republican filibuster by obtaining adoption of a special rule giving them the right to dictate the program, leaders prepared to forestall all anti-administration thrusts.

Although the small Republican minority was virtually powerless, a fight was planned on the "gag" rule. Republican leaders contended the House had reverted to the "czardom" of Cannon days.

Speaker Rainey and Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, majority leader, insisted they invoked the special rule only to break up a Republican filibuster and prevent future threats.

The cause of the filibuster, which began on Thursday, was uncertain. Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, insisted it did not begin until Speaker Rainey refused to recognize a point of no quorum.

This explanation was scoffed at by both Rainey and Byrns, who said the filibuster had been in progress for hours.

Report that Republicans were seeking to kill off the Wagner bill, housing bill and other administration measures were denied by leaders.

Opponents of the Democratic plan charged the special rule was sought partially to block the McLeod 100 per cent bank payoff bill and other measures which bipartisan groups were pressing.

The bitter fight between Republicans and Democrats culminated yesterday in a fight in the House between Representatives Deen (Dem.), of Georgia, and Eltse (Rep.), of California. While the blows struck were harmless, the conflict caused apprehension among older members.

R. R. YARD HOME OF PRESIDENT

WORCESTER, Mass., June 2.—(AP.)—In his railroad yard home at Worcester, President Roosevelt looked over reports from the capital today and then prepared a talk for the private school of Groton to be delivered tonight.

Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, the President relaxed in complete comfort last night in this odd White House headquarters. It is perhaps the first time in history that the President has kept station for two days in a railroad yard.

So far as public affairs are concerned, the President is keeping in constant touch with Washington by a specially attached telephone on his car, but there is no indication that he is concerned over conditions at the capital.

Shiny Roadster Gift For John Roosevelt

WORCESTER, Mass., June 2.—(INS.)—A glittering new roadster was the graduation present to John Roosevelt from his father and mother, the President's wife revealed today.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she did not think John had any very definite ambitions, but said his attendance next year at Harvard, where he plans to major in history and government, is a certainty.

Johnson Hopes to Avert Steel, Cotton Strikes

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—NRA chiefs held strong hope today that threatened strikes in the cotton textile and steel industries would be averted.

Despite a last-minute hitch that deadlocked employers and union leaders in the textile controversy, Hugh S. Johnson expressed the opinion that points at issue could be ironed out.

The recovery chief also saw prospects—possibly by means of a special labor board—of preventing the capital-labor struggle that threatens to rend the steel industry by the middle of the month.

Although the textile strike, calling out more than 300,000 workers, has been set for Monday, Johnson was hopeful of peace.

The threat of industrial war in steel simmered today as leaders of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers retired to their homes to study the situation.

Johnson, talking to reporters yesterday, touched on the major grievance of the union, that steelmasters have violated the NRA guarantee of free collective bargaining.

He said that a special labor board set up in a settlement of the threatened automobile strike was working out and that it would "undoubtedly bring solution" of the steel impasse.

COYNE DEFENSE MAY RENEW DIRECTED ACQUITTAL PLEA

'MYSTERY CALLS' DENIED BY G. O. P. OFFICIAL AT VOTE TRIAL

of the election board gave similar testimony for O'Halloran.

They testified that at no time did O'Halloran ask them to cheat.

CHARACTER WITNESSES

One of the character witnesses who testified for O'Halloran and Maloney today was John Friel, legislative candidate, who was defeated by Maloney in the disputed election.

Other character witnesses called for O'Halloran were M. Noble aMtthews, former superintendent of police, one-time police magistrate and also a former member of the County Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes; Dr. Walton W. Martin, a Bloomfield physician; Jerry T. O'Shea, Penn avenue funeral director; Ben J. Adrian, Edward Dischner, Michael W. McGinnis and Edward P. Loughrey, all residents of the Penn avenue district.

With O'Halloran's defense completed, all that remains of the defense case is completed of Maloney's and Pat O'Malley's answers to the charges.

Government prosecutors, anticipating defense movements, have obtained Criminal Court records of prosecutions involving O'Malley in two previous trials, Tom Coyne in one and Walter Butler in another.

CHARGES DENIED

The Coyne trial was that of the Three Toms—Dolan, Goslin and Coyne. The first two are serving three-months sentences as proprietors of the Monaca Club gambling room. Coyne is appealing a similar sentence.

Martin Mullen, the Republican chairman of the Tenth Ward's Fourth District, who testified yesterday, was the fourth of the defendants to take the stand, the two Coynes and Butler having testified previously.

Mullen denied charges brought out by James Bailey, the discharged city assessor and government star witness. He testified that O'Malley did not come to him with any proposition to commit fraud at the Tenth Ward polling place. He admitted that O'Malley had driven up to his home election night, but simply to ask for the local returns, which were late.

A New Transplanting Advocate By QUIN HALL

Question and Answer Record of Coyne Trial

Attorney Charles J. Margiotti made his first appearance since he withdrew early in the week when John J. Verona and John Fugassi were given directed verdicts. It was to open the defense of Frank J. O'Halloran and P. J. Maloney. Margiotti called Robert J. Walsh, judge of elections of the Ninth District, Ninth Ward, to the stand.

Q.—Did you know all the members of the board?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And the watchers?

A.Yes.

Q.—Could you name them?

A.—On the board were Mrs. Owen, Mrs. O'Donnell, John Shaughnessy and Paul O'Donnell.

Q.—And the watchers?

A.—I don't remember all, but there was John Kennedy, Al Morgan and Joe Rodgers.

Q.—Did you see Frank O'Halloran during election day?

A.—Yes, off and on.

Q.—During the night?

A.—Yes, he came in the polling place about 7:30.

Q.—How do you set the time?

A.—He ordered a lunch for the members of the board. He was the district chairman.

Q.—How long did you stay in the place?

A.—We counted until about four. O'Halloran remained in the place until then.

Q.—Is it a public place?

A.—Yes, an engine house.

Q.—Did O'Halloran receive any phone calls that you know of?

A.—No.

Q.—Did O'Halloran leave between 7:30 and four?

A.—No.

Q.—Did at anytime Mr. O'Halloran ask you to engage in any election frauds?

Government counsel objected but was overruled.

A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did any one of these defendants ever ask you to engage in election frauds?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—I would like to call the attention of the jury at this time to the fact that the Ninth District, Ninth Ward, has not been involved in election frauds. At least, its ballot box is not before the court, is it?

Prosecutor James Marsh answered:

"It's not here. We haven't gone into it."

Q.—By the time Mr. O'Halloran left, Mr. Walsh, had you finished the count?

A.—Not all.

Prosecutor Louis E. Graham cross-examined:

Q.—What time did P. J. Maloney come into the polls?

A.—Right after the polls closed.

Q.—Did he come back again that night?

A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Did you see Mr. Savage around the polls?

A.—Yes, he was in and out.

Q.—Did you see him conversing, at any time, with Fire Chief Conley, Mr. O'Halloran or Mr. Maloney?

A.—I don't know. I cannot remember seeing them talking.

Q.—Did you see Mr. Conley at the polls?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—Do you know Mr. Metzler?

A.—Slightly.

Q.—Did you see him?

A.—Once.

Q.—Who is John Kennedy?

A.—A building inspector.

Q.—After you finished the count, what did you do?

A.—I took the boxes to Squire Halloran's office and then went to Mr. Kennedy's house.

Q.—Where is that?

A.—Right back of mine.

Margiotti called Paul O'Donnell, who said he was a steamfitter, and clerk of elections in the Ninth District, Ninth Ward.

Q.—Do you know where the Regal restaurant is?

A.—Yes.

Q.—How far from the polling place?

A.—About two and a half blocks.

Q.—Where does Frank O'Halloran live in relation to polls and the Regal restaurant?

A.—He lives between them, about a block from the restaurant.

Q.—Do you know if Mr. O'Halloran had a watchers' certificate?

A.—Yes. He was challenged Election Day.

O'Donnell then told essentially the same story as Walsh. Two other members of the board, Mrs. Ann Owens, and Mrs. Nellie O'Donnell, followed. Their testimony, too, was along the same lines.

Previously, Martin Mullen, slight and mild, his hair tinged with grey, had been called to the stand. He told, under questioning by Attorney Mead J. Mulvihill, that he was the father of nine, widowed just last week. He didn't mention that an infant child had died a month or so ago.

He said he was district chairman of the Fourth District, Tenth Ward.

Under questioning, he explained that Pat O'Malley drove up in front of his house that election night, November 8, 1932, and they exchanged greetings. O'Malley did not get out of the car. They had been friends for many years, he said, and O'Malley often visited him.

Q.—Was Capt. Rogina at your home that night?

A.—I didn't see him all that day or night.

Q.—Was Albert Barry at your home?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—Some one has testified that about 11 o'clock, she (Nell Llewellyn) looked in your window and saw Pat O'Malley telephoning. Was O'Malley in your house that night?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—What is the distance from the telephone to the doorway?

Consulting a slip of measurement, Mullen answered:

"Eight feet, six inches."

Q.—Can the phone reach the hall?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you communicate with any of the defendants on election day or night?

A.—No, sir. The only call I made that night was to James Fullen with the election returns.

Prosecutor Louis E. Graham cross-examined:

Q.—Do you know the members of the election board of the Fourth District, Tenth Ward?

A.—Yes, all of them.

Q.—Who is closest to you?

A.—Well, they're all my friends, at least I thought they were.

Q.—How about Nell Llewellyn?

A.—We're friendly.

Q.—Who is closest?

A.—Maybe Michael Wallace.

Q.—Did you speak to Nell Llewellyn that night when you were in the polling place?

A.—No.

Q.—What did you do there?

A.—I got the returns, the Presidential returns.

Q.—What did you do with them?

A.—I went outside, and the first one I gave them to was the Democratic chairman.

Q.—When did you give them to James Fullen?

A.—After 12 o'clock.

Q.—You held them out for three hours before giving them to him?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Who left the polling place first, you or James Bailey?

A.—Bailey.

Q.—Did you go out before Timothy Bailey?

A.—I don't recall, but I don't think so.

Q.—How long was it before you followed Bailey out?

A.—It may have been 10 minutes or more.

Q.—Was Bailey in the yard?

A.—Maybe.

Q.—Why don't you know, you noticed him when he went out?

A.—Why should I notice him? We hadn't spoken for years.

Q.—Then you went home?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And O'Malley drove up?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Albert Barry come to your home that night?

A.—No.

Q.—Did Capt. Rogina?

A.—No.

Prosecutor Graham interpolated at this time a copy of the grand jury testimony which he said Mullen had made, and read questions and answers to the jury.

They concerned whether or not Barry and Ragino had been at Mullen's house. Judge Schoonmaker interrupted Graham, asserting the testimony Mullen gave here and before the grand jury were the same.

REALTY OFFICE SAFES ROBBED

Two safes in the offices of the Lloyd Realty Company, 6012 Center avenue, were broken into and ransacked during the night, according to a report to East End police. The amount of the loot had not been determined early today.

The cracksmen used a 12-foot ladder to reach the roof of a garage, jumped to the front of the building and gained entrance by breaking a window.

Samuel Middleton, a salesman, of 5711 Rural avenue, discovered the robbery when he opened the office this morning. Desks had also been ransacked, Middleton reported.

JUNE RWD FUND HERE CUT HALF

Alloted only $417,000—a cut of more than 50 per cent—officials of the Relief Works Division in Allegheny County today said RWD projects here may be curtailed before July 1.

The May allotment for the 270 projects now in operation was $837,000, of which there is an unexpended balance of approximately $300,000. About 14,000 men are at work. More than 350 projects are held in abeyance pending action by Congress upon the contemplated federal works program involving $1,322,000,000.

There was no explanation for the decrease in allotment made yesterday by the State Emergency Relief Board in Harrisburg.

JOHNSON PARLEY

Tighe explained the statement was issued to explain the purposes of his visit to Gen. Johnson in Washington early part of this week.

Called to the capital by Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, who sought to avert a threatened steel strike this month, Tighe explained that he had sought to have Johnson put through certain amendments to the steel code.

His petition, transmitted to the President through Johnson, protested modification and signing of the steel code without a public hearing or investigation of labor conditions, Tighe said.

With a split existing among the steel workers, the statement was viewed in some quarters as an attempt to bring together the conservative and liberal factions among the Amalgamated's membership.

THREATS OF LIBERALS

Liberal leaders, who have threatened to call a reopening of their national conveition held here a month ago, have not communicated any petition for a reopening to him, Tighe said.

Earl J. Forbeck, president of the McKeesport lodge, has been quoted as saying that a special convention would be held soon in Pittsburgh.

Throughout the country, meetings of the various lodges of steel workers are being held today and tomorrow, but calling of a convention is not among the topics to be discussed, according toTighe.

CAFE MAN TOLD TO QUIT AIRPORT

The County Commissioners today notified Joseph M. Slater that he had better move out of County Airport restaurant concession by Monday noon—or else.

The Commissioners, with W. D. Mansfield dissenting, recently named Mrs. Ruth Grein as concessionaire, to take effect June 1. Slater's contract expired April 30.

But when Mrs. Grein drove up with food and a new cash register to take possession, Slater refused to move out. Slater said he didn't consider a letter from Director of Parks A. M. Marion as official notification that his contract was terminated. He declared he would fight attempts to oust him.

After writing him that they would remove his equipment after noon Monday and establish Mrs. Grein, the Commissioners turned the matter over to the county law department.

POLICE SHAKEUP BRINGS ACTION IN SHOOTING

3 Suspects Held Over As Bell 'Sits in' At Hearing

Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell, who recently read the "riot act" to city detectives, demanding better enforcement and more arrests, sat in as a spectator in Central Police Court today to observe first results of his orders.

He attended the hearing of three Negro suspects in the shooting of Andrew Hill, Jr., of 5137 Baum boulevard, and the slugging of Otto J. Pfarr, of 546 Osceola street, during an attempted holdup last Saturday night.

Hill, a friend of Bell, had complained to the new director because no arrests had been made in the case. Bell took action and six detectives were assigned to the task of rounding up the trio. They are bootblacks in the County Office Building.

TRIO HELD OVER

They were held for further investigation after a hearing before Magistrate J. W. McGowan.

Two of the suspects, arrested late yesterday at the County Building, were docketed as Lemar Blackmon, 22, of 709 Seal street, and Seymore H. Hardwick, 24, of 613 Chauncey street. A third suspect who fled but was captured later at his home, gave his name as Fred Milner, 23, of 1834 Rose street.

The men were three of a dozen persons arrested by the detectives within six hours after the appointment of Sergt. Samuel E. Wheeler, of the Homicide Squad, as inspector of detectives. Wheeler replaced Louis H. Leff, who was fired.

WHY NO ARRESTS?

Director Bell, calling on Leff Thursday, asked why no arrests had been made in connection with the shooting and attack, it was said. He wanted to know, too, why other robberies were not solved.

Leff was fired several hours before the three suspects were arrested.

The three suspects were arrested after a squad of detectives checked the license numbers of more than 60 automobiles. Persons who witnessed the holdup had only obtained the first three figures of the license in which the alleged bandit trio escaped.

Civil Service To Oust Many City Workers

The Civil Service Commission's campaign to purge the city payroll of illegally appointed city employes is expected to affect scores of workers.

Already five notifications have been sent to employes in the Division of Recreation and 28 more letters of the same kind are going out to employes in the Department of Public Works.

Those included in the ruling are employes who were appointed provisionally and never took the examination which would have made their appointment permanent.

UNDER FIRE

Under civil service rules, a provisionally appointed employe has 90 days during which time he may remain on the payroll. After that time the employe must take a civil service examination or be properly certified as a permanent employe by the head of the department.

The commission has been under fire from Council recently because of refusal to furnish names of persons dismissed from their own department. Council has asked the law department what steps they can take to bring pressure to bear on the commission.

Now the commission takes a step which is expected to result in a large number of employes being removed from the payroll, something that the majority in Council has been fighting to stop.

COMMISSION HEAD SPEAKS

Letters notifying employes that their provisional appointments have never been made permanent, according to records, were sent yesterday to these employes in the Division of Recreation: Vincent C. Harrison, playground inspector; William Flanigan and Steven A. Bodnar, recreation leaders, and George Antic and A. M. Frauenheim, recreation assistants.

Miss Julia Marie Doyle, president of the commission, stated:

"This is the beginning of our investigation of records to clean up all irregularities. Payrolls containing these names cannot be legally certified by the commission so long as they are irregular. Once defects are apparent, the said certification would constitute a misdemeanor on our part."

Employes notified are being given five days to file an answer and will receive a hearing if the facts warrant.

Johnston Denies Politics in Ouster

Back at his desk after a visit to Washington, Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston today denied that politics had been a factor in the dismissal of employes from his department.

Howard J. Neely, former chief clerk in the Bureau of Highways, had charged before Council's investigation on Thursday that Director Johnston had fired him for political reasons.

Violence Breaks Out In New Castle Strike

NEW CASTLE, Pa., June 2.—(INS.)—Two men were badly beaten and others were injured slightly today when workers leaving the Johnson Bronze Company plant were met with a shower of bricks hurled by strike sympathizers. Plate glass windows in the vicinity were broken as resentment flared into open hostilites for the first time since 300 men walked out Monday, demanding recognition of their union, the International Brotherhood of Foundry Employes.

Erie Schools Ban Married Women

ERIE, June 2.—(AP.)—A married woman is married until she is legally divorced through the courts in the eyes of Erie's school board, at least. The directors so decided after studying the question several weeks.

The directors decreed no married woman is to be appointed to any position in the school district. Married women now on the payroll will be retained.

Spanish War Vets To Hold Memorial

FIGHT IN WARD LINKED TO OUSTER

Payroller Puts Skids Under Chairman and Loses Out Himself

By MARK SHIELDS

This is a story of developments, which may or may not have any sequence but they are causing some talk in Republican political circles.

Wednesday night David B. Roberts called the Fifth Ward Republican Committee together in the expectation that it would elect him ward chairman. Instead, it chose Frank Anderson.

Among the votes for Mr. Anderson were those of the Fifteenth District of the ward, the chairman of which is Carl Rubinstein.

Mr. Rubenstein has been for three years an employe of the Pittsburgh Registration Commission.

SANDED THE TRACK

The registration commissioners, Thomas A. Joyce and Jacob Frank, were appointed through the influence of Judge Ralph H. Smith.

David B. Roberts is the chief strength in the Fifth Ward of Judge Smith.

Friday Carl Rubinstein, along with six other employes, was laid off by the Registration Commission. It was explained that the "stagger" system was being operated, that the dismissal of Rubenstein so soon after he had sanded the track for Roberts was mere coincidence, and that the employes were only temporaries, anyhow.

3 YEARS—TEMPORARY!

To which friends of Rubinstein reply that if he hadn't staggered Roberts he probably wouldn't have been staggered himself, and that three years' service should make a man more than a temporary. The word "permanent" in the Registration Commission evidently doesn't refer to employment.

Republican City Chairman William J. Soost has notified ward committees to hold their chairmanship elections the evening of June 7. The Twelth, as well as the Fifth, acted without waiting, a meeting in the former having chosen William A. Means, chairman; Mrs. Margaret Keys, vice chairman; W. J. Miller, secretary, and . . A. Donofrio, treasurer. Michael De Rosa has been chairman in the ward and a contest may be the result of the Means election.

STOCK CONTROL BILL PASSES

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—A "federal policeman with a big, bright badge" was all ready today to go on patrol in Wall street.

That was the way supporters described a provision of the stock market control bill, which passed Congress last night and which President Roosevelt will sign into law.

The provision gives broad investigating power to the new commission which will regulate the exchanges and administer the Securities Act of 1933. Supporters hope it will deter bad practices.

There may be two policemen, in fact. The Senate Banking Committee voted yesterday to continue its authority to investigate exchanges and banks.

Administration officials expressed a hope that provisions in the market bill liberalizing the Securities Act would revive the flow of capital.

Further Plans for Cleaner Pittsburgh

The campaign for a cleaner city urged by Pittsburgh club women, will be pushed ahead rapidly, according to city officials. A committee of city employes and bureau heads working on the plan will be held Monday in the office of Conrad Checco, assistant city solicitor. A general effort is to be made to enforce laws against throwing rubbish in the streets.

Live Wire Kills Man Atop Roof

Gordon Hendricks, 41, a Negro, of 725 Kirkpatrick street, was killed by current while tampering with a high voltage wire on the roof of a building at 2176 Bedford avenue last night, according to police. Hendricks apparently was attempting to "cut in" on the line, police said.

Roosevelt Democrats Spent $12,135 Here

The Roosevelt Democratic Primary Committee spent $12,135, its account filed with the Clerk of Courts shows.

John Duggan, treasurer, listed receipts of the committee in the primary at $12,985.

David L. Lawrence, re-elected Democratic county chairman, was down for $2,400. J. C. Trees gave $1,000. Robert L. Myers, Jr., treasurer of the Earle-for-Governor committee, gave $2,500, and Walter A. Jones and John B. Stevens, $2,000 each.

Expenses of $700 were listed for watchers, overseers and messengers. Seventy-two names appeared as receiving $5 each for watchers' services.

Other candidates certified to the following expenditures:

Edmund F. Erk, nominated for Congress on the Republican ticket in the Thirtieth District, $1,647; John M. Morin, unsuccessful for Congress in the Thirty-second District, $192; Michael J. Muldowney, Republican nominee for Congress in the Thirty-second District, $874.

Legislative expenses were Max J. Spann, Republican nominee in the Fifth District, $442; J. M. O'Rourke, Republican nominee in the Twelfth District, $122; John M. Haverty, Jr., Republican nominee in the Third District, $381, and Herman P. Eberharter, Democratic winner in that district, $310.

Morris Einstein, who took the Republican state senatorial nomination in the Forty-second District, spent $2,121. He had receipts of $1,225.

EMACIATED GIRL, 7, RESCUED FROM CHICKEN COOP PRISON

MOTHER FEARED DAUGHTER'S 'EVIL EYE'

Torn Bodies of Four Orphans Result in Arrest of Aunt

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Cal., June 2.—(AP.)—Terribly emaciated, 7-year-old Mary Ebarguarry was cared for at Santa Ana Hospital today while authorities launched an inquiry into the asserted imprisonment of the child in a chicken pen by her mother.

Robert Sandon, investigator for the Orange County District Attorney's office, said Mrs. Barney Ebarguarry had penned up the child because she believed her daughter had an "evil eye" and was capable of "casting spells" on members of the family, including six other children.

TRACED FOOD

The child was rescued from her prison by Sandon after her plight had been disclosed by Mrs. Thomas Ramos, whose place adjoins the Ebarguarry cottage here. Sandon said:

"Apparently the parents refused her any food except such as is ordinarily fed to chickens, for the poor child seemed almost a skeleton. Her dress was filthy and in tatters and her body and hair showed the effects of long neglect."

Mrs. Ramos told Sandon the disappearance of food from her home for weeks had puzzled her and led to the discovery. She saw her grandson take some bread and run over to the chicken pen, thrusting it through a wire netting to the girl, who ate it ravenously.

BEATEN BY SISTERS

The neighbor began a guarded investigation and upon ascertaining the condition of the child, notified authorities, who said the parents would be kept under surveillance. The investigator added:

"It may be that Mary had been imprisoned for years. Her condition indicated that she has been half starved for a long period of time. We have learned that she was permitted to leave the chicken pen occasionally, but her 'freedom' usually was marked by brutal beatings administered by her brothers and sisters."

SHOW TORN BODIES

HARLAN, Ky., June 2.—(AP.)—Four orphans ranging in ages from 8 to 17 years displayed to county officers yesterday bloody and torn bodies and charged that they had been unmercifully beaten by an aunt. The aunt, Mrs. Lula Maples, 35, of Wallins, was arrested on a charge of assault and battery and placed in county jail.

The children, Lula Perkins, 8; Mallard Ballou, 11; Willard Ballou, 12, and Andrew Ballou, 17, told officers they were beaten "lots of times," but that the most recent beating was administered "because we couldn't finish hoeing a field of corn in three days."

WITH AUNT FOUR YEARS

The warrant for Mrs. Maples was sworn out by Constable John Hensley when Willard, crying and bleeding, came to him and asked for protection.

Andrew told officers their father was killed in a mine accident at Jellico, Tenn., several years ago, and that their mother died in a Tennessee hospital four years ago. They since have lived with their aunt.

MARY PICKFORD PUSHES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

New Move Stops Lips Spreading Rumors Of Reunion

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—(AP.)—Although frequent reports have been circulated that Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford would become reconciled, the actress yesterday went ahead with the next step in her suit for divorce.

Through her attorneys, Lloyd Wright and Charles E. Millikan, Miss Pickford obtained a Superior Court order permitting her to obtain service on her actor husband by publication, since he is in England.

Miss Pickford filed an affidavit to accompany the order, in which she stated that Fairbanks left California May 23, 1933, and that his present address is United Artists' Studio, London. Wright said:

"Miss Pickford has nothing to say at this time. Within 90 days we will obtain legal jurisdiction in the case and then hearings may be set."

Hollywood's "perfect marriage" was upset legally last December 9 when Miss Pickford filed suit for divorce, charging her husband with mental cruelty.

Meanwhile, friends had been insisting the noted screen couple would be reunited. Fairbanks purchased a 3,000-acre ranch near San Diego, spending approximately $1,000,000 on the land and improvements, and recently disclosed plans to build a new home there.

Miss Pickford, friends insisted, would join her husband on the ranch when the building program was completed.

"America's Sweetheart," however, has remained strictly silent on her marital affairs.

FAIRBANKS SILENT

LONDON, June 2.—(INS.)—Busy with the final scenes of his latest picture, "The Private Life of Don Juan," Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., refused to comment today upon news from Hollywood that his wife, Mary Pickford was proceeding with her divorce suit and had obtained a court order permitting service of papers in the suit by publication.

SOCIETY FAMILY SPLIT BY FIGHT

Flier, Wife to Quit Home in Quarrel Of Sisters

Peace hovered over the palatial $450,000 Sewickley Heights mansion of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Kirk today, but the truce was the result of a compromise reached before a justice of the peace.

Under the truce Mrs. John S. Kennedy, social registerite daughter of the Kirks, agreed to withdraw a charge of assault and battery against her sister, Mrs. William K. Jenne, and a charge of surety of the peace against Mrs. Jenne's husband, war-time aviator.

In return for this action, it was reported, the Jennes were to pack up and leave the fashionable Kirk estate, where both families have been living in more or less discord.

Jenne was hailed before Justice of the Peace W. S. Edwards, of Glenfield, on a constable's warrant last night, but no warrant was served on his wife.

Mrs. Kennedy claimed that her sister, Mrs. Jenne, struck her on the head in an attorney's office yesterday while they were attending to legal business. She also claimed that Jenne threatened he would "get her."

This is the second time that the family quarrel has been brought before a squire. On March 6, 1933, Mrs. Kennedy was arrested on a charge of surety of the peace when Jenne accused her of an attempt to stab him.

Mrs. Kennedy was free on $500 bond for three weeks and then the charge was dismissed.

LAWYER TELLS OF PUSEY WILL

The legal fight over the $1,000,000 estate of the late George W. Pusey, Pittsburgh wallpaper and carpet dealer, will be resumed in Orphans Court today with further testimony from witnesses brought here from Florida in an effort to have a second will probated.

M. H. Wells, Orlando (Fla.) lawyer, who drew up the disputed will a few days before Mr. Pusey's death in 1933, testified yesterday that some of the provisions in the Florida will were dictated by Mr. Pusey from a notebook in which the aged man was said to have copied provisions of his earlier will written in Pittsburgh.

The Pittsburgh will, naming numerous charitable organizations as beneficiaries, has been admitted to probate.

The lawyer said he was called to the Pusey home in Florida at the request of Dr. R. T. White, physician who attended Pusey and who was named an executor and beneficiary under his Florida will.

Dr. C. D. Christ, an Orlando physician, who witnessed the Florida will, told about blood transfusions given Mr. Pusey in an effort to prolong his life. Dr. Christ said he was being paid $200 a day to come to Pittsburgh as a witness.

SUSPECT HELD IN GUN THREAT

Accused of threatening John Dolan, Center avenue, with a revolver after taking him to an isolated spot in Highland Park, Mollie Mally, Paulson avenue, East End, was under arrest today on a charge of pointing firearms.

County detectives said Dolan told them Mally and Phil Lang, of East street, North Side, met him at the East Liberty Hunting and Fishing Club and insisted he go with him in Mally's automobile. Lang left them later, detectives said Dolan told them, and Mally drove on to Highland Park.

Dolan, a telegraph eoprator, said Mally accused him of giving "hot numbers" to persons playing the numbers lottery, causing Mally to lose $500. While pointing a revolver at Dolan, Mally demanded he admit the accusation, Dolan said, but when the latter refused, Mally returned him to Highland avenue.

Information against Mally and Lang was made by county detectives. Lang, charged with surety of the peace, was arrested this morning. Both were released under $1,000 bond. Mally will be arraigned before Alderman A. M. Maloney Thursday.

from brutal ignorance and superstition. But there is one fly in the ointment of freedom.

Filipinos now enjoy the right to send products to the United States, without paying duty, cheap Filipino labor competing with labor in the United States. If the Filipinos decided to cut loose from the United States, they would have to pay duty, like anybody else, on goods shipped here.

AT THIS POINT the Japanese Consul - General at Manila, Atsushi Kimura, offers a suggestion. He thinks the Philippines would be able to arrange free trade with Japan. But "the Filipinos should reduce the cost of production of their products." In other words, they should work for a great deal less money.

They would work for very much less money if they should find themselves, as soon would happen, under the control of fiercely efficient Japan, instead of good-natured, easy-going Uncle Sam.

ERIE MEN AIDES TO FATHER OF 5

ERIE, Pa., June 2.—(AP.)—Two Erie men, who left last week for a Canadian fishing trip, sent information home today that they have been appointed "official correspondents and "advisers" by Cliva Dionne, father of the five baby girls born to Mrs. Dionne in their Corbeil (Ont.) farm home.

The men, who will handle all mail, contracts and similar business for the family, are Benjamin J. Parent, division manager for an Erie oil company, and Grant A. Walker, attorney.

Mrs. Parent said she had just received information to this effect rfom her husband, who, with Walker, is still at Corbeil.

$15 Doctor's Fee For Delivering Quintuplets

CALLANDER, Ont., June 2.—(INS)—Dr. A. R. Dafoe will charge the Dionne family just $15 for delivering the quintuplet daughters born to Mrs. Alzire Dionne last Monday morning.

This fee will include the ever-watchful care and the many calls at the three-room farmhouse made by the tireless country doctor in his so-far successful fight to keep life in the five infants.

Fifteen dollars is the standard charge for the delivery and care of new born infants in this desolate wilderness—regardless of the number of babies involved.

DOCTOR OPTIMISTIC

CORBEIL, Ont., June 2.—(AP.)—The Dionne quintuplets continued to thrive today, ignorant of all the fuss that's being made about them.

Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the country physician, who is attending the famous 5-day-old sisters, said they had a good chance to live, "but that doesn't guarantee anything." He added:

"I feel more optimistic than at any time since their birth."

If the babies live and are well they'll be at the World's Fair, for their father, Ovila Dionne, young French-Canadian farmer, has signed a contract to bring the quintuplets and Mrs. Dionne to Chicago.

TO GET $250 A WEEK

The Dionnes are to receive $250 a week and 30 per cent of the gate receipts. In addition, Dionne will get a weekly salary of $100, beginning immediately. He has hopes of lifting the mortgage on his farm soon.

Every medical attention is being lavished upon the little tots in the humble home which they share with five older brothers and sisters.

While gifts of money and clothing continue to come in, the Propatria branch of the British Empire Service League at Victoria made a unique suggestion for the quintuplets' education. It proposed that each Canadian give 10 cents to a fund to be used to instillanti-war doctrines in the children.

EX-MRS. REYMER WEDS AGAIN

The former Mrs. Belle Flaccus Reymer, 43, prominent Pittsburgh society woman, is honeymooning today with her second husband, Enrico Piccino, 47, a New York hotel manager.

The couple were married yesterday at the Municipal Chapel, in New York, by a city clerk. Piccino was born in Naples, Italy.

The bride, who is the daughter of the late William and Elsie Wetzel Flaccus, was divorced in Pittsburgh April 26, 1933, from Arnold Reymer.

A brother, Edward H. Flaccus, who lives at 131 Irwin avenue, Ben Avon, said he had heard of the new marriage. Another brother, George Flaccus, lives at 319 Dickson avenue, Ben Avon.

STEERING FAILS, BUS HITS FENCE

Five passengers had a narrow escape from injury last night when a bus of the Blue Ridge Lines swerved from Washington road in Mt. Lebanon and struck a wire fence.

Merle Donley, Washington, Pa., driver of the bus, said the steering apparatus failed and he regained control of the car after two posts in the fence had been knocked down.

The bus was en route from Washington, Pa., to Pittsburgh.

MASQUERADING CHILD BURNED

Attired in a dress of her mother's, Alice Armstrong, 5, was saved from serious burns by her sister, Dolores, 6, when sparks from a match ignited the flimsy material.

The children were playing in the yard of their home at 396 Ravine street, Sharpsburg, when Dolores found a candle in a rubbish pile. Running into the house she got a match and started to light the candle. Sparks flew.

As the flames enveloped her sister, Dolores seized the top of the blazing dress and pulled it from her sister.

Alice was taken to St. Francis Hospital Thursday suffering minor burns.

FAIR PADLOCKS NUDE SHOWS

CHICAGO, June 2.—(AP.)—Minus a fan dancer, operators of the Streets of Paris tried to "pep up" the World's Fair—but their efforts brought a padlock for the concession.

The spicy offerings were "Olympia" and "Visions of Art," but they offended the taste of exposition officials, who ordered the entire concession closed. Both shows featured nude women.

Following a conference with Fair officials, concession operators said the Streets of Paris would reopen this afternoon, with the attractions objected to permanently closed.

John McMahon, general manager of the concession, said:

"The question of nudity never entered our minds. We thought we were showing art."

'STAGE MONEY' SEIZED, 5 HELD

Five persons, two of them women, arrested in a police raid yesterday at a rooming house at 202 East Stockton avenue, were held for further investigation today after a hearing in Central Police Court before Magistrate J. W. Mc-Gowan.

They are Earl Morrell and his wife, Marie; Paul and Eugene Brooks, brothers, and the latter's wife, Josephine. They said they came here recently from Detroit.

City detectives said they confiscated a roll of stage money and a number of paper bands, used in banks to bind packages of currency and marked $500. Police said the three men had long records of arrests.

HUTTON AFFAIR STIRS LONDON

LONDON, June 2.—(AP.)—London displayed as much interest as America in the state of affairs of the royal family Mdivani today, but mystery cloaked their intentions.

Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani remained in a medical clinic and it was not known whether she would return with her parents to America when they leave shortly.

Her father, Franklyn L. Hutton, exchanged the smiles he had at Southampton when greeted by Prince Alexis Mdivani for frowns after an hour and a half's visit with Barbara.

It appears definite, however, that the prince won't sail—he explained he would catch up on his polo playing here.

London newspapers are giving much space and many pictures to the Mdivanis, following reports of a rupture between the prince and the American heiress, married one year ago this month.

YALE PUP GOES DRAMATIC

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 2.—(AP.)—Handsome Dan 2nd, Yale's football mascot, has won a role in the commencement play, Shakespeare's "Two Gentlemen of Verona."

The pedigreed English bulldog will play the part of Crab, the dog, it was announced today at the conclusion of the Yale competition which attracted scores of other dog applicants.

He will be understudied by Funny, a black Scottie, unofficially of the class of '34.

Hear Woman's Plea to Stop Divorce June 8

Judge Thomas M. Marshall has fixed June 8 for a hearing on the petition of Attorney Arthur I. Zeiger, representing Elizabeth Leiding, of 818 Walnut street, Edgewood, who is seeking to prevent her husband, Elmer C. Leiding, from obtaining a Mexican divorce. Judge Marshall has also been asked to injoin Leiding from leaving the jurisdiction of court.

Plot to Kill Family With Poison Gum Fails

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 2.—(AP.)—Police sought today for the motive in an apparent plot to wipe out an entire family with poison chewing gum.

Examination of gum left at the home of Mrs. Georgia McKenzie revealed a coating of deadly poison on each stick. The word "sample" had been typewritten on a small brown envelope enclosing each stick.

Mrs. McKenzie found the chewing gum Tuesday night when she returned home from work. Only the fact that she placed it in her purse before other members of the household found it prevented a tragedy, police believed.

Similar "samples" were found at three other houses in the same block, and although they have not been analyzed, authorities believed they were not poisoned.

Only the fact that Mrs. McKenzie noticed a bitter burning sensation when she touched the gum to her tongue while at work Wednesday night and did not place it completely in her mouth saved her from death, City Chemist Burr T. Snyder said.

Mrs. McKenzie, a divorcee, lives with her two sons and her parents.

Fire Causes $100 Loss At Lumber Plant

Fire of undetermined origin threatened the plant of the Keystone Lumber Company, South Seventeenth and Merriman streets early today. Discovered in a sawdust heap, the flames burned through a partition and had reached a pile of lumber when firemen were summoned. The loss was estimated at $100.

Disbarred Attorney Seeking Divorce

Harry Irwin Glick, recently disbarred from practice in the Allegheny County Courts, has filed a libel in divorce from Eugena Glick, of 2343 Eldridge street, alleging cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities. They were married January 16, 1921. He is represented by Attorney Vincent P. Walsh.

The A Cappello Chorus of Perry High School will assist Marshall Bidwell, organist, at a recital in Carnegie Music Hall at 8:15 tonight. The Chorus is directed by Miss Anne M. George.

G. A. R. Shuns Tribute To 'Boys in Gray' Here

Allegheny County's first Confederate monument will be dedicated in West Park today minus any official delegation of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The G. A. R. has shunned an invitation to take part in the ceremonies, according to William J. Blakeley, president of the Federated Patriotic Orders Allied with the G. A. R., because a Confederate flag will be used at the exercises. He said:

"We don't think it is the proper thing to use the flag. It has been wiped out and we have enough genuine flags."

Mrs. Arch C. Perry, president of the Pittsburgh Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, who invited the five organizations constituting the federated orders to attend the dedication, declared:

"The G. A. R. doesn't approve of the Confederate flag. It is our flag after the American flag, and we are going to use it."

The monument is in honor of the 118 junior officers of Gen John Morgan, captured near Lisbon, O., in July, 1863, and imprisoned in Western State Penitentiary, then in West Park.

Junior Birdmen Model Plane Derby Day To Be Held at Schenley Oval July 7

By J. JAMES MOORE

Greetings, Junior Birdmen! Saturday, July 7, is National Junior Birdmen Model Plane Derby Day. In all our 18 wing cities gala model plane meets will be conducted for our members.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph wing is going to make this one of the biggest events in the history of local model plane activity with a tremendous outdoor model plane derby to be held at Schenley Oval, Schenley Park.

The Pittsburgh Department of Parks, under the supervision of Superintendent Ralph E. Griswold; and the Bureau of Recreation, under the direction of Superintendent W. C. Batchelor, are placing the complete facilities of their departments at our disposal to make our Junior Birdmen meet the greatest ever held.

Junior Birdmen of America

The Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.:

Please enroll me as a member of this new nation-wide junior organization for boys and girls. I pledge myself to become an active

(JUNIOR BIRDMAN)
(JUNIOR BIRDWOMAN)

I enclose a 10-cent coin to cover cost of Junior Birdmen wings and membership card including mailing and postage.

My Name .....
My Address .....
My Age .....

(Fold your dime carefully in a piece of paper and attach it to the coupon.)

Who May Enter And How!

Any member of the Sun-Telegraph wing of the Junior Birdmen of America, who has not yet reached his or her twenty-second birthday, may enter this derby in competition for the many fine awards that will be announced in this column tomorrow. Today, however, I want to give you the general plan and scope of this great outdoor Junior Birdmen activity.

To enter this local model plane competition all you have to do is write to the Junior Birdmen of America, the Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, and ask for a Model Plane Derby entry blank and the official Junior Birdmen Book of Contest Rules.

Since only Junior Birdmen are permitted to enter the competition the book of rules and the entry blank will not be forwarded unless you give your membership number. The book has been published with a great deal of expense and it is unnecessary to send one to any boy or girl unless he or she is a member of the organization and can thus enter the derby.

As soon as you receive your entry blank, fill it out and return it to me and you will be registered as a contestant.

Official Birdmen Contest Rules

After you have sent your entry blank in it is time to look through the book of rules and start building your models. You have over one month to construct them—plenty of time even for the beginners!

The book of rules which will be sent you, free, contains eight pages of vital information, rules, regulations and details covering the procedure of the derby and the specifications for models in each event, including size, weight, etc.

These new official Junior Birdmen National Outdoor Model Contest Rules are the finest that have ever been prepared for model builders and have already been praised by many junior aeronautical experts.

Every boy and every girl entering the Junior Birdmen Model Plane Derby on Saturday, July 7, must adhere strictly to all the rules published in the official book. All measures and specifications of models must be exact.

Three Events To Be Held

Three outdoor events will be conducted at the first annual Junior Birdmen Outdoor Model Plane Derby. A glider event, similar to the one built by many members from instructions published in ths column during the week, but larger in proportion. A single-propelled stick model event, and a twin propelled stick model event.

The more advanced cabin (fuselage) models and autogyro craft are not included in the first official meet, but will be conducted later in the summer as these event are really limiteds to the advanced model builders. By next year you will probably all be building these, as well as the flying replica planes.

The National Contest

In addition to the local model plane derby being held at Schenley Oval, a similar derby will be held on the same day in every other Junior Birdmen wing city.

The winner of each wing city meet, who will be recognized as the 1934 Wing Model Plane Champion, will be sent to the national Junior Birdmen All-American Model Plane Championship Contest to be held at Fort Meyer (near Washington), on Saturday, July 28. Full expenses of all eligible contestants to the national contest will be paid by the Junior Birdmen.

It will be the greatest model plane contest ever held anywhere, having but the 18 wing city champions as contests to vie for the United States national model plane championship! What a meet, and wait until you read in tomorrow's column about the fine awards for the local model plane derby winners and the dandy prizes that will be offered to the winners in our first national contest.

It sure pays to be a member of the Junior Birdmen!

Send for Your Rules and Blank!

You can get all of this information in the official book of rules which will be sent free to any Junior Birdmen. Just drop me a penny postcard—or a letter, if you prefer. Address is to our Junior Birdmen of America headquarters, and say that you want to enter the Junior Birdmen Model Plane Derby on July 7 and would like to have an entry blank and book of rules.

That's all there is to it, but don't forget to give your full name, address and your membership number.

The complete list of awards for both the local derby and the national contest; the general rules governing contestants, procedure of events, and models; and the individual event rules and specifications, are all found in this neatly published eight-page book. Also information relative to the acceptance of national model plane records are contained in this book. It will be well worth your while to get one. Send for it now!

We expect an announcement in tomorrow's column from national headquarters naming the prize-winning motto in our recent national motto contest.

Better be sure you get tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph and see who the lucky member is to win the cross-country trip! There will also be more news of our field day and model plane derby.

HAPPY LANDINGS!

Junior Patrol

Memorial Day is past now, fellows, but the spirit of it will be with us for a long time.

It is a good idea for us to stop for a day to remember the men and women who built this country, and who fought to protect and save it during dark days of war.

Many graves today are beautiful with new flowers. They show that there is someone who remembers the ones buried there.

Too often we forget. We take things as we find them all for granted. It isn't so easy for people to appreciate, fellows, that everything we have is built on the work and skill and thought of men for ages past.

Our fathers and mothers, and their fathers and mothers before them have given us our country, and all the wonderful things in the world. It is up to us to be true to their trust. We want to do everything we can to improve the world, and to carry on the world's work so that more and more people may enjoy the good things of life.

With many Junior Patrol members already out of school we are expecting to hear some interesting things from both members and captains.

Especially, we are anxious to hear our first fishing story. You know the old one about the man who told his friend he was fishing for very large fish and his friend asked him if he was fishing for whales. The old man chuckled his answer—"Nope, I'm using whales for bait."

We would like to hear a Junior Patrol member tell a better fish story than that one!

We wonder how many Junior Patrol members know that whales are not fishes, but mammals, like elephants or tigers or horses? That's just one of the things you find out if you read lots of good books.

And how about your gardening, fellows? We would like to hear that every Junior Patrol has a garden. When you grow your own beans and potatoes they sure taste extra good when you have them for supper!

Graduates Pledge Selves to Democracy

In a picturesque ritual of citizenship in Syria Mosque yesterday, more than 2,000 members of graduating classes from Pittsburgh high schools pledged themselves to uphold the ideals of liberty and democracy. Dr. Ben G. Graham, city superintendent of schools, presided.

Night Bus Service To South Hills Ends

Effective Monday, the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company will abandon night bus service to the Mt. Lebanon-Dormont district after 6:45 during the summer months. Company officials said the changes were "merely the usual seasonal changes of schedule."

UNION VESPERS FOR SHADYSIDE DISTRICT

Seven churches of the Shadyside district will unite in the first of a series of community vespers to be held tomorrow in the Fourth United Presbyterian Church, Friendship avenue. The Rev. Harry M. Campbell, of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Friendship avenue, has been elected president of the church association.

Participating churches, in addition to the Fourth United Presbyterian, are the Friendship Park Methodist Episcopal, the First Brethren, the Mt. Zion Lutheran, the Pacific Avenue Methodist Episcopal and the Gustavus Adolphus Lutheran Church.

'Necromancy' Topic For Science Churches

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced," will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientists, tomorrow. The golden text reads: "Oh, Let the Wickedness of the Wicked Come to An End: For the Righteous God Trieth the Hearts and Reins."

'Life's Lost Chord' Topic for Sermon

"The Man Over Whose Body Heaven and Hell Fought," is Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney's subject for the 10:45 a. m. service at the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, tomorrow. At 8 p.m. Dr. Macartney will speak on "Life's Lost Chord."

The Story of Salome — CHAPTER I — Told in Pictures By DAN SMITH

It came to pass when Herod, King of Israel, had taken Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip, as his wife, that Herod sent forth and laid hold upon John the Baptist and bound him in prison.

This Herod did for the sake of Herodias, who was angry against John the Baptist because he had said unto Herod, "It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife." And Herodias had a daughter, Salome.

When Herodias heard that John the Baptist said that what Herod had done was evil in the eyes of the Lord, she was not content that he lie in prison unharmed, and she would have killed him, but could not.

But Herod feared John, for he knew that he was a just man, and holy; and he gave attention to John and listened gladly to what he had to say, and when he had heard him he did many things as John advised him.

CHURCH PLANS ANNIVERSARY PROGRAM

McCandless Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church will celebrate its fifty-first anniversary, tomorrow, with the Home Coming Services, which will last through the day.

At 10:45 a. m., Dr. Ralph W. McKenzie, a former pastor and now superintendant of the Blairsville District, Pittsburgh Conference Methodist Episcopal Church, will speak. In the afternoon Dr. L. D. Spaugy, superintendent of the Pittsburgh Conference, will deliver the address at a 4 p. m. vesper service. Communion will be administered at this time.

Between the afternoon and evening service a buffet supper will be served at the church. The closing service in the celebration series will be entirely musical and will be presented by the church choir and the Emory Brotherhood orchestra.

Two Arnold Women Get Hearing Tuesday

Mrs. Louise Pastoria, 34, and Miss Rose Dosio, 32, both of Arnold, were held under bond of $1,000 each for a hearing Tuesday before the United States Commissioner on a complaint charging violations of the internal revenue act.

They were arrested Thursday during a raid in Fourth avenue, Arnold, where a 300-gallon still and 80 gallons of whisky were reported seized.

CHILDREN'S DAY SERVICES SET TOMORROW

Just as the rest of the family is remembered by special days of observance, tomorrow, in accordance with the custom of many years, will be Children's Day. On this one Sunday of the year the younger members of the family will meet with their parents, rather than having their usual Sunday school classes, and present a gala program for their entertainment.

In some of the churches the service will take the form of speeches and recitations; in others elaborate pageants will tell of the meaning of the day.

Typical of these programs will be the "Happiness Highway," a Children's Day pageant to be presented at a combined Sunday school and church service at 10 a. m. tomorrow in the Bellevue Christian Church, Lincoln avenue, Bellevue. Miss Jean Nettrour, superintendent of the junior department, is in charge of the morning's service and she will be assisted by a committee of 21 church members.

Patriotism Theme For E. E. Services

Patriotism will be the theme of the services at Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue, tomorrow. In the morning Dr. M. B. Fuller, pastor, will speak on "Faith in a Church that Inspires."

In the evening the service will be devoted to the flag and a motion picture portraying "Old Glory" will be shown, while Dr. Fuller recites the poem of the same name.

EVERY GIRL must answer this vital question . . . "WHICH COMES FIRST; LOVE or LOYALTY ?"

And everyone will want to read how lovely Susan Broderick answered it in one of the most provocative, thrilling love stories of the year—

Girl in the Family

by BEATRICE BURTON

Susan stood at that crossroad so many girls have faced—should she marry the man she really loves—or remain loyal to her impoverished family by marrying the wealthy man of their choice?

Chickie's Daughter

By ELEANORE MEHERIN

Kevin Storms When Asked About Hildegarde

CHAPTER LXXXV.

Kevin's arm dropped. But he looked at her. For a long moment—dark, furious, full of contempt, he looked at her.

She protested with faint, accusing murmur that found no words.

He said, with his lips stiff: "I beg your pardon!" and turned and went out.

Pippin crept down the hall to the living room. She looked out at the dark clouds resting so quiet in the pallid sky. The hills were stiller than a picture; stiller than a dream; still as her heart.

After a long time she wondered why he looked at her with scorn.

At twelve o'clock that night, Kathleen, returning home from a dinner, passed Kevin's room. She heard the drawers of his chiffonier slammed. Now shoes were being kicked into the closet.

She poked her head into his room, noticed his dark face and his savage eyes. She sighed and walked in.

"Are you on a rampage, too?"

Kevin was putting on his shoes. She was a little intimidated by the grim set of his mouth. But these six weeks had not been pleasant. Mary's grief and Kevin's silence left Kathleen lonely and depressed. She was sorry for herself.

She said, accusing him but nervous: "Affable and sweet, aren't we? Where are you going at this hour of the night?"

"To the hospital. An emergency. Where are you going?"

"Janice gave a dinner for Edward and Sonia. She wants to introduce them to all her darling friends. You know how Janice loves to patronize anyone. Isn't it a scream? Janice alone used to bore Edward to death. Now the poor boy has Sonia thrown in for good measure."

Kathleen Quizzes Kevin

He answered gruffly: "Ed seems happy enough!"

He pulled into his shirt stuffed it into place, fastened his belt. Kathleen came over and rested her elbow on the chiffonier.

"The trip east certainly knocked you for a loop!"

He took time to glare at her coldly.

She added, hurt: "Well, you've hardly spoken ten words to me since your return!"

"I've been busy. I have the entire office on my hands."

"The whole house is like a funeral. Mary goes around with tears in her eyes. She'd throw us all overboard for Chickie!"

"Why not?"

"And Pippin looks as though she is about to pass out of the picture. Then you come home, cast black looks around and go into a silence. Did it interfere with your plans to be called home so abruptly."

He fairly shot his indignation: "What plans?"

"I don't know. But you certainly act as though some one done you wrong. What about Hildegarde?"

Kevin, standing before the mirror pulling his necktie hastily into place, turned blazing eyes at his sister. But he said with constrained quiet:

"What about Hildegarde? What do you mean, Kathleen?"

"We thought you were going to bring her home with you."

Kevin brought his fist thumping on the glass. Collar buttons and cigarets jiggled.

"Why the hell should you think that? Did I tell you I was going to bring her home? Did I tell anyone I was going to bring her home?"

Told of Rumors

"Well, we knew she arrived in New York. All your friends were talking about it. She wrote to Bob Nolan's wife. Every time I saw the pair of them they twitted me about it. They said it was all settled."

Kevin's face looked as though it were cut from pale, hard steel. His eyes were cold as a blade.

"Did Pippin hear these rumors? Did you tell her what Bob Nolan said?"

"Yes, I did. But I didn't need to. She heard it from other sources."

"Didn't she deny the tale? Didn't she tell you it was a lie?"

"She never said a word."

He swung into his coat, threw keys and wallet into his pocket.

Kathleen felt strangely excited: "Why should Pippin deny rumors? What did she know?"

"Oh, I was just curious. Just wondered if anyone believed in me—thought I might have one friend.

"You're not very fair! What right would Pippin have to say what you were going to do?"

His eyes narrowed. "Leave your alarm clock on my desk, will you? Mine's out of whack and I've got to be out early in the morning."

"You might answer me."

"Aren't you answered? I haven't brought Hildegarde home, I might add, she's not arriving here. At least—not on my invitation."

Kathleen listened to the door close after him. Why did he expect Pippin to defend him? Why did the family always think Pippin should rush in and hide the corpse whenever murder was done? Like Edward having Pippin arrange for bridesmaids at his wedding! Queer things these men are!

Kathleen Sees Light

She walked about his room, absently setting it to rights. But why did he get so violent, as though Pippin had done him a mortal wrong?

Suddenly, Kathleen halted, her cheeks burning and scenes coming with startling clarity in her mind—Kevin following Pippin up the stairs after Sonia's wedding, taking the flowers from the bride's bouquet: Kevin driving down to the campus just to see Pippin: Kevin whistling as he dressed to take Pippin dancing.

Why had she not guessed before? Her thoughts went in a tumult. She couldn't sleep for wondering.

Three o'clock the next afternoon, Pippin brought a great bowl of blue larkspur and pink roses for her mother to see.

"From Mary, dearest. No one has such friends as you!"

Chickie raised dark, misted eyes. They were worn and her white face like marble with the delicate blue veins standing out. But to her daughter she had never seemed so lovely.

She watched the girl arrange the flowers.

"What is the matter, Pippin? You seem very sad."

"I? Oh no! I'm silly with joy because you're getting well. It has been sad, mother. I have not dared to think. What this house would be if you had gone!"

Pippin went to the garden where she waited for Kathleen. She looked down over the Palace of Fine Arts and the fountain playing in the sun. How blue the water looked and bluer still was the tranquil sky. She should be glad! Helena would walk again. She would laugh and be so lovely. This was enough. She had vowed to God it was enough! But how that shimmer of silver dazzled on the bay! It made your eyes blink.

Knows Explanation

Kathleen found her wiping away tears.

"Crying? But isn't Chickie better?"

"She is. That's why I cry. The relief."

"And mother's been weeping all day because of joy. Funny world!"

They sat on a bench. With an undertone of excitement, Kathleen said: "Did Kevin ever tell you he wasn't going to marry Hildegarde?"

"Why should he tell it to me?"

"I don't know. But did he?"

"He never mentioned her name!"

"It's certainly very strange." Kathleen told of her interview with Kevin. She added: "He got white with rage when I said you hadn't denied it. He acted as though you were on the ground floor and knew all about his affairs."

Pippin shot a swift anxious glance into Kathleen's face. Her eyes went a little wild.

Kathleen had been putting two and two together all morning. She now said sharply: "Kevin must have written it to you. He sent you letters, didn't he?"

"In the beginning."

"Who stopped writing first—you or he?"

"He did."

"And were you expecting letters that you didn't receive?"

Pippin said, with her lips clinging to her teeth and her breath coming fast: "What are you driving at?"

"Was it in May you expected letters and didn't get them?"

"Yes."

"Then I know what happened."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Stork Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am planning to give a stork shower very soon. As I have never undertaken anything of this sort before, I should like your advice in helping me to plan it in detail. I am mostly concerned about what to serve. I expect about 20 people.

2—Is it proper to invite any men who are close friends and who are sweethearts of the girls invited?

CONSTANT READER.

1—I suggest that you write your invitation as notes, explaining the idea of the party to your guests. Since there are apt to be too many duplicates for such gifts, it is well to guide your guests in their selection of gifts by writing, "We are going to dress this baby from 'top to toe,' and I would love to have you help with the 'top.'"

Since pink, white and blue are the colors usually associated with babies, your color scheme of your central decorations for your table and the room flower decorations may be carried out with pink roses, blue delphinium and baby's breath.

The gifts may be "contained" in a big baby's hood made of paper or soft cotton, or in a baby's clothes basket. Or several friends may combine to give as their gift a baby's bureau, or a crib, and the other gifts may be put in this.

Sometimes now stork showers are given as a breakfast, around 11 or 12 inthe morning. Then your menu may be fruit, waffles and maple syrup, and coffee, or fruit, omelet, hot biscuits, and coffee or hot chocolate. If it is a luncheon, a lunch menu is appropriate, and if it is a tea, small sandwiches, with a fruit salad if you wish, small cakes or a layer cake, with a choice of tea and coffee, and a cold drink, perhaps a fruit punch.

2—Men are not invited to a stork shower.

GIVING 'THE HONOR OF YOUR PRESENCE'

Left, a richly colored chiffon afternoon gown in fox glove rose and lupin blue. Note the jabot on the surplice neck—wonderful on the mature figure—and the unusual long soft cuffs. Center, the rath primrose captured on a lattice of organza print. The blossoms are appliqued on bertha and bow as an edging. The three hats are variously rough straw, stitched taffeta and organza.

Right, an all-over print of white on a Venetian blue organza. The high draped neckline to which peony puffed sleeves appear to be attached is a new note. The wide, trained sash is blue bagheera velvet.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE WEDDING guest frequently beats her breast as the list of June brides rolls around. It is a trick to make an elegant appearance on a hot afternoon of early summer, whether snails and hollyhocks provide a garden backdrop, or the ceremony takes place in a city cathedral. One costume that never stales and which perennially blooms afresh for the summer is the sheer gown of printed fabric. In its pristine freshness it's the ideal choice for the wedding guest who knows that she should be for the bridal procession in her appearance, even if she is not of it. And what a swell outfit for roof garden dining or country club festivities it becomes as the season waxes!

* * *

A SLEEVE OR capelet which covers the top of the arm is a prerequisite of this type of gown. In most churches women must always wear hats, so bare arms would be out of the picture and gloves are usually an essential part of the costume. But transparent fabric gloves are just as good as any other sort, and where a frock is equipped with glove sleeves of its own—detachable gadgets which make a daytime model from an evening toilette—most of the hand is covered respectably and a good manicure plus pretty rings will assuage the conventions.

* * *

NOW IS THE time—now, when one wears such a frock on such an occasion—to go the limit in cartwheel hats. No one can make you take it off in church, the bridal party generously displays itself up and down the aisle, and it matters not how the hats clutter up the view.

—With—

Patricia Pitt

Pittsburgh Junior League's own Helen Leovy has been elected treasurer of the Association of the Junior Leagues.

The election took place yesterday at the Toronto Hunt Club, Toronto, Canada, where the association is having a conference.

Miss Leovy

Helen is a daughter of the Frank Adair Leovys. Ever since her debutante days, popular Helen has been active in Junior League affairs.

She has been president of the Pittsburgh Junior League and field secretary of the Association of Junior Leagues.

Besides her executive work in the Junior League, Helen is noted for her beauty. She is blonde, has distinctively well-cut features.

At the election meeting yesterday, a closed session, reports of committees and recommendations of forums, which for several days have been discussing various phases of League activities, were given.

This is the season of flower shows. A new one has been added to the long list.

The Westmoreland Garden Club will have a flower show Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in 33 West Waterman street, Greensburg. Mrs. D. Ray Murdock and Mrs. Elmer L. Turner are chairman, with Mrs. John Barclay staging the show.

Vitchestain Marriage Today

At high noon today in the Mt. Washington Baptist Church the Rev. Mary Agnes Vitchestain Wagner, of North Syracuse, N. Y., the "college girl evangelist," will officiate at the marriage of her sister, Miss Jessie Anne Vitchestain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Vitchestain, to Edward Bryham Roper, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Roper, of Coatesville, Pa.

Assisting the Rev. Wagner will be the pastor of the church, the Rev. Richard G. Stacy, and the bridegroom's pastor, the Rev Dr. Wilbur Smith, of the Presbyterian Church, Coatesville.

The bride is to be given in marriage by her father and she will wear her mother's wedding gown of white satin and lace and will carry a sheaf of calla lilies. Agnes Mae Holsing, of Hillsdale, N. J., who was Mrs. Wagner's flower girl, will be flower girl for today's bride.

Miss Stella Holsing, of Canonsburg, as maid of honor, will wear brown with peach colored accessories and carry Talisman roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Virginia Everett, of Finleyville; Miss Betty Billingsly, Miss Jennie Richie and Miss Ruth Vitchestain will wear canary yellow and green gowns and will carry Dresden bouquets.

The bride's mother is to wear blue chiffon and Mrs. Roper will appear in pink lace. Both will wear shoulder corsages.

Wilson Roper is to serve as his brother's best man and ushers will include Paul B. Wagner, of North Syracuse; Charles Roper, another brother; Hector McLean, Coatesville, and Joseph H. Vitchestain, Jr., brother of the bride.

Robert McFall, of Coatesville, will sing, and Claud B. Frisinger, organist, will play the wedding music.

Miss Helen Shaw To Be Married At Home

At 4 o'clock this afternoon at a pretty ceremony in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shaw, of McKeesport, their daughter, Miss Helen Louise Shaw, will become the bride of Marian Cancelliere.

The Rev. E. E. Robb, of the Central Presbyterian Church, McKeesport, is officiating. The bride is wearing a gown of blue lace, and as a departure from the usual white veil, she is wearing a veil of ice blue tulle which gives a silvery effect, and her flowers will be white orchids.

Miss Claudia Shimmon, of Cleveland, O., is to be maid of honor, wearing a frock of yellow organza. Douglas D. Mansfield is to be the best man and William J. Jackel will be an usher.

After a motor trip Mr. Cancelliere and his bride will be at home with Mr. and Mrs. Shaw.

Avalon Club To Have Luncheon

The Avalon Woman's Club will have its annual luncheon at the Highland Country Club, on Monday, with Mrs. Frank N. Young as chairman. There will be a program by the club choral, under the direction of Mrs. Florence Kinley, and Mrs. George Spettigue, Jr., will entertain with a reading.

Children's Charity Luncheon Set

Mrs. E. Bruce Hill and Mrs. John A. Wilson will be hostesses on Wednesday for the luncheon which will close the season for the Children's Charity of the Presbyterian Hospital. It's to be held in the Pittsburgh Field Club and will be followed by the annual business meeting.

Catholic Alumnae To Meet Tomorrow

A regular meeting of Pittsburgh Circle, International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, will be held tomorrow afternoon, at St. Xavier's Academy, Latrobe.

Miss Mary Dyke Becomes Bride Of C. R. Acklin

The Rev. Dr. R. N. Meade solemnized the marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Dyke and Charles Ross Acklin last night in the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Dyke, of Hobart street, was gowned in an eggshell satin dress with a bodice of rose point lace and sleeves puffed to the elbows. Her veil of tulle was arranged in the halo fashion finished with a semi-wreath of orange blossoms. She carried calla lilies and lilies of the valley.

Miss Dorothy Jane Dyke, as her sister's maid of honor, wore peach net with a ruffled cape and hat of tulle. She carried summer flowers. The bridesmaids, Miss Ruth Cousley, Mis Kay Ryall and Miss Alice Rosenberger, wore aquamarine organdie with tulle hats and carried summer flowers.

The bride's mother wore beige lace and the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. John Acklin, chose blue lace. A. E. Dyke, uncle of the bride, was best man and ushers were Benjamin Evans, Dick Miller Reeser, Clark Wilbur Green and John Walton Dyke.

After the reception in the Hotel Schenley, Mr. and Mrs. Acklin left for White Sulphur Springs and Virginia Beach. They will live in Riverview drive, New Kensington, upon their return.

A reception honoring those members admitted to the club during the season will be a feature at the meeting of the Carrick Mothers' Club on Wednesday afternoon.

The literary department is having a dinner at Pleasant Hills Farm on Thursday evening at which Shakesperean anecdotes and stories will be featured.

Instead of a luncheon as listed in the year books there will be a garden party on Wednesday, June 13, at the home of Mrs. Rose Thomas, Brownsville road, Brentwood. Mrs. William Thomson and Mrs. James Hollis are receiving acceptances.

The club's annual baby day will be held in the clubhouse on June 20.

Wilkinsburg Girl to Wed Today

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot is to be a guest at the weddding at 5:30 o'clock tonight in the First Presbyterian Church, of Wilkinsburg, of Miss Zoe Mothersbaugh and George F. Beggs.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Mothersbaugh, of Peebles street, Wilkinsburg, and the bridegroom is a son of Mrs. Catherine F. Muncaster, of Bellevue. The Rev. Dr. Roy E. Manne, pastor of the Bellevue Methodist Church, is to officiate.

The bride is wearing a gown of white organza with a jacket of organza having short puffed sleeves and a train. Her white horsehair hat is ornamented with blue velvet ribbon and her gloves are of white silk with organdie ruffled cuffs and she is carrying a Dresden bouquet.

Miss Thelma Mothersbaugh, as her sister's maid of honor, will wear foam green mousseline de soie with a leghorn hat having a green velvet ribbon, and her gloves of green silk will have green ruffled cuffs of organdie. John Cochrane Daub will be best man and ushers will be Gilbert Mothersbaugh and Ray Anthony.

Maurice Adele Hall, organist at Shadyside United Presbyterian Church, will play and the Shadyside Church's contralto, Emma Belle Weinman, will sing.

There will be an informal reception and buffet supper in the Hotel William Penn after the ceremony. Mr. Beggs and his bride will leave for a three-week trip through Canada and the East and have received an invitation from Governor and Mrs. Pinchot to spend several days at "Grey Towers." They plan to make their home in Ben Avon.

The bride attended Carnegie Tech and is a well known Pittsburgh musician. The bridegroom was graduated from Staunton Military Academy.

High Lights Summed at Congress

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

The home department of the Congress of Clubs had one of its most interesting meetings of the season yesterday, and it was at the same time a sort of summing up of the season's high lights. Subjects which have been studied during the year were talked over in round table discussions during luncheon and later each round table leader talked before the general assembly. These were C. E. Braden, of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation; H. R. Brady, of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board; Miss Eleanor Webster, of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, and Dr. C. H. Marcy, of the Tuberculosis League.

Mr. Braden gave an outline of the corporation and said 196,136 loans amounting to more than $569,000,000 had been made up to May 1. The average loan was $2,900, he said. This, he stated, has helped municipalities in an undreamed of way, for $26,000,000 in delinquent taxes have been paid.

Mr. Brady discussed the Real Estate Board's plan for allocating money for taxes, water rent and insurance for the owners of houses occupied by welfare families.

Miss Webster showed how slum housing is a menace to public health; that indirectly every person is affected by the health of slum dwellers. The only way to escape the ill effects of bad housing is to eradicate it and to eradicate it means to substitute good housing for bad housing, she stated.

Dr. Marcy talked on "Tuberculosis as it Affects Pittsburgh Homes."

So. High P. T. A. Will Meet on Thursday

The Parent-Teacher Association of South High School will meet in the school auditorium Thursday evening.

The program will consist of vocal selections by the Ukranian choir of the Ukranian Presbyterian Church, instrumental music by the South High orchestra, and addresses by Dr. Charles R. Young, of the faculty, and Frank Skalak, director of the Brashear Settlement.

Annual election of officers will be held.

Millvale Bride Honor Guest At Party

Mrs. Harry Anderson, a recent bride, was guest of honor at a dinner party given for her recently at the William Penn Hotel.

Mrs. Anderson was Miss Margaret Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Porter, of Greenhill road, Millvale, before her marriage on May 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will be at home in September in Greenhill road.

Morningside P. T. A. Elects Officers

The Parent-Teacher Association of Morningside School has chosen the following officers for the coming year: President, Mrs. S. D. Semenow; vice president, T. Ray McLain, Jr.; secretary, Mrs. George M. Gillmor; treasurer, D. Elmer Woods.

So that P. T. A. members may lunch together at the school picnic, June 20, a committee, headed by Mrs. Lan MacRae, has been appointed to reserve tables in the dining pavilion.

Dames of Malta Will Have Benefit

Under auspices of the ways and means committee, Homewood Dames of Malta, No. 61, will have a benefit card and bingo party Tuesday evening in Malta Hall, Frankstown avenue.

Farm and Garden Flower Show Set

The annual flower show of the Oakmont Unit, National Farm and Garden Association, will be held both afternoon and evening on Wednesday in St. Thomas' parish house.

DANCE RHYTHMS :-: 5,000 Musicians In Band Concert :-: ON AIR TONIGHT

Maestros In Gala Fest

A few points of interest might be provided should someone imbued with ambition undertake an investigation into the effect upon radio of repeal.

It may or may not have much to do with the issue, but Saturday night home parties are replacing, to an extent, the old mad week-end speakeasy rush of the prohibition era, and radio definitely is scheduling more and better dance music for the Saturday night dialers.

Which, while only one phase of the question, suggests a peek into the current listing and a resume of tonight's fare:

Dick Huber on WJAS at 9:30, with Eddie Duchin scheduled for KDKA and Eddie Peyton, for WJAS, at the same hour; Lennie Hayton, at 10 on WCAE, followed by Enrio Madriguera, WCAE, and Peyton, WJAS, at 11; Little Jack Little and Dick Fidler, on WJAS and KDKA, respectively, at 11:30; Leon Belasco, on WJAS, and Brito, on KDKA, at 11:45; Dan Russo, WCAE, and Jack Denny, KDKA, at midnight, and Vincent Lopez, KDKA, at 12:30.

* * *

Something very special for the late afternoon listeners is NBC's presentation of a special massed bands concert, with 5,000 student musicians participating, at 5:30 p. m., through WCAE.

The concert, the final event in the National School Band Competition at Drake University, Des Moines, is directed by that eminent bandmaster, Edwin Franko Goldman.

In political vein on tonight's schedule is a half-hour wafting at 10:30 from Detroit, scene of the National Socialist convention, with Norman Thomas speaking on "The World We Want."

Leo Krzycki, national party chairman, also will speak, his topic being "Labor on the March," WCAE will carry.

A series of five-minute musical programs entitled "Terraplane Travel Tours" bows on WCAE at 6:40 tonight.

Globe Trotter

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

A. T. Keil, secretary of the State Bee-Keepers' Association, gave us a real opportunity to learn the habits of bees. Although I was a bit perturbed when he called me an "apiarist," I found out later that he meant no offense. He just learned that last year I went out capturing straying swarms and the term "apiarist" is just a high-class name for a bee-keeper.

The main thing that he pointed out in his talk yesterday was that bees must have elbow room or else they will look for new quarters, and so he advised everyone who owned an apiary (another high-class term) to make sure that there is plenty of room in the hive for the storage of nectar, of which there is an abundance at the present time.

Henry Eby, who also appeared on the Globe Trotting broadcast, discussed the present visitation of the 17-year locust. He informed us that they arrived on schedule and that their numbers would increase up to the middle of June, the peak of their emergence.

At present they are plentiful in the North Boroughs, but according to Mr. Eby and other entomologists, they will cover the entire country, and soon we may expect to see them on the city streets and public parks.

I asked Mr. Eby whether or not the locusts were harmful to children who might pick them up. He said "not to his knowledge." However, there is no telling what the property damage to shrubs and trees will be.

Dr. Sam Williams, the explorer and entomologist at the University of Pittsburgh, is scheduled next week at noon to tell us about termites. I understand that in Pittsburgh and suburbs they are destroying property in a staggering amount.

Tonight Moe (ask any magician) appears or disappears with the Globe Trotter at 6:30 in another black magic broadcast.

'Family' Program On WCAE

What happens when "Pa" plans his vacation without benefit of "suggestions" of the family? Listen to Our Family, on WCAE at 7 tonight, and learn the answer to the oft-asked query. Dave Olson directs the dramatization.

Front Page Dramas are broadcast at 7:45.

Tomorrow night at 11:30 the Sun-Telegraph sends an all-Pittsburgh program to Admiral Byrd's Expedition.

Sidelights On Picking Talent

By AIRCASTER

Early June is becoming recognized as the time when radio annually goes into its summer daze and, in recent years, the period when one can find better shows in the rehearsal studios than on the air. It is audition month, when sample presentations are staged, without stint, for prospective customers while many attractions which filter through the microphone assume relative unimportance.

In the course of one day the array of sample talent to be found in the cubicles not connected with outside microphone lines often counts up to nearly $250,000 worth of entertainment some due for runs this autumn, but the rest destined to fall by the wayside.

In former years, this wayside excess used to be diverted into sustaining spots—of which there are comparatively few at the moment. It reflects perhaps an era of returning prosperity when you note that nine out of every 10 artists or bands in audition currently are refusing sustaining time, preferring to gamble with the law of averages, hoping to land a commercial patron.

But it would delight and refresh the average listener if he or she were privileged to attend the auditions where shows bigger and better than those now available by dialing permit a glimpse into the future of radio.

Local Highlights On WJAS

Plenty of local activity on WJAS tonight, starting with the "Improve My Music Club" at 5:45.

This is followed by Andrew H. Blass' talk at 6; Baron Elliott's band for a half-hour at 6:15 and Paul Gannon at 6:45. Eddie Peyton as usual at 11.

A good bet for Sunday—Italian Echoes at 1:30.

Gets Thrill When Fleet Steams Up Hudson River

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Well, the fleet captured New York with fifty thousand dollars worth of blank cartridges.

It fired a salute at the President. And when ninety-one war boats unload a broadside it ain't Mickey Mouse talking to Minnie.

After that, forty thousand sailors swam ashore to attend a lecture on ancient Greek civilization in the Museum of Natural History.

Those old sea-going boilers still thrill you when they rumble up the Hudson with smoke in their eyes. That's one garden they haven't sunk yet.

If it's all the same to the Pacifists and Geneva we'll keep those boats, the sailors and even the Admiral's rocking-chair hat.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 2.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Among all the big news and headlines of today's news, there was a little item that sure give me great encouragement. It said that some great professor of the Smithsonian Institution had discovered that a person with a "cowlick" was human, and not like the person who had none, as they descended from the ape, as no ape ever had a cowlick. So now instead of having M. D. and P. H. D. (and all those things to publicly advertise your supposed knowledge), why we just take off our hat and show you the old "cowlick," and say "there you apes take a look at a human."

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS

:-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-:

By MARION BRUNOT

Jealousy Causes Jitters And Broken Date

"I've GOT THE JITTERS." That's what troubles your boy friend. He has the JITTERS because he had to work and couldn't take you to that PROM, Heart Broken.

His case of JITTERS is caused by JEALOUSY. Jealous through and through, and it is a miserable feeling, believe me. It can wilt you sooner than an ocean breeze can "unlax" an organdie dress.

Working . . . Sitting there adding up figures, and the lonliness creeping in upon him as a fog from creek in a maleria district . . . Knowing you were at that dance and being encircled by the strong arms of the idle lot who could enjoy themselves . . . There you were, no doubt, listening to the blithering nonsense of his rivals, and all the time he was HOLDING DOWN HIS JOB.

Miss Brunot

"She won't understand," kept thumping up there in his brain. "No use of me being an idiot and weeping on her shoulder . . . She's only a girl. And can't get a fellow's viewpoint."

ANGRY AT LIFE

So he bluffed, and let on he didn't care . . . He even LIGHTLY accused you of caring for the OTHER FELLOW. It was an excellent method by which to let off surplus steam. For he was mad clear through. Mad at his job. Mad at night work . . . Mad at life and the deal it was giving him.

And in one way he was right. You did not UNDERSTAND. And so you write:

Dear Miss Brunot:

I have been going with a fellow whom I love very much. But lately he hasn't been to see me. We never had a quarrel. Although occasionally he would mention other boys. One Saturday night when he was up we came to the subject of the Junior Prom which had been the night before. I had been one of the five girls who had stagged it, and we had come home together. I had been faithful to him.

He couldn't take me to the prom as he was working.

He said someone had told him that a certain other boy had taken me home. I felt he was making this up. Later on, during the evening, we made up this quarrel, though.

DIDN'T ARRIVE

When he went home, he said he would be around Sunday night. But he did not arrive.

I could have other dates, but I am trying to be true to him. What can I do, Miss Brunot, to win him back. I have a handkerchief of his . . . and he has a pin of mine. Should I ask for the pin?

HEARTBROKEN

The whole trouble is the Prom. He's sore that he couldn't be there, and jealous of any other fellow that was there. Be patient and tactful, and all will be well. Maybe you weren't as considerate as you might have been in painting the picture of your good time wnen at this dance.

Girls often resent the very fact that a JOB can keep a man from escorting them places. Are you sure you didn't act a little from the effect of just such an attitude? These are not the days when work grows on bushes, and a young fellow has to cherish a good job. Remember this in dealing with your friend.

You should be proud that he is ambitious enough for the future, to give up pleasures in order that he get along in business.

Do not ask him for the pin. That would spoil everything.

RAMONA PUZZLED

RAMONA is worried, because her best girl friend, the chum of her childhood, is her best beau's sister. This girl has been Ramona's best friend since they were both five years of age, and now they are 25. And what's troubling Ramona is she doesn't know whether she should keep on going to this friend's house, now that she and the brother are keeping steady company. Is it the right thing to do?

Why, of course it is, sister. Keep on sitting on your friend's front porch and having little confabs with her, as you've always done. Of course, be sure these trips aren't a RUSE to see BIG BROTHER. Then it'll be O. K.

She and you both understand how deep your friendship is one for the other . . . Let it be just as deep, but no deeper . . . and brother can have nothing to say whatsoever upon the subject of girls running after the fellows.

LOSE POPUARITY

Dear Miss Brunot:

We are two girls of 19, and only last year were the most popular in town. Our families are broadminded and very highly respected by everyone. We smoke with the full consent of our parents, and drink moderately. But we draw a line on the petting.

In the last month we have met many new fellows. But they date us only once or twice and then quit seeing us. Tell us what is wrong, please. Sincerely,

BILLIE AND STEPHANIE.

Well, Billie and Stephanie, maybe you've become too sure of yourselves. A year of such popularity perhaps went to your young heads. Humility in moderation is good for all of us. Perhaps you have forgotten that sympathy in others, and giving to others admiration instead of expecting it all yourselves go a long way.

I wouldn't worry too much about the state of affairs you describe . . . Every once in a while there has to be a moratorium in everything, even popularity.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

MISS AMERICA SEES WASHINGTON, D. C.---NO. 7

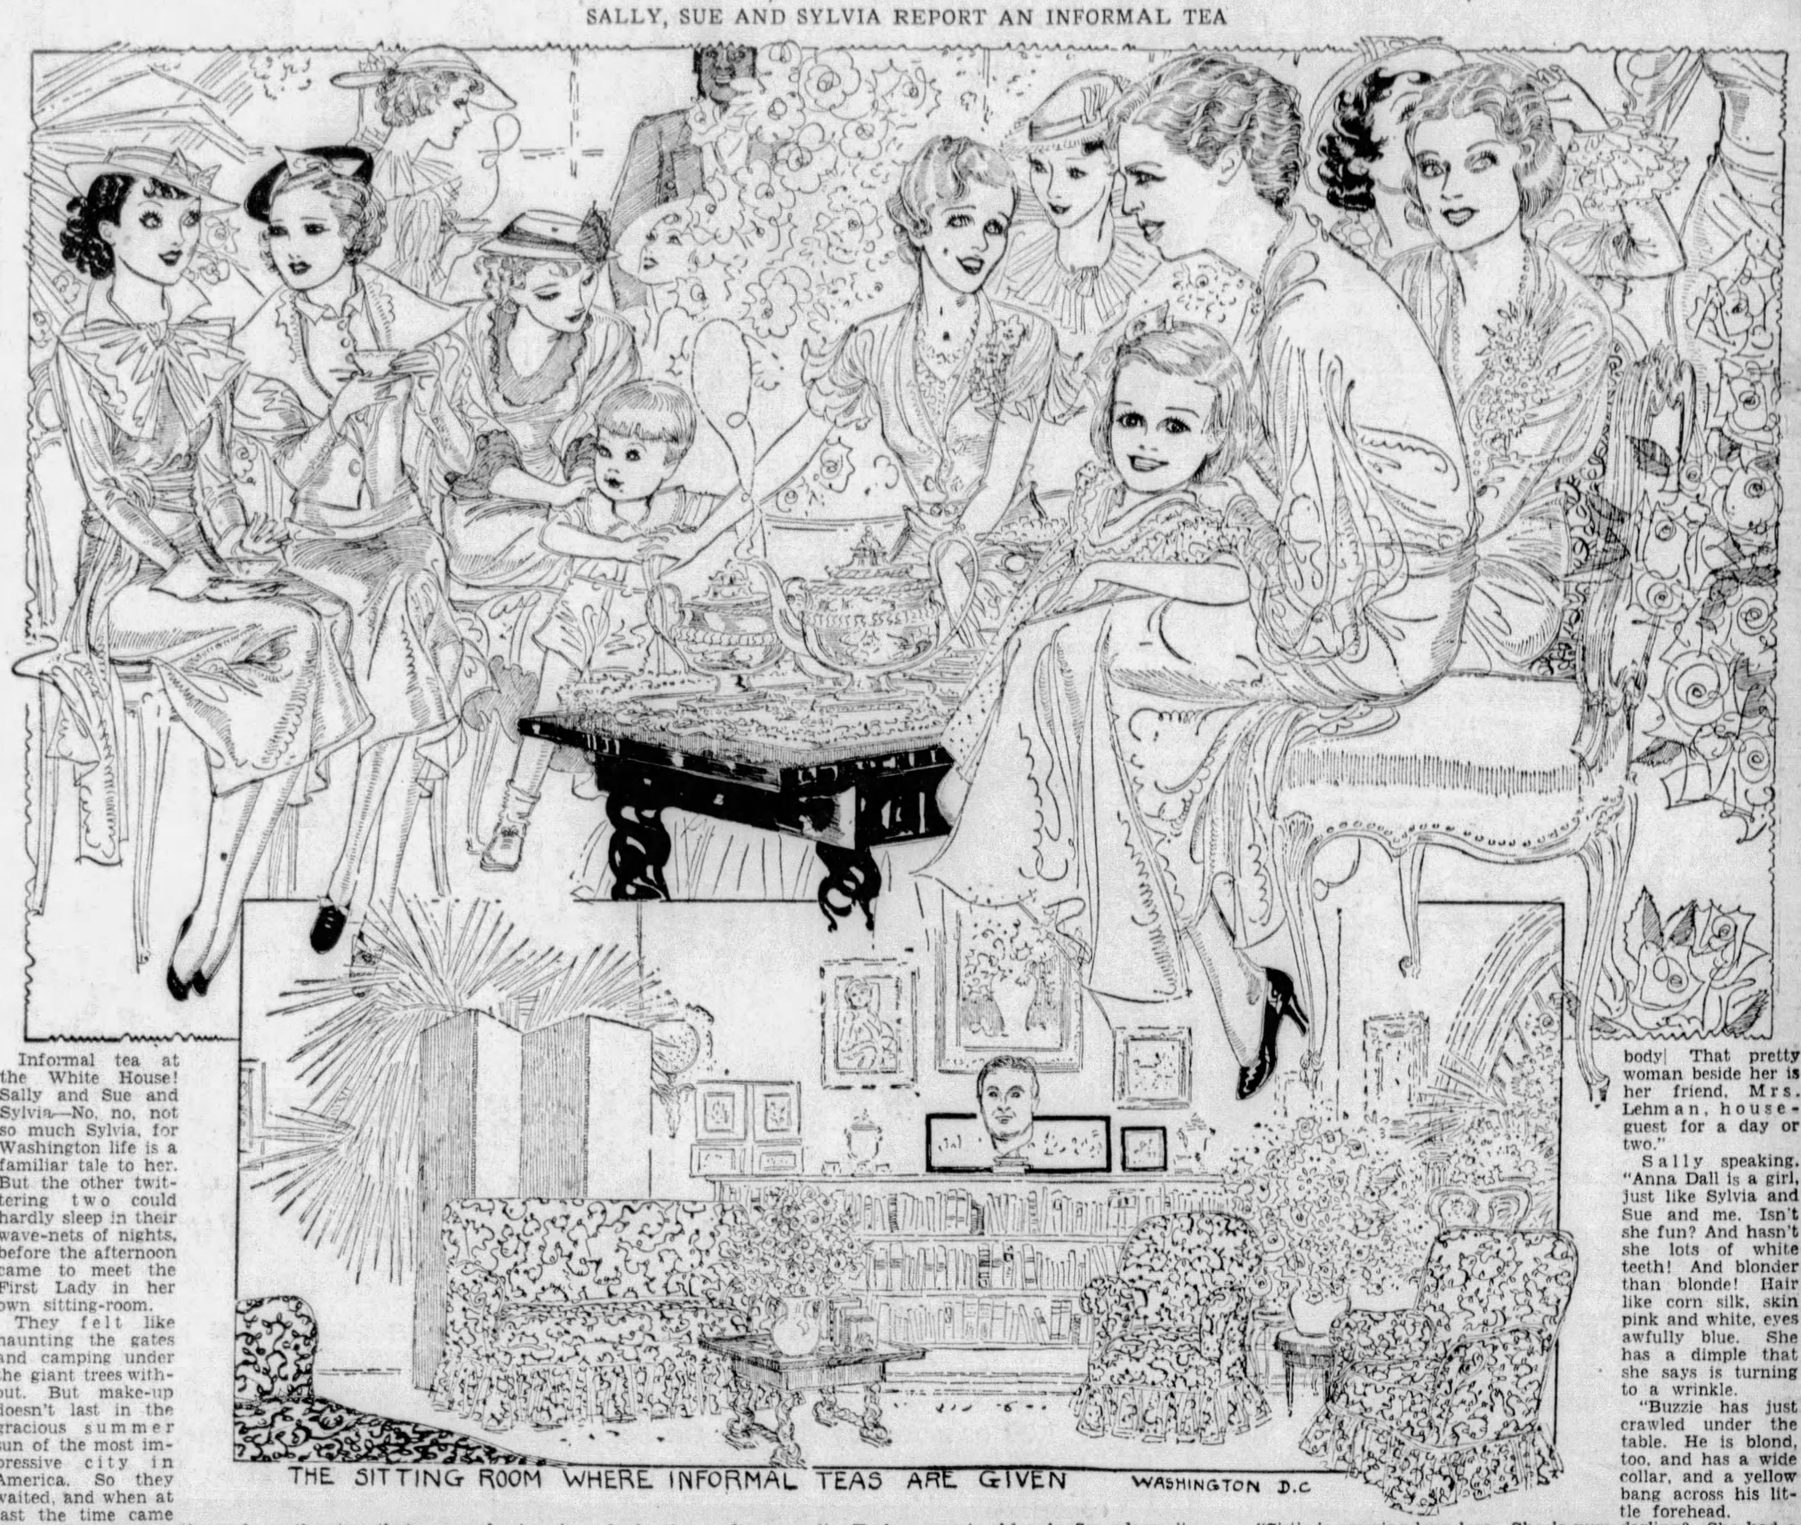
SALLY, SUE AND SYLVIA REPORT AN INFORMAL TEA



THE SITTING ROOM WHERE INFORMAL TEAS ARE GIVEN WASHINGTON D.C

Informal tea at the White House! Sally and Sue and Sylvia—No, no, not so much Sylvia, for Washington life is a familiar tale to her. But the other twittering two could hardly sleep in their wave-nets of nights, before the afternoon came to meet the First Lady in her own sitting-room.

They felt like haunting the gates and camping under the giant trees without. But make-up doesn't last in the gracious summer sun of the most impressive city in America. So they waited, and when at last the time came they walked through the park, up the steps that were only steps in history and tourist books before—all aflutter, very young—and very eager.

Perhaps if the First Lady had any inkling of the excitement that was racing three hearts under three new frocks at the idea of seeing her in her official home, she would be more set up over being First Lady than she ever looks to be.

Sylvia speaking. "First into the cool, wide hall on the main floor. Space, coolness, red and white and gold. Glimpses of lovely, stately rooms, candle-lit, gleaming. Rooms where famous men have stood in glory, gold-braid, fame. Up a turning stair. Through a wide arched door, very Colonial. The perfume of roses hanging in the air.

"Mrs. Roosevelt's sitting-room. Flowers everywhere. Comfy couches and chairs covered with creamy chintz, with a cherry-red leafy vine curling over it. Turkey carpet, old red. See where it has been carefully mended! A bronze bust of the President in the center of a white, long, built-in bookcase. Pictures, many of them. Water-colors, paintings. Some look old, and as though painted by amateurs and sent as gifts—and appreciatively kept. Drawings framed in black on the bookcase, too. The arch of the window takes up all the end of the room. It is crowded with the gayety of flowers."

Sue speaking. "Tea is served on the low table. Elaborate silver service on a huge silver tray. A portly colored butler deftly and unctuously places it before Mrs. Roosevelt. Delicious thin sandwiches. Sweets. Isn't she nice! Nicer than any of her pictures. More delicate looking. The darkest of light blue eyes! Very fine hair. Fine hair goes with fine natures, they say. She wears a blue dress, the color of a hydrangea flower. She is nice to everybody! That pretty woman beside her is her friend, Mrs. Lehman, house-guest for a day or two."

Sally speaking. "Anna Dall is a girl, just like Sylvia and Sue and me. Isn't she fun? And hasn't she lots of white teeth! And blonder than blonde! Hair like corn silk, skin pink and white, eyes awfully blue. She has a dimple that she says is turning to a wrinkle.

"Buzzie has just crawled under the table. He is blond, too, and has a wide collar, and a yellow bang across his little forehead.

"Sistie is growing long legs. She is pure darling? She had a ...id, but her mamma cut it off to make her comfortable swimmin...—and there was an awful time in the First Family!

"Sistie and Buzzie, otherwise little Curtis and Anna, LOVE the Marine Band. And circuses! Sistie wore 'pants' to school, and only one boy laughed—and he got sent out of the room! I'm having a lovely time."

* * *

Sylvia, Sally and Sue walked on their little high heels down the curve of the shady front walk, looked back at the gracious old building, its white columns in sun and shadow, and said to each other, "The White House is lovely. Tea there is grand. And the First Family are nice American folks!"—NELL BRINKLEY.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Pre-emptive Bids

Pre-emptive Opening bids are extremely effective at the Contract table, often not so much because the contract undertaken is fulfilled as because they permit the taking of a paying penalty through preventing opponents, who may have very fine hands, from reaching makable contracts—possibly games—of their own.

The theory of Pre-emptive bids is, of course, extremely simple. A pre-emptive bid must have as its backbone a long trump suit which insures, assuming reasonably favorable distribution, that the loss will not be great so far as that suit is concerned. With length in one suit, there is necessarily shortness and perhaps voids in the others, and the design of the Pre-emptive Opening bid is thus not only to seek to buy a contract—perhaps a losing one—cheaply before the opponents can find out whether their hands fit for a game or Slam, but also to camouflage the defensive weakness of the hand. When a Pre-emptive game bid is made and the Dummy is laid down containing two or three tricks in side suits, the Declarer feels reasonably well satisfied, even though one opponent has doubled, indicating one or more trump tricks.

The hand below, played in a New York bridge club recently, is an example of a very good Pre-emptive bid and a rather fortunate result which followed it.

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ 9 ♡ A K 7 5 ◇ J 9 8 6 ♣ K 9 6 2
♠ A 10 5 4 ♡ Q 9 3 2 ◇ 7 5 ♣ A 10 7	North West East South	♠ — ♡ 10 6 4 ◇ A Q 4 3 ♣ Q J 8 5 4 3
	♠ K Q J 8 7 6 3 2 ♡ J 8 ◇ K 10 2 ♣ —

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	4 ♠	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

South's Opening bid of four spades was based upon what he considered the probability of eight tricks in his own hand—in other words, it was an overbid of two tricks. West, with two trump tricks and the Ace of another suit, felt that here was a splendid opportunity to punish vulnerable opponents for overbidding. Hence the Double.

The Opening lead was a heart, and when the Dummy went down everything from the South standpoint appeared serene as but two diamonds and one spade should normally be lost. The Ace of hearts was played to the first trick, and a spade was led. When East did not follow, the situation now appeared quite different. West won this trick with the Ace and returned another heart. The King was played, and the nine of diamonds was led from Dummy. Fortunately for South, East did not play the Ace, and the contract of four-odd, which should have been defeated one trick, was fulfilled, South losing only one diamond and two spades.

While West's Double was apparently very close, it was fully justified in the scoring situation, unlike other close Doubles which prove of assistance to the Declarer.

South erred in his play. He should have visioned the necessity of the diamond finesse and taken it at once. In other words, even before playing a card from Dummy he should have made a general plan of the entire play, which would have indicated the necessity of the diamond finesse being taken at once. Two entries to the Dummy might be required, and the only entries were in the suit which was opened—namely, hearts.

(Mrs. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your question to Josephine Culbertson, in care of the Sun-Telegraph.)

Given in Marriage -:- A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Seeks Advice of Madge and Hugh

I shot a glance at Hugh and Lillian to see if they also had noted the peculiarity in Samuel Brixton's attire. But Lilliam, having given Brixton her contemptuous dismissal, had turned away without a second glance at him.

Hugh? I could not determine. His face was impassive as ever, as he stood aside to let her pass him. I knew that he had been intently watching Brixton, to see that he made no movement which would imperil Lillian, but I guessed that he had followed the old injunction, "Watch eyes and hands," and had paid no particular attention to any other part of Brixton's body.

If Hugh had noticed the same incongruity in Sam Brixton's costume which I had seen, I was very sure that he would acquaint Lillian with it without delay. I would wait, therefore, I told myself, before making any comment, until I should be assured by Hugh's silence that he had noticed nothing.

Lillian did not speak until Hugh had closed the door after her. Then she struck her hands together with a little gesture of exasperation.

"I suppose I made a colossal idiot of myself," she said ruefully. "If he wasn't the person whose football Hugh heard on the balcony, I've only insulted him gratuitously, besides putting possible ideas in his head, a la the famous maternal injunction, 'Don't put beans in your noses.' But the conviction that he was the man just seemed to seize me by the throat. I'm not so sure, now. What do you think, Hugh?"

HARD TO DETERMINE

Hugh waited several seconds before answering.

"It's something that's extremely hard to determine with so little real evidence," he said at last, and his tone, I realized, was decidedly judicial. I wondered if Lillian's patent prejudice might not have made him "bend backward."

"All we have to go on in his case are two things. His window is near enough for him to have been able to reach the balcony and get back again—and he is spending the night here instead of at The Larches, where we all supposed him to be.

"But against those two facts we have the difficulty which a man with so unwieldy a body would experience in getting back into his window from the balcony, and his very plausible story of his wife's headache."

"Sam's body isn't so unwieldy," Lillian said. "He's stout, of course, but he plays a surprisingly good game of tennis, and I've seen him do other stunts impossible to a man who didn't keep himself in pretty fair physical shape."

"But granted all that," Hugh persisted, "we really have very little basis for any suspicion of Brixton. If we had something tangible—"

MADGE GIVES CLUE

"I think we have," I said quietly.

Both Lillian and Hugh, who had been facing each other, whirled and stared at me.

"What do you mean?" Lillian demanded.

"Didn't he give you the impression that he had just arisen from bed?" I asked.

"Yea, verily," Lillian replied. "But he looked the part—pajamas, robe, slippers—"

"And inside the slippers, heavy white woolen stocks, with garters carefully fastening them," I said.

"What?" Lillian asked explosively.

"Are you positive of that?" Hugh said quickly, then added confusedly, "I beg pardon. I know you are unusually accurate in your observations."

"She is; and she has confirmed my suspicions," Lillian struck in. "He might, by some stretch of the imagination, have been sleeping in woolen socks—poor circulation and cold feet, perhaps—but garters! That's something else again.

"You've solved the problem, Madge. Sam was on the balcony trying to find out what he could about what's going to happen on Marion's birthday. What's that?"

We all heard it this time—the sound of footsteps on the balcony, and then a faint rapping upon the window.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Meningitis a Contagious Disease

For many years little of value was known about meningitis. It was a dreaded disease and little hope could be offered the victim. It was believed to be incurable and the few cases that survived the infection were looked upon as having been miraculously cured. I am glad to say that medical science is now able to combat and cure this serious infection, providing the disease is recognized in its early stages.

Dr. Copeland

Meningitis, as its name implies, is an inflammation of the covering membranes of the brain, or spinal cord. This inflammation is caused by a germ. Contrary to a former conception, it is not caused by one kind of germ, but one of several germs may cause the inflammation. For example, it may be the result of the "pneumococcus," the germ of pneumonia. Or it may come from the typhoid fever germ, or the germ of the common cold or grippe. Still other germs may produce meningitis.

The disease is often confused with cerebrospinal fever. The latter is a serious and often fatal disease. It is only caused by infection with one germ. This germ is called meningococcus."

Meningistis is a highly contagious disease, easily spread from one person to another. The germ enters the body through an abrasion in the mucous membrane of the nose or throat. From there, it reaches the blood stream and is carried to the covering of the brain or spinal cord where it produces a marked inflammation.

Cerebrospinal fever is far more dangerous and serious than meningitis. The danger of getting it is increased by the so-called "carriers." These are persons who harbor the germs of this disease but who in all probability are unaware of the menace they are to others.

They are a constant source of danger to the health of a community. Fortunately, rigid health regulations and state laws require periodic examinations of all persons suspected of harboring the meningococcus. Carriers of this disease must be isolated and prevented from spreading the infection to others.

The victim of meningitis complains of severe headaches and high fever. Nausea, vomiting, delirium and marked nervous symptoms, are other signs that must not be overlooked. The disease may easily be confused with other brain disorders, but the diagnosis is confirmed by tapping the spinal canal and examining the fluid. This fluid is subjected to special tests.

Many persons fear a spinal tap and often refuse permission for this valuable aid in diagnosis. I believe this hesitancy is due to a misconcetion and unwarranted fear of the test. Let me assure you, it is a harmless procedure. In many instances, immediate relief from headache and other disturbing complaints is experienced by the sufferer after a spinal tap. It relieves increased pressure on the brain and aids in combatting the infection.

Answers to Health Queries

A Constant Reader. Q.—What is the cause and what will cure hemorrhoids? Is an operation always necessary?

A.—Hemerrhoids are usually due to constipation. Proper diet and regular habits should bring about relief. If the condition has persisted over a long period of time and there is great discomfort an operation may be necessary. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

J. F.—I am troubled with cramps in my legs. What can I do for this?

A.—Cramps are usually due to poor circulation, or undue exertion. Application of heat sometimes proves helpful.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The selection of the tooth brush is an important matter if the little pearls are to stay sound and healthy.

Purchase a brush that is small, with handle so formed that the bristles will pass conveniently over the entire surfaces of the teeth—front, back and sides.

Touching the floor when legs are rigid (and without bending the knees) will reduce the size of the abdomen. It really works, if there is a will to keep on with the exercise.

Stand erect. Lift the hands high. Lower arms, head and torso, bending at the hips (not at the waist) and touch the floor.

Fashion Flashes

The printed word is that prints for evening are fashionable. A new model shows large white flowers with green leaves on a bright blue ground. The bodice is held by a halter necklace of large crystal beads. There is a train that falls from a shirred point.

The rustle of spring is this year's crop of taffeta coats and dresses. A charming evening wrap is of rustling taffeta in navy blue, done on form-fitting, full-length lines with elbow-length puffed sleeves. A series of small tucks in back fit the waistline. Nice with red or white.

Household Hin

If you do not wish to have your room repapered, try rubbing down the walls with a perfectly dry india rubber sponge. This will clean them beautifully.

Curtain pins which have been used during the winter months are often rusted with the damp. To remove rust put them into a jar and cover with liquid ammonia. Leave for half an hour, stirring now and then with a stick, then take them out and wipe dry with a cloth.

STRIKE OF DEANS OFF, DIZZY TO FACE BUCS TODAY

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Baseball Pacts on Spot
Card Chiefs Escape Jam
Bucs Still Birds' Jinx

Altering Batting Styles
Demaree Reveals Blunder
Star Athletes Pass Out

The quickly settled strike of Dizzy Dean, Cardinal pitcher, who demanded the boosting of Brother Paul's $3,000 salary, might have developed a serious side and involved a most important principle of organized baseball by creating a precedent that contracts are not binding. That Dizzy was coaxed back into line in short order saved the St. Louis club owners from being placed in a tough spot. Of course, they could have raised the question as to whether the Deans would have accepted a reduction if they had been in a losing streak instead of winning 10 straight games, but at the same time they would have been up against the necessity of pacifying the rebellious pitchers to keep the team's pennant chances from being ruined, and if they had done that they would have opened the way for players in general to repudiate contracts during the course of a race. The general view is that all contract matters should be settled finally during the off season, though it is the custom of many clubs voluntarily to raise the pay of youngsters who make good as regulars after being signed as mere experiments.

Dizzy Dean

It might have been a break for the Pirates if the Deans had deferred the settlement of their controversy until the Cardinals had left Pittsburgh, as the fact that the usually effective pitching of Dizzy and Paul must be faced doesn't brighten the outlook for the remainder of the series. At that, the success of the Bucs in breaking their five-game losing streak by a ninth-inning rally against Wild Bill Hallahan in a game that had appeared lost gave the local fans hope that the Gibsons would keep up during the series the remarkable record they have made for beating the Redbirds under any conditions. No matter how well the Cards may go against other clubs, they are rarely able to get past the Pirates. Not only did the Bucs take four of the first six games with St. Louis this year, but in all of the last five seasons except 1931 they won the series by decisive margins. Of the 116 games played with the Cardinals since the start of the 1929 season, the Pirates have won 71 against only 45 defeats, a percentage of .612.

NOT ALWAYS WISE TO CHANGE BATSMAN

Whether or not it's good policy to change the hitting style of a player appears to depend on the individual batsman and the nature of the shift. There's no question that it works out successfully in some cases. Gus Suhr, for example, is a greatly improved clouter since he changed his batting stance at the plate and started hitting to left field. Another who has been helped by a shift in his style is Dolph Camilli, understudy to Manager Grimm at first base for the Cubs.

When Camilli came up to the Bruins for a tryout, it was said he would not be able to hit major league pitching. While he turned in occasional long drives, his showing in the main bore out the dope. He wasn't hitting up to big league requirements. Recently, however, there was a change. The Cub strategy board noticed that the big fellow was crowding the plate and suggested that he stand farther back in the box. Camilli followed the tip, and his hitting improved immediately. Of course he has no chance to supplant Manager Grimm as a regular as long as Charley can keep going, but the husky recruit has become a valuable man to have around, for in addition to being a fine fielder he now has a punch.

DIFFERENT RESULT IN CASE OF DEMAREE

Yet the same club which got such good results in changing Camilli's hitting style apparently made a mistake in trying the same thing with another player. Evidence of this is found in the sensational slugging which Outfielder Frank Demaree, Bruin farm hand, has been doing for Los Angeles in the Pacific Coast League. After Demaree went to the Chicago club from Sacramento, the Cub chiefs tried to make him hit to right field, unmindful of the fact that he gets most of his power into left-field drives, as he showed at Forbes Field last season with a terrific smash over the port wall.

Frank Demaree

Frank's batting fell off in consequence, and he was sent back to the Coast League this year to brush up in his stickwork. What did Manager Jack Lelivelt do but ditch the right-field stuff and let the player hit straight away, and you can read the answer in the fact that Demaree's hitting has been the sensation of the Coast League season. In his first 51 games he made 85 hits in 195 times at bat for the ponderous average of .436, and his wallops included 19 homers to put him far ahead of all the other sluggers in the loop. And at that, the Coast League ball is not as lively as formerly. Demaree's great record speaks for itself as to the wisdom of Lelivelt's policy.

COLLEGIATE STARS END CAREERS TODAY

Some pretty good athletes sing their collegiate swan songs in the Pitt intercollegiate track and field meet at the Pitt Stadium this afternoon. Quite a few coaches, both in track and football, and not only in the tri-state district but in outside terirtory as well, will be able to breathe just a little more easily when the final event is over.

At least a score of gridiron mentors, for example, will be glad to learn that Mike Sebastian and Howdy O'Dell are to figure no longer in intercollegiate athletics after their performances at the Stadium today. Mike and Howdy have been Pitt's great pair of halfbacks on the gridiron in the fall, and broad jumper and pole vaulter, respectively, in the spring.

DEPARTURE EASES TENSION OF FOEMEN

The eased tension will be especially noticeable around South Bend in the case of Sebastian's departure. Coaches at other schools also will breathe a sigh of relief, but Mike has been a thorn in the side of Notre Dame, in particular. And chances are that Elmer Layden, Howard Jones, Bernie Bierman, Dana Bible and others who have to wrestle with the autumnal task of stopping the Panthers will shed no tears over the fact that they will not be required to reckon with O'Dell's quick kicks in the next pigskin campaign.

Howdy O'Dell

Then there are Bill Keller, Pitt's star middle distance runner; Howard Spencer, Joe Beggs and Bib Evans, of Geneva, a track team in themselves; and Miller, of West Virginia, the district's ace hammer thrower. It's the end of the collegiate trail for all these men, who have starred in a track season which opened in rather dull fashion, but which, enlivened by the phenomenal spurt of Coach Carl Olson's well-balanced Panther team, comes to a colorful conclusion today with the outstanding athletes of this region competing at their peaks.

TRACK STARS BATTLE IN PITT MEET

By JESS CARVER

The 1934 intercollegiate track and field campaign closes up shop hereabouts this afternoon with the staging of the first annual Pitt Intercollegiates. A field of 11 teams will compete in the stadium event, in which the Panther hosts are top-heavy favorites to gallop off with the majority of points and at least seven of the first places, mebbe more.

Besides Pitt, Carnegie Tech, West Virginia, Wash.-Jeff, Juniata, Waynesburg, Grove City, Geneva, Clarion, Mt. Union and Temple will be represented, from full sized squads from West Virginia, Geneva and Waynesburg to Temple's one-man entry of Bill Wudyka in the two-mile.

No fewer than 10 outstanding performers, who have been consistent in their performances all season, will compete. There will be Arvil Fleming, of Pitt, and Woodford, of West Virginia, in the dashes; Spencer, of Geneva, in the low hurdles and high jump; Bob Evans, another Covenanter, in the high timbers; Ken Wagonhouser, of Pitt, in the mile; Emil Bonavita, of Pitt, in the weights; Joe Carver, of Grove City, undefeated to date, in the discus, and Beggs, of Geneva, in the javelin, and Miller, of West Virginia, in the hammer.

Waynesburg will offer a stellar all-round performer in Sheldon, who does several things well and figures to cut quite a figure in the battle for individual honors.

Pitt, bound to score in every event, will lead the field, with West Virginia a good bet to finish second and either Geneva or Waynesburg third.

The district records in the javelin, hurdles and mile will be under heavy fire, with the possibility of new standards being set in the 880 and broad jump.

A program of five events for freshmen performers has been added to the program by Coach Carl Olson, of Pitt, the gent who thought up this fine way in which to keep the boys out in the fresh air and sunlight. The Yearlings will perform in the 100, 120-yard high hurdles, mile, pole vault and javelin.

Trials will get under way at noon, with the finals scheduled for 1:30 o'clock. The boys should be well out of the trenches by 4 o'clock or thereabouts.

SHUTE TO PLAY AT OAKMONT

By TOM BIRKS

Denny Shute, British Open champion, paired with Tom Hodgins, trick shot artist, will meet Emil Loeffler, home professional, and Perry Del Vecchio, of Greensburg, in a four ball, best ball match at the Oakmont Country Club tomorrow.

The match is scheduled to get under way at 2 o'clock and will be followed by an exhibition of trick shots by Hodgins, who is classed as the greatest trick shot artist in the world.

The Caddie Masters will hold a pro-amateur tourney at the Churchill Valley Golf Club Monday.

The stunt was witnessed by news reporters and a battery of movie cameramen. TELLING TIME BY FLOWERS—One of the most unique clocks in existence is the Floral Clock at Water Works Park, Detroit. For 40 years this clock has run regularly and kept accurate time, and it never has been wound. The clock was designed and constructed by E. A. Play begins at 1:45 p. m.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Back to your dugouts, boys, there'll be no strike today!

The walkout of the Dean boys having been settled without calling in General Johnson, the first doubleheader of the season is on tap in the Oakland Orchard today.

And no less a personage than Jerome Dizzy the First, walking delegate-at-large, will go to Fogarty Knoll, perhaps in the first clash, which gets under way at 1:45 p. m.

The Dean strike, reaching a climax yesterday, was settled last night when Manager Frank Frisch met with the elder of the two brothers. Jerome struck for more money for his kid brother, who makes only $3,000 as he wins regularly for the Cards. The other brother draws down $7,500. Dizzy contends his brother should get a raise toute de suite, and he probably will.

The trouble, in any event, is all settled. The terms of the adjustment were not given out, but all hands appeared to be satisfied.

As he left the Oakland Orchard last night, Manager Frisch was in a high dungeon over a decision at the home plate that lost the Redbirds a 4-3 decision to the Buccos. At that moment the strike of the Dean boys was of little import to the Fordham Flash.

Shouted Frank:

"Strike for what! If I am not mistaken both of the Dean boys signed their contracts before they went to spring training. That's what I did and I expect to go through with it to the best of my ability.

"You can say for me that I will not go out on any strike.

LOU GEHRIG OPENS TENTH YEAR OF UNINTERRUPTED SERVICE

STAR SLUGGER SETS GREAT RECORD

Associated Press.

Henry Louis Gehrig plunged into his tenth year of uninterrupted baseball service with the New York Yankees today. It was on June 1, 1925, that Lou, who hadn't been away from the Columbia campus for long, was sent into the Yankee lineup as a pinch-hitter for Peewee Wanninger. The next day he was given Wally Pipp's place at first base.

And Gehrig still is there after nine years and 1,389 ball games. He broke the old major league endurance record set by Everett Scott last year and still is going strong because he says there's no reason why he shouldn't play every day.

HAS FINE RECORD

In that long stretch, not including more than 300 exhibition games and 19 World Series contests, Lou compiled a batting average of .343 up through the 1933 campaign, and his current mark is only five points below that level.

Lou couldn't do much yesterday to celebrate the anniversary, as the Yanks took a 10-to-5 trimming from Philadelphia. He made one hit and knocked in one run, but the A's smacked Jimmy Deshong and Burleigh Grimes for 12 blows and made good use of a couple of Yankee errors.

The defeat left New York holding second place in the American League standing by only a half game, as the Detroit Tigers downed Chicago, 3 to 1. A combination of six-hit hurling by Schoolboy Rowe, Goose Goslin's homer and Bill Rogell's timely hitting settled the tight game. Cleveland, the league leader, was rained out at St. Louis.

The Boston Red Sox batted almost twice around against three Washington pitchers in the first inning, scored nine runs and walloped the Senators, 13 to 1, behind Herb Pennock.

Efforts to straighten out the National League tangle served only to shorten the St. Louis Cardinals' lead. Pittsburgh, down in a fourth-place tie with the Boston Braves, gave the Cards a 4-to-3 setback when Bill Hallahan cracked in the ninth and let three runs in.

BRAVES COP MARATHON

The Braves had to go 16 innings in the longest National League game of the season to beat Brooklyn, 8-7, after scoring six times in the eighth to overcome the Dodgers' 5-1 first inning lead.

Maintaining their second place tie, the Giants beat the Phillies, 4-3, on a ninth inning run driven home by Manager Bill Terry, and Chicago's Cubs downed the Reds, 3-1, when Jim Weaver hurled a six-hit ball and his battery mate, Gabby Hartnett, lashed a long homer over the distant Cincinnati fence for the winning runs.

OLIVER NINE WINS TITLE

By JULIUS LEVIN

Oliver High School's baseball team is "in" as far as the Section II title in the City League is concerned and is ready to meet either Westinghouse or Schenley for the league crown, whenever the two Section I rivals settle things in their division.

Oliver sewed up the Section II gonfalon yesterday, defeating Carrick, 13 to 9, after a tough battle. Six runs in the fourth inning put the game away for the Brighton road nine. The score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Oliver	1 1 1 6 4 0 0—13	14	4
Carrick	0 0 1 3 2 0 3— 9	8	2

Batteries—Gush, Marnell, Haitman and Kenny; Sienta, Dickson and Schmitt.

Westinghouse remained in the running in Section I by walloping South, 16 to 4. The Westinghouse attack was featured by the hitting of McMahon, who collected three safe blows. The score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
South	1 0 1 1 0 1 0—	4	5	5
Westinghouse	1 0 1 3 0 1 x—16	16	2

Batteries—Pzwara, Hovan, Semich and Popovich, Olivo, Loomis and Bauer.

Peabody downed Vocational in an exhibition game, 12 to 0. Prospect Junior eliminated Arsenal, 20 to 4, in the first round of play for the junior title.

East Huntingdon Township's track and field team, W. P. I. A. L. champion, defeated Canonsburg, 72 to 45, in a dual meet at Canonsburg yesterday. It was the first defeat in a dual meet for the Gunners this year.

ITALIANS WIN

FLORENCE, Italy, June 2.—The Italian soccer team yesterday defeated Spain, 1 to 0, in a second round playoff game of their 1-1 tie of Thursday. The Italians will meet Austria in the semi-finals tomorrow.

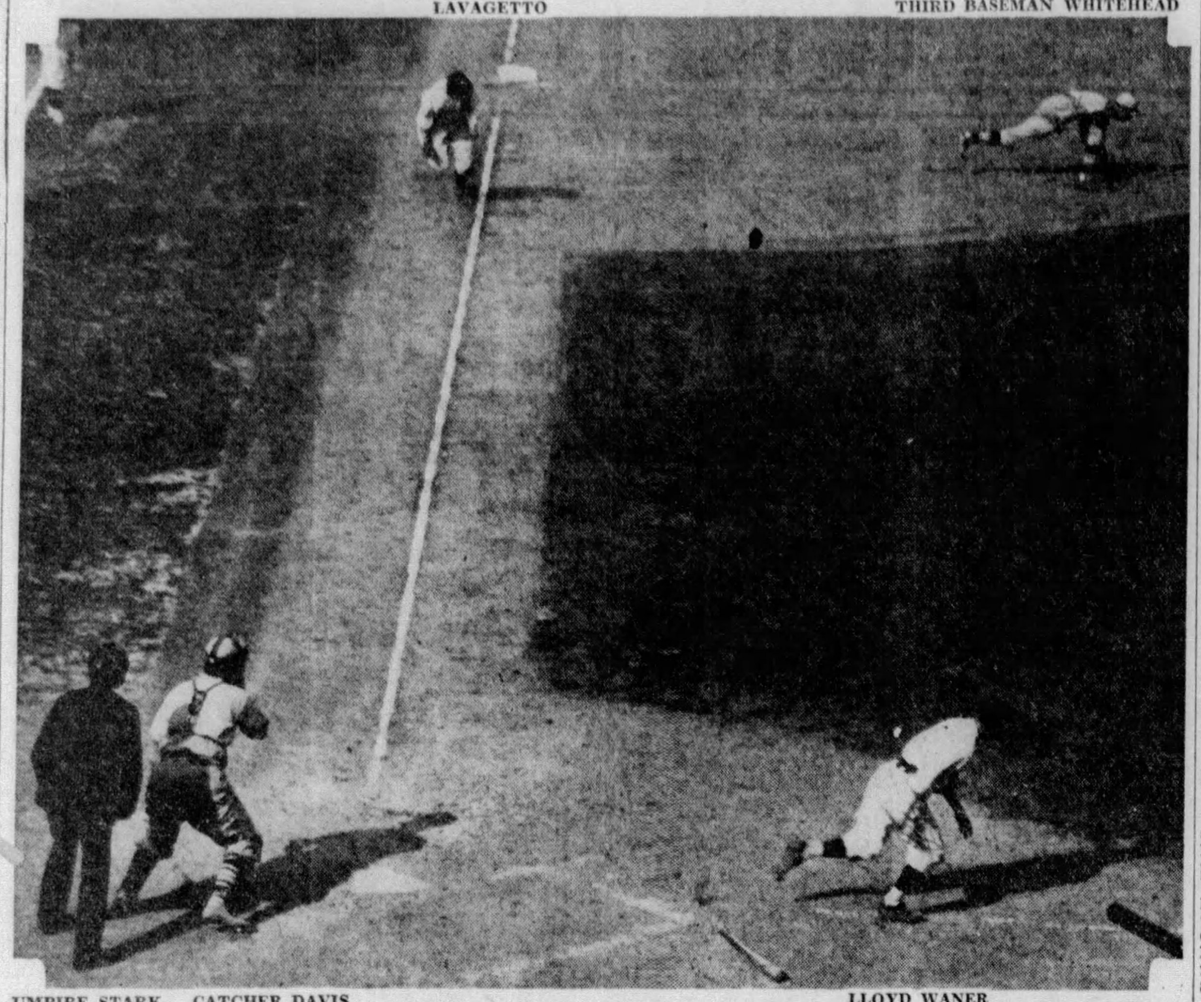
Winning Run Which Ended Bucs' Losing Streak



LAVAGETTO — THIRD BASEMAN WHITEHEAD

UMPIRE STARK — CATCHER DAVIS — LLOYD WANER

The Pirates put on a ninth-inning rally to score three runs and beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-3, in the first game of their series at Forbes Field yesterday and end a long losing streak.

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture shows high spot of victory, Lavagetto scoring winning run on Lloyd Waner's infield hit with the bases loaded. The play at the plate was hotly disputed.

YAROSZ BOXES FOURTH CHAMP

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

When Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, boxes Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, in the main bout of the benefit show for the family of the late Mike Ray, at Hickey Park, Millvale, Monday night, he will be facing his fourth opponent who has held a world title.

Teddy boxed Vince Dundee twice, defeated him each time, before the latter won the middleweight crown; defeated Tommy Freeman, former welterweight champion, and recently took the measure of Ben Jeby, a former middleweight titleholder. He is donating his services for the Latzo bout, Mike Ray having been one of his pals.

ROSS LIKES BAER

Barney Ross, the new welterweight, as well as lightweight and junior-welterweight champion, likes Max Baer to beat Primo Carnera in their heavyweight title bout week after next, provided Max can score a knockout within six rounds. If it goes more than that he thinks Primo will box his way to victory. Jack Johnson, who picked Ross to beat Jimmy McLarnin, likes Baer to win.

Softball Protest Board To Be Named Soon

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary.

Three prominent local men have been asked to serve as a protest committee to pass on any disputed games in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament, which gets under way week after next, with entries closing at midnight Wednesday. As soon as their acceptance is obtained their identity will be revealed.

It is not expected that there will be many protests, for the rules are clear-cut and games may be protested only on misinterpretations of the rules and not on the umpires' judgment. In addition, a $5 protest fee will have to be filed with each protest lodged, to discourage the filing of petty protests. This will be returned in the event the protest is allowed, otherwise it will revert to the tournament fund, which will be used to purchase trophies and medals and send the winning senior team to the national championship tournament in Chicago. No protest will be entertained if the team lodging it walks off the field and forfeits the game.

Interest in the tournament is growing daily, and it is believed that upwards of 200 teams will be in line when the last entry is posted. Many of the teams already have sent in their registration cards and others who have received them are urged to do so immediately. No team will be bracketed for the seven weeks' preliminary round robin series unless its registration cards and fees are received and filed.

The time is growing short. Don't wait until the last minute and then expect to be listed in the field. Clip your entry blank now and mail it in, or, if you have done so and have received your registration cards, get them in without delay.

Latest entries in the tournament include:

STOGIES DROP FIFTH FRAY

With Beckley and Johnstown burning up the Mid-Atlantic League, Huntington and Wheeling are toppling toward the cellar in the throes of a losing streak.

The first-place Beckley boys downed Wheeling, 3 to 2, last night. It was the fifth straight loss for the Stogies.

Meanwhile the Johnnies captured their fifth straight, defeating the hard-luck Charleston Senators, 6 to 5. The Senators, striving vainly to overtake the Pennsylvanians' early lead, scored four runs in the late innings.

Huntington, which led the league a short time ago, bowed to Dayton, 12 to 10, and went into a tie with Zanesville for fourth place.

Zanesville also "took it on the chin." Springfield touched Pitcher Woody Davis for four hits and a walk in the eighth and defeated the Greys, 4 to 2.

In the Penn State Association, McKeesport and Jeannette battled to a 1-1, 13-inning deadlock; Charleroi downed Greensburg, 4 to 2, in 10 innings, and Washington won over Monessen, 8-6.

SWIM CLASS GRADUATES

Allen Risedorph, swimming coach at Carnegie Tech, will be the principal speaker at exercises attending the graduation of 385 grade school boys from the third annual Y. M. C. A. swimming school, at the Allegheny Y at 7:30 tonight. Dr. L. E. Van Kirk and J. F. Landis, chairman of the Boys' Work Committee and the Physical Department, respectively, will present the diplomas. Exhibitions of speed swimming and fancy diving by members of the Allegheny Y swimming team will complete the program.

UHLE RELEASED

NEW YORK, June 2.—The New York Yankees have announced the unconditional release of George Uhle, veteran right-hander.

NEWARK NINE PLAYS HERE

The Newark Dodgers open a four-game series with the Pittsburgh Crawfords at Greenlee Field this afternoon, the game being called for 4:15 o'clock. Tomorrow, the teams clash in a doubleheader, and on Monday a twilight affair will be staged at 6 o'clock. Monday will be ladies' day and the women folk will be admitted free. Dick Lundy, classed as the greatest shortstop in Negro baseball, is the playing manager of the Newark club.

The Dormont Club of the City League, meets the Resurrection Club of Brookline, at the newly built Mt. Lebanon field this evening. This is new territory for the City Leaguers.

Both the Crawfords and Homestead Grays turned in victories yesterday. The Grays defeated Midland, 9 to 7 at Midland, and the Crawfords whipped the Chicago American Giants at York, Pa., 10 to 5. The Grays play at Flint, Mich., today and tomorrow.

In last evening's City League engagements, Parmelee upset Dormont, 6 to 3, Ernie Vavra having the best of Joe Vitelli in a slab duel. A four-run outburst in the fifth inning paved the way for the Parmelee triumph. In the other game in the league, Homewood walloped the Vaughans, 14 to 5, the 18-hit attack of the victors being led by Mitchell and Cholko, both getting three safe blows.

In the County League, Hillman blanked Duplate, 5 to 0, and Fort Pitt won over Lou's, 6 to 3.

Vines and Tilden Gain Net Final

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—(AP.)—Two of America's one-time amateur tennis greats, Ellsworth Vines and Big Bill Tilden, overcame semi-final round opponents to reach the finals of the middle states pro championship tourney at Germantown Cricket Club.

Vines encountered stiff opposition in another former Davis Cup player, Vinnie Richards, and downed him only after four bristling sets, 1-6, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4. Tilden overwhelmed the French ace, Henri Cochet, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0.

COLLEGIAN SIGNED

RELAY MARK FALLS

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—(AP.)—The world 880-yard four-man relay record was bettered by a full second here last night by a University of Southern California quartet. The Trojan four passed the baton to a mark of 1 minute, 24.8 seconds.

BUCCOS, CARDS PLAY TWICE

Laying bricks and digging ditches are highly honorable professions, but personally I prefer to stay in baseball. As the fellow said, 'I'm holding on—not holding out.'"

FRENCH, LUCAS SET

Encouraged over their tense victory of yesterday, the Pirates will throw Larry French and Red Lucas at the Redbirds today. Boss Frisch said he would use Southpaw Jim Mooney in one contest of this afternoon. As a result of their defeat of yesterday the Cardinals' hold on first place was reduced to one-half of a full game.

Ralph Birkofer pitched well enough to win an ordinary game in the first clash of the Buccos and Redbirds, but Ralph was placed in a tough spot through an error by Pie Traynor which paved the way for a 1-1 deadlock in the fifth. Manager Frisch helped to steal a run in the eighth that put the Redbirds in front and ere the foe could be retired they had amassed two tallies.

BUCS WIN OUT

The Pirates showed the stuff of which heroes are made as they came up in the ninth. Up to this moment, Bill Hallahan had yielded but four hits. Arky Vaughan, Gus Suhr and Lavagetto attacked Bill with a violence and when the dust lifted, the score was tied and Cookie was on third with the winning run. Two intentional passes filled the sacks and Pep Young batted for Waite Hoyt, who went to the slab in the ninth.

Young fanned and Lloyd Waner came to the barrier. Lloyd tried to ram one through the closeup infield, but Leo Durocher, playing a smart position, flagged the drive and made a heroic effort to stop Cookie at the plate. Umpire Stark called Lavagetto safe and almost started a young riot. It was a hard decision to give, but Stark was right in the middle of the play. Hoyt thus was credited with a short but sweet victory.

Philadelphia Woman Rides 'Chase Victor

ROSLYN, N. Y., June 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. David Dallas O'Dell, of Philadelphia, tried out a broken kneecap yesterday and found it quite sound as she booted her English-bred gelding, Palm Off, to victory in the feature race for lady riders at the annual Spring meeting of the United Hunts Racing Association.

With more than 3,000 of the turf's "400" and many of the ranking officers of the United States fleet along the course and watching the races from the tops of ancient four-in-hand coaches, Mrs. O'Dell brought Palm Off home at the end of the five and one-half furlongs with a half-length to spare.

LOCAL RACQUET LEAGUE STARS PLAY TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Competition in the Stanton Heights men's singles invitation net tourney gives way temporarily today to the second week-end bill of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League, wherein all surviving contestants in the North Aiken event are slated to compete. A complete card is listed for the tri-divisional loop, which shares the racquet program of the afternoon only with the Duquesne-West Virginia intercollegiate fray at Morgantown. This latter affair marks the wind-up of local varsity play for 1934.

The most promising tussle on the P. T. A. circuit slate brings together the champion P. A. A. squad and the pace-setting University Club on the latter's lot. The Winged Head, with Dr. John and Billy O'Loughlin out of the lineup, barely edged out Rockwood, 5-4, last Saturday.

ARENSBERG GOES EAST

Stanton Heights No. 1, even minus Wally Arensberg, who left last night for Eastern tourney play, should prove successful in entertaining Rockwood, while the powerful Belmont Racquet Club host is unlikely to be tested severely in home engagement with Stanton Heights No. 2.

The re-vamped Edgewood contingent visits Westinghouse, the sectional leader, for the Division II headline melee. Belmont Tennis Club invades the College-and-Walnut precinct in hope of repeating an achievement that the Collegians are tremendously eager to avenge. Washington Heights invades Mount Lebanon for an encounter with Rockwood Seconds.

In Division III, the Electric figure to cop at Minnetonka. Consolidated Canoe Club is about a 50-50 proposition in traveling to Emsworth and Westmoreland, if its array is fully assembled, should be a bit too much for its guests of the College Avenue Reserve delegation.

Yesterday's combats in the Stanton Heights conclave went according to the dope, though not without spirited resistance on the part of the losers. In one of the two quarter-final tilts reeled off, Frank Broida bent across too many southpaw drives and volleys for rangy Russ Unger, hard-hitting Stanton driver, 6-4, 6-3. In the other combat, Paul Barber, crack Belmonter from Sewickley, eliminated Stan McCaskey, consistent Edgewood product, 7-5, 6-3.

BROIDA FACES TEST

Tomorrow's Heights schedule offers interesting prospect. Semi-final fracas will hurl Dr. Dave O'Laughlin, first ranking Western Pennsylvanian, against Broida, who has beaten both John and Billy O'Loughlin, but has never been quite able to make the grade in the face of Dave's terrific forehand. In the bracket of eight, John O'Loughlin tangles with Charley Lockhart.

Dave and John O'Loughlin performed in exhibition men's singles feature of yesterday's Get-acquainted Day celebration at the Rochester Saracens Tennis Club, Rochester, Pa.

FORMER STAR, NOW COACH OF PIRATES.

To the Sports Editor:

One of the oldtimers says to me, "Honus, how do you go about writing." I said, "Well, you just go buy yourself a set of Shakespeare and maybe one of Bacon. Then you are all fixed. He comes back a few days later and says he went to all the butcher shops in town, but all he could get was bacon, as none of them had any Shakespeare. I have found out recently that everybody in the world wants to write and half the world is trying to. The only headaches I ever had came from writing. Regards,

HONUS WAGNER.

CAVALCADE TO GET BIG TEST TODAY

CHICAGO, June 2.—(AP.)—When the hoofs cease flying and the winning numbers go up for the pay-off in the American Derby at Washington Park today, the sport of kings will know whether Cavalcade is a really great three-year-old champion.

The little chestnut from Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade stable proved he was a champion in the Kentucky Derby by soundly whipping his three foremost rivals, Discovery, Singing Wood and Mati Hari, at equal weights. Today, he must prove his greatness in the American Derby by spotting the same trio and seven others a big pull in the weights and more advantageous post positions. He must defy tradition, too, for no horse since Spokane, in 1889, has succeeded in winning both the Kentucky and American Derbies.

Upwards of 35,000 people, a record throng, were expected to watch the duel over the gruelling route of a mile and a quarter. Despite his disadvantages, Cavalcade was an early morning line favorite of 2 to 1 to lug his top weight of 126 pounds to victory with the help of a fast-breaking stablemate, Anarchy. Discovery, ranked as the second favorite at 3 to 1 while Singing Wood was given an equal chance with Mata Hari at 6 to 1. Mata Hari carried the lightest weight, 116 pounds, because she was the only filly in the race. The other entries were Bien Fait, Sir Ten, Patchpocket, Technocracy, Prince Pompey and Plight, the Texas derby winner, all of them long shots.

Cavalcade, a slow starter, was under a distinct handicap at the post alignment. He drew the number one position next to the rail, whereas Singing Wood was placed at No. 5, Discovery at No. 7 and Mata Hari next to the outside. With such a field of quick breakers, the Brookmeade star runs the risk of being pocketed.

Mack Garner was up on Cavalcade, however, and figured the "Little Chestnut" would come through handily.

Helen Jacobs Plays For Title Today

PARIS, June 2.—(AP.)—Whatever worries she might have over the Wightman Cup situation now that Alice Marble has been declared out of tournament tennis for the rest of the year, Helen Jacobs laid aside today while she sought to win the French hard court singles championship for the first time.

The Californian, United States champion and captain of the Wightman Cup team, ruled a slight favorite over Margaret (Peggy) Scriven, of England, in their final round match for the title Miss Scriven won so unexpectedly last year.

The nature of the ailment that forced Miss Marble out of the game remained undisclosed. The young San Francisco girl collapsed on the court a week ago during the Franco-American team series.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Of course, when any of us use our pillars to make suggestions—those who are the targets, imagine we are being picayune, etc. . . . But in spite of the genial Gene Buck, who served as master of ceremonies at the Authors'-Composers' affair the other night—it seemed to me that the manner of introduction was dated—old fashioned—no wallop . . . And merely served to make for a stage wait . . . The affair was attended chiefly by the composers themselves and their kin and friends . . . Naturally they knew who was playing the piano or singing the song the player composed . . . The few others who came to enjoy it certainly would have been thrilled—if the composer merely walked on stage and struck up his best known melody . . . Then, let's say, Mr. Buck (who always makes a neat address or talk in the manner of a politician before election) waited until the composer ended—and then said: "That was Irving Berlin!" the excitement would have been greater . . . But we all knew, when Mr. Buck said "the next is a great composer, who wrote Alexander's Ragtime Band" that it would be Irving . . . What I am hastening to column is that a lot of time was wasted with windy introductions—meeting men and women—we've all known for years . . . And that it retarded matters . . . Perhaps the fault is mine, I'm a restless guy . . . I like action . . . And zip and zest and no zithers . . . But I would find fault . . . You see, I was in on a pass.

What a lesson for all egotists and the inflated heads . . . I mean when George M. Cohan ankled into the foyer of the place—and a columnist (one guess) greeted the grandest of the guys with: "Hello, Mr. Broadway!" . . . "Aw, stop," replied Mr. Cohan, "the trouble with you, Walter, is that you live in the past!" . . . Then he chuckled and went on . . . Mr. Cohan wanted me to think, and those listening, that he was once top man on Broadway, and isn't now . . . But that's been his modest way for 40 years . . . Name me anybody who tops him—I dare you! . . . He is more the personification of Broadway than anyone . . . The sunny side of Broadway, of course . . . His career, his devotion to his tribe—and his spotlessly clean life certify to that.

It all happens for the best—is a bromide, I know . . . But as a title to this tale—it will serve best . . . Philip Van Zandt, a newcomer to the stage, was engaged for the humorous Patsy Flick assignment in "She Loves Me Not"—my idea of the funniest show in town . . . Van Zandt, that is, was hired for the London version . . . He rehearsed for several weeks and was branded okay by all concerned in New York . . . The day before sailing with the company, however, Philip was blackballed by Gilbert Miller . . . So the company sailed without him . . . The youngster was a miserable chap . . . For six weeks he had counted on that job . . . Then one morning he was summoned to the Weatherly-Wiman offices, producers of the show here . . . And he was informed that Patsy Flick was leaving the cast for a better job (which is about time!) and that he, Philip, could play the role . . . The London troupe flopola'd and closed in three weeks . . . Van Zandt, who was so unhappy because of Gilbert Miller, has been working six weeks in the local company!

The story about "Chase Me" belongs here . . . I want it for my files . . . Chase Me was a gorgeous gelding with a silky coat and a tremendous heart. He was owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Bosley, who hasn't much money—but who wanted him for her children . . . Chase Me loved her youngsters. They taught him how to bow, shake hands, and do other things which only children can appreciate . . . But the horse turned out to be such a gallant animal that Mrs. Bosley decided to try him in the fashionable shows. He won ribbons and applause, and then turned to hunting . . . Seldom does a gee-gee make good at shows and at hunting, and then excell in flat racing, but Chase Me was an unusual horse . . . Duke Bellizzi rode him up to the starting gate at Havre de Grace the first time . . . And when a starter came toward him to lead him into a stall, Chase Me lifted a hoof to shake hands . . . He didn't know any better . . . Duke Bellizzi won that day . . . And Chase Me won the next six times out, too! . . . Then he'd return to his stall, and frolic with the kids again . . . Well, to make it shorter, he was matched with the great Equipoise the other day and the betting was on fire . . . And the strangest of things happened: Duke Bellizzi, his first jockey, was being buried in his silks—and Chase Me was going down to his first defeat! . . . Equipoise was ahead, guilty of fouling . . . Chase Me crossed his legs in full stride and fell, breaking a shaft . . . Only a few people noticed the little lady, who ran out onto the track sobbing, and who whispered tender things to a gallant, who already had a bullet in his brain.

I want it known, but far and wide, again—that I have no correspondents working for me, who are not duly accredited . . . Meaning that my secretary and the lass who helps her type letters are my only assistants in New York . . . And that a businessman in California is the other . . . The countless others who keep me informed on this and that—are intimate friends—not paid . . . All of them are reputable men and women, working on newspapers, magazines, railroads, in law offices or in Washington . . . They gab with me as they would with other friends in their homes . . . They know by now—the material I want . . . I want the lowdown on everything—news . . . All of which is set forth here now to warn the gullible of impostors . . . One of them was finally trapped—but only after he had operated successfully swindling locals for nearly three years . . . Since the expose here recently—he threatens to commit suicide—which can't be too soon for me, of course . . . So petty was he in his dealings around Broadway (he took nickels and dimes and often $10 or better from people) . . . He would tell them he could keep out information or put it in this column . . . Imagine the nerve of a guy—with me in his own territory . . . Of course, the obscure and unknown people he gypped, are now furious with themselves, too . . . They urge me not to turn him over to the District Attorney . . . They want to tear him apart alone.

Movie, Acts In Pitt

That Adela Rogers St. Johns story, which once bore the entrancing title of "The Great God Fourflush," has been pretty well manhandled in the screen version now on view in the Pitt under the name of "Woman's Man."

In its original state, "The Great God Fourflush" was a good story of the fads and foibles of Hollywood, but Monogram Pictures, biggest and most important of the independent film producing companies, made its first mistake when it changed the title. It made the next in casting the photoplay, notably in the leading feminine role, a part allotted to that ancient star of the silent days, Marguerite de La Motte.

Not even the presence of such a usually dependable personage as Mr. John Halliday can do much about "Woman's Man." Cast as a Hollywood director in love with a nitwit female star, Mr. Halliday suffers from his surroundings. A listless prize fight, supposed to be a championship battle, with one row of spectators, doesn't help, either.

Wallace Ford, as the box fighter who falls in love with the crackbrain actress, turns in a fairly capable performance—when he's out of the ring. There's a neat characterization of a fight manager by an actor who goes unlisted in the cast, and Miss Kitty Kelly does right well by her role when the general turmoil doesn't interfere.

Things are a trifle happier in the Pitt's current stage entertainment. In a revue called "Broadway to Rio," Miss Selma Barrow, a tap dancer who really knows how to tap dance, steals the show from under the noses of those in the larger type. Clark, Prince and Norcross sashay around in an imitation of the Ritz boys, while Sol Gould, comic, has one turn with his stooges in the audience in which one of the jokes is "That's no lady, that's my wife." (Aside to Mr. Gould: It's Wilkinsburg, not Williamsburg).

The Four Golden Blondes, down on the program as "The Female Marx Brothers," which, one would hook up, with comedy, do their best work in a serious number known as "The Forgotten Woman." Miss Vanessi does the carioca and a peacock dance, with the line dancing girls clearing the way for her.

That Rio de Janerio stage setting looks pretty good.—K. K.

Jess Hawkins' Band At Kennywood

Jess Hawkins and his Virginians will play the picnic dance music for Kennywood's Saturday night dance and will give concerts tomorrow afternoon and night. Hawkins, "Red" Evans, Eddie Strebanik and Bill Patrick will be soloists on tomorrow's program. Those who visit Kennywood this week-end will see Mary's Garden, a miniature floral plot, full of old-fashioned flowers and surrounded by a white picket fence. Recently it has been lit at night by mushroom luminaries in light pastel colors, also used in other floral beds in the park.

Wish Sequel Is Job to Direct

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, June 2.—Hello! Just the other afternoon in front of the Paramount studio I was gabbing with Arthur Jacobson, rated as one of the best assistant directors in the business.

"Gee, I wish I could get a break—a real chance to direct," he muttered.

Yesterday afternoon Arthur Jacobson was literally walking on air—the Paramount bosses had called him into the big "front office" and promoted him to full fledged directorship! A reward for long and faithful service.

Through his first megaphone, Art will shout orders for "Wagon Wheels," starring Randolph Scott with Gail Patrick and baby Leroy. It's a Zane Grey yarn, using the same musical idea as "The Last Roundup," both title tunes by Billy Hill.

Bravo, Art, Hollywood is a place where dreams do come true.

Wanderings around Hollywood: Virginia Pine took a turn for the worse Sunday night and was rushed back to the hospital . . . Advance romantic scoop—Arthur Johnson, composer, sailed for Honolulu, and his first date when docking will be with Winona Love, the Hula dancer, with the loveliest hands . . . Miriam Jordan's airplained it to New York for a lead in a new show . . . John Arnold, one of M-G-M's ace camera-crankers, is passing out fancy cigars 'cause it's a girl at his house . . . Enrico Caruso, Jr., who was reported to be facing a jail sentence if returned to Italy, explains that he was pardoned some years ago. It's all a great, big mistake, he says . . . Betty Furness, like a lovely explosion in two shades of blue organdy, is showing the gay sights to John Blakely, of New York social register, who is about to movie act for Columbia . . . Ray McCarey has taken his megaphone to M-G-M to direct a couple of shorts . . . L. G. Blochman, scenarist, asked for and received his release from Universal. He will write a novel, but not about Hollywood.

The Edward G. Robinsons are a-headin' for New York and a short vacation before he begins his next Warner film. Bet you don't remember when Eddie appeared in red tights with Joseph Schildkraut in "The Fire Brand."

Andy Devine is cutting short his personal appearance tour and is taking a train for Hollywood and a role in "Castles in the Air," the Universal musical.

Diana Wynyard will make a dash for England the minute she completes "One More River" for Universal.

Extras on the "Sacred and Profane Love" set are upset. Director Brown used wood-shavings instead of potato chips for a speakeasy scene.

Doing the reverse—

Ever since Jack Oakie's mother appeared with him in "Too Much Harmony," she's been badly bitten by the movie bug—but Jack has shouted "Nay, nay!" to her idea of taking another film job.

Movietown meanderings . . . RKO is about set on the idea of starring Francis Lederer in "The Three Musketeers," with John Ford at the megaphone.

Hill Engaged For Voice

Edwin C. Hill, famous news writer and commentator, has been engaged by E. B. Hatrick, Hearst motion picture executive, as The Globe Trotter, screen voice of Hearst Metrotone News. Mr. Hill will write and deliver the accompanying dialogue in all issues of Hearst Metrotone News. He will assume his new duties in late September.

Over the radio and in the columns of Hearst and other newspapers throughout the country, Edwin C. Hills "The Human Side of the News," is listened to and read by probably the greatest audience in the world. His beautiful word pictures and his splendid diction have earned for him a reputation unsurpassed as a writer and broadcaster.

For 23 years Edwin C. Hill was a reporter on the old New York Sun and for most of those years was the Sun's star reporter and the star reporter of New York. Born in Aurora, Ind., his father was county superintendent of education and his mother a teacher. He just escaped becoming a schoolmaster, but always wanted to be a newspaper man.

It was while attending the University of Indiana that Hill decided to enter newspaper work—on the New York Sun. He left college and headed for New York, where after months of weary waiting he finally achieved his ambition and got a job "on Dana's paper" at a salary of $15 a week. His rise was rapid.

Hill's work attracted such wide attention that in 1931 he was invited by the Columbia Broadcasting System to go on the air. His first program was for 26 weeks and was sponsored. It was followed immediately by other sponsored and sustaining programs, so that he was broadcasting continuously.

Radio editors of America selected him as the leading news commentator of the present year. He will continue to write "The Human Side of the News" for the Hearst and other newspapers, and to broadcast it, after becoming The Globe Trotter of Hearst Metrotone News.

Y Playhouse Group In Premiere

The seson's closing production of the Y Playhouse will be given Monday evening, when there will be the premiere of "Mars Over Venus," by David Cornman. The author is a member of the group presenting the play.

Mrs. Smith Is Acquitted

MRS. HORTENSE SMITH, accused by the state of killing her husband by dropping poison in his soup, was recently freed by a jury after a short deliberation. Mrs. Smith, it goes without saying, is young and pretty. May I present you with a few reactions? . . .

* * *

MRS. SMITH: First of all, I want to thank all you newspaper boys for being so wonderful to me. Without your help and kindness, I would never have been able to survive this terrible ordeal. When I think of the things that horrible district attorney said about me, I could burst into tears. How could he have been so cruel to a poor, helpless woman?

What's that? You want to know about my plans? Ah, poor little me—what plans could I have? I have countless offers, of course, including a large contract from a burlesque house.

But I'd never dream of going into burlesque. After all, I have my reputation to consider . . .

* * *

A CITY EDITOR: Say, Jones, you're a good reporter—and you know I'm not satisfied with that verdict. I still think she dumped the poison in that soup, and I'm going to go a little further just to satisfy myself.

Run right up to her house and give her the cheerful lie about our paper being interested in another life story. Stay for lunch, make her give you a plate of soup—and let's see what happens. . . .

* * *

50,000,000 WOMEN: Humph! So they found her not guilty, did they? Well, all I can say is that it's a good thing for her I wasn't on that jury. Just one look at that face of hers is all I need to know that she killed her poor husband . . .

50,000,000 MEN: I'm glad they acquitted that girl. She couldn't have been guilty of such a crime. One look at her face proves that.

* * *

THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY: ——!!! &&&—— !!!.

* * *

AN INSURANCE SALESMAN: Now listen, Mr. Blotz, you've thrown me out of your office at least 20 times. But I'm back again for just one more try.

Did you know that Smith woman was acquitted this afternoon? Positively. And do you realize that women all over the world will gaze strangely at their husbands this evening? What one woman can do, another can certainly get away with. Especially if the husband has been running around or cheating or——

What's that, Mr. Blotz? A policy for $50,000? Yes, sir. Thank you, sir. Good day, sir. . . .

* * *

THE ENTIRE JURY: Personally, I thought she was guilty. But when the 11 others started to talk about the horror of hanging a woman, I just had to string along with them.

Besides, she was doggone pretty, wasn't she? . . .

* * *

THE JUDGE: Yes, I guess I can take pardonable pride in the manner in which this case was conducted. Order was preserved at all times, and the photographers were enabled to make some of the finest pictures that ever came out of a courtroom.

I have received congratulatory messages from prominent people all over the State for my deft handling of this case. But I must say that they mean nothing to me because I have no political ambitions whatsoever. I am content to remain as I am.

Of course, if they insisted upon me for the Governorship, well—— . . .

* * *

MRS. SMITH'S EX-BOY FRIEND: Aw, lay off me, willya, Gracie? We've been married five years now and you oughta have more sense. Is it my fault I used to run around with Hortense Smith before I knew you? Have you gotta be jealous about a dame that beats a soup-murder rap?

Aw, let's quit the arguments and have some dinner. What'd you make? Huh? Oh, no. No, thanks. No soup . . .

* * *

HER LAWYER: That's all right, Hortense. You haven't anything to thank me for. The case gave me publicity that millions of dollars couldn't have bought, and I'm more than satisfied.

So now, dear Hortense, it's all over. The case is closed, and you are free. But for my own satisfaction—and because we have worked so hard together—I'd like to know the truth:

Did you really kill that guy? . . .

* * *

A GROCERY OWNER: And what do you think was the first thing she ordered when she got home?

Six cans of soup!

* * *

THE DEAD MAN: So she was acquitted, eh? And she'll go on living, eh? Well, to tell you the truth, I'm glad of it.

Because the longer she stays away from me, the better off I am! . . .

Miss Dee Is Star In Regent

"Finishing School," new screen feature in the Regent, is a comedy-drama laid for the most part in a girls' fashionable institute of learning. The cast includes Frances Dee, Billie Burke, Bruce Cabot, John Halliday and Ginger Rogers. It has the "poor little rich girl" theme, and presents Miss Dee in one of her finest parts. She is sent away to school so that her pleasure-loving mother, played by Billie Burke, may have more time for her social affairs. The girl has an affair with Cabot, who is cast as a young interne. The dialogue is especially good and the picture holds the interest of the auadience from first to last. A second feature on the Regent's program is called "Curtain at Eight," a drama starring Dorothy Mackaill.

Fleet Shown On Screen

The greatest sea spectacle since the World War, the arrival of the combined Pacific and Atlantic fleets in New York, and their review by President Roosevelt, is presented fully in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Pictures show the majestic armada of 100 warships lined up off Ambrose Lightship where they pass before the President aboard the Indianapolis. Then follow scenes of the spectacular maneuvers by the fleet. At their conclusion, more than 170 fliers are shown taking off from the three mighty aircraft carriers. Headed by the President, the fleet is then seen steaming into the harbor. The Globe Trotter describes it fully.

President Roosevelt is seen and heard as he speaks to an enormous crowd at the Gettysburg Battlefield on Memorial Day. "We are all brothers now in a new understanding," the President declares.

In New York City thousands cheer and applaud the Memorial Day parade. Only 28 of the heros of '61 were in line, headed by Mayor La Guardia, was flier and legionnaire.

Note—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange programs in time schedules, it is possible that some subjects of above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

Film Thief Does Well In Penn

BY KARL KRUG

In "Sadie McKee," Miss Joan Crawford runs away from her home town with Gene Raymond, marries a millionaire when she is left high and dry by her first love, then tries to salvage Raymond, and winds up in the arms of Franchot Tone.

That, my friends, is the sum and substance of the Penn's latest film dish, a curious mixture of good, bad and indifferent, and carrying nothing less than one of the year's grandest performances in the work of Mr. Edward Arnold. Mr. Arnold, noted chiefly for his character portrayals, evidently forgot the presence of the great and the near-great in the cast of "Sadie McKee," as he went through his role of Brennan, the millionaire drunkard.

This screen tale of John Meehan, based on an original by Vina Delmar, is far from a happy or "pretty" one, and, as far as Miss Crawford is concerned, is curiously cut to her pattern, a vehicle that will neither enhance or further her career as an actress.

Starting easily enough in an aristocratic home, where Sadie's mother is the cook, the narrative shifts to the Roaring Forties of Manhattan, where Tommy Wallace, played by Mr. Raymond, ditches Sadie on the day they are supposed to get married for a blond singer, who needs a crooning partner. Then she gets work in a night club where she meets the ingratiating Mr. Arnold, and from then on has her ups and downs as she strives to get her tangled life in order.

One of Sadie's big ambitions is to break her husband of the liquor habit. She is forced to contend with faithful butlers hiding bottles under his pillow, when he is ill, and such things, and it is not until he tumbles down a flight of marble stairs, after socking Sadie in the jaw, that he finally is able to break away from the flowing bowl. While all this may sound trite in the telling, it is the dexterity with which Mr. Arnold does such things that must be seen to be appreciated.

I can assure you that when an actor is able to go through practically an entire picture in a state of inebriation and make you believe it, then that actor has done an exceptionally good job.

Strange to relate, Mr. Tone is Miss Crawford's nemesis through most of the action. In the beginning, he refuses a helping hand that will enable her boy friend to stay in his home town, and later he tries to prevent her marriage to Mr. Arnold. Then he accuses her of trying to do away with her husband to inherit his millions. After Sadie has told her husband that she is still in love with Raymond, and the always obliging Mr. Arnold agrees to divorce her, Mr. Tone repents and brings the two together. But, it is too late. Raymond is dying from a cough he contracted in Vancouver, so Mr. Tone, to oblige the audience I suppose, gets her himself!

'Stingaree' Feature In Stanley

By MICHAEL SHAW

Those who were reading books around the early part of this century may well remember Stingaree, a gentleman bandit of the Australian bush who for a time rivalled E. W. Hornung's other creation, Raffles, as a popular fictional outlaw.

The romantic bushranger comes to life on the Stanley screen this week in a film which, though it is called "Stingaree," concerns itself less with his daring exploits than with the rise of an opera singer.

Miss Irene Dunne is the singer. We see her first as an orphan and little more than a servant in a rich Australian sheepherder's home, where Miss Mary Boland, her scatterbrained mistress, is most cruel to her.

Stingaree, well played by Richard Dix, enters the home masquerading as a visiting British composer. He hears Miss Dunne sing, plans a great career for her, and, when exposed, kidnaps her in his flight. After the girl falls in love with him, he forces the real composer to give her an audition at the point of a gun and as a result is wounded and captured.

Miss Dunne goes on to unbelievable fame. With all Europe at her feet, she still cannot forget Stingaree, and, refusing to marry Conway Tearle, the composer who has made her great, returns to Australia. Stingaree, escaping prison, goes to her concert in the governor general's uniform and is discovered. Miss Dunne is kidnaped once more, willingly enough this time, as the bushranger makes his getaway.

The picture starts promisingly with its scenes of pioneering life in a hostile and forbidding land. Then there are Stingaree's dark doings in an inn on a stormy night. And after that, Stingaree is dropped, most unfortunately, and we have the long and dreary sequences showing Miss Dunne's triumphs as a diva.

She sings "The Last Rose of Summer" from "Martha" and the "Jewel Song" from "Faust," and three times she sings a love ballad which she associates with Stingaree—each time a verse and two choruses, complete. By the time Stingaree returns, we have lost interest.

Much more exciting and terrifying are the brief shots of the "battle of Toledo" in the newsreel. Queenie Smith appears in a short, and there is a Betty Boop cartoon.

STOCKS SLUMP IN QUIET MARKET

NEW YORK, June 2.—Stocks were lower in the early trading today. Sizeable offerings appeared in scattered issues, but activity generally was quiet. Utilities were steady.

General motors dipped fractionally to a new low mark for this year. Other shares down fractions to around a point included American Telephone, United States Steel, Santa Fe, National Distillers, New York Central, Deere and American Smelting.

While labor struggles and crop damage reports held much of the attention of the financial district, indications of a little better feeling toward the new exchange control law, passed yesterday by Congress, were seen in the statement of Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, that the organization intends to do everything in its power to cooperate with the commission in the administration of the act.

Although the bill still contains provisions that the stock exchange head fears may prove impracticable, he hoped that, if wisely and judiciously administered, the act will be a constructive measure.

As a result of the Memorial day holiday, automobile production for the week ended today showed a sharp decline from the preceding period and the upward trend of new passenger car sales, of last week, says Cram's Review, was not maintained. Six of the larger companies operated only during the first two days of the week and the output was estimated at 54,185 units against 76,281 in the previous week. The total, though, was 7,496 units above that of the corresponding week of last year.

The dollar displayed a fairly steady tone in early foreign exchange dealings. The British pound was off ⅛ of a cent at $5.06½ and the French franc was up .00½ of a cent at 6.58¾ cents.

COTTON PRICES ADVANCE

NEW YORK, June 2.—Cotton futures opened firm, 8 to 10 points advance on higher Liverpool cables and domestic and foreign trade buying. July, 11.72c; October, 11.99c; December, 12.09c; January, 12.13c; March, 12.23c; May, 12.31c.

There was a renewal of demand through commission houses, part of which appeared to be coming from Wall street sources, and the market rose to 11.78 for July and 12.11 for December, shortly after the call. Active months generally showed net gains of 9 to 14 points.

Reports of better prospects for a settlement of the textile labor disputes contributed to an improved sentiment while the action of yesterday's market appeared to have brought in some overnight buying orders.

2 AUTO MAKERS CUT PRICES

DETROIT, June 2.—Reductions of between $35 and $50 on all models of Chevrolet and Pontiac automobiles, products of General Motors, have been announced by the motor company. The new prices are effective today.

The Pontiac reductions were $40 on all its models.

Under the new Chevrolet schedule of prices, the reductions range from $35 on the company's knee-action master type models, up to $50 on some of its other models, including trucks.

Markets Observing Summer Schedules

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP.)—The New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange adopted its summer schedule today and trading in coffee and cocoa will be suspended on Saturdays until October 6. The local silk markets also are closed.

The London Stock Exchange likewise began its Saturday closing program today and there will be no business done Saturdays on that market until September.

The Paris Bourse started closing Saturdays May 5 to continue until November 3.

Cities Service Wins Appeal on Richfield

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—The Cities Service Company has been granted an appeal from an order in Federal District Court, April 23 denying a motion to postpone dates for deposit and withdrawal of bonds under the Richfield reorganization plan, based upon the Standard Oil Company of California's offer.

RECENT MOVES DESCRIBED AS DEFLATIONARY

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, June 2.—Whatever the intentions of the politicians may have been, financiers and investors have interpreted some of the recent moves at Washington as deflationary.

Mr. Rukeyser

Accordingly, there has been a quiet retreat from securities to cash. Evidently the new trend toward "sound money" in the administration has made cash seem relatively more attractive than it did in the earlier months when devaluation was a prospect rather than a reality.

John Maynard Keynes, British economist, who has been visiting here, has expressed the opinion that the basic economic statistics in the United States do not merit the prevailing pessimism.

Ward Melville, president of the Melville Shoe Company, in chatting with me, said that the pessimism was ascribable to the unwarranted tendency to compare present conditions with those of 1928-29 instead of with such normal years as 1925-26. Mr. Melville said that the retail sales in his own chain of stores was a good barometer of the industrial trend, and that thus far there had been no recession. Mr. Melville said that sales have been running 42 per cent ahead of a year ago, but that the percentage of improvement would now fall because of comparisons with a better record after the early months of 1933. Mr. Melville said that his company was budgeting at least a 10 per cent improvement in sales for the fall period.

FAVORS NEW DEAL

Incidentally, as one of the younger business leaders, Mr. Melville is in sympathy with many objectives of the "New Deal." He thinks it will be healthy to put a larger portion of the national income in wages, especially in the lower brackets.

In the matter of business confidence, unquestionably the matter of labor unrest is an important factor. In the steel, automobile and public utilities industries, there seems a disposition on the part of management to maintain their freedom.

With the stock exchange control bill at last formulated, a new epoch opens in Wall street.

If the brokers are wise, they will show a disposition to seek to live under the new setup, instead of continuing their propaganda of opposition.

It would be healthy, too, if the stock exchange would find out that confession of past mistakes was good for the soul.

It is to be questioned, however, how far the stock exchange can put forward a new face in view of the fact that it has just re-elected Richard Whitney as president. In the public mind, he has become a symbol of apology for the old order.

A new educational job needs to be done.

The public again needs to be told the importance of liquidity—and of the place of scientific finance in the scheme of production and distribution.

RECOVER PRESTIGE

The stock exchange will recover its lost prestige to the extent that it identifies itself with the public interest, rather than with commissions of members.

It will be recalled that the reputation of the bourse was at its peak during the administration of the late Seymour Cromwell, who undertook to purge the street and to serve the broad public interest better.

Not a few on the sidelines think that public regulation is necessary and proper—especially if done with administrative intelligence. For 25 years after the Hughes report, the stock exchange had its chance to show its capacity for self government—and many think it was found wanting.

A capital blunder was made last summer when the exchange was on trial before the bar of public opinion. At this juncture, manipulators were permitted to use the facilities of the board to skyrocket alcohol stocks.

If brokers are wise, they will seek in their public relations to stimulate investment interest in the securities of American corporations.

To do this, they will have to contribute to a re-establishment of confidence in private enterprise.

Once this has been accomplished, customers will be more permanent, even if less active.

See Silver as Factor In Steadying Dollar

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP.)—The Treasury's silver buying program, in the opinion of some foreign exchange experts, may be decidedly useful in keeping the dollar from rising in terms of the pound sterling, and thus having a deflationary effect upon sensitive commodity prices.

The condition of the German mark, with its backing of gold and foreign exchange virtually gone, and the severe control recently imposed over dealings in the Italian lira, appear to have started a renewed flow of funds from Europe to the United States during the past few days, and the dollar has shown a decided tendency to rise.

While the French franc and other gold bloc currencies remain on the gold standard, and the pound sterling remains fairly stable in terms of gold, the recent strength in the dollar presumably will not carry it much higher, for it will soon pass the levels at which it would be profitable to import gold. An inflow of gold might ensue similar to that of February, and it should tend to keep the dollar from rising to any very substantial premium.

The movement should become large enough to prompt foreign countries to interfere with the movement of gold, the only way the dollar could be kept from rising would be through the sale of dollars to purchase something, and that something might well be silver. With London the chief market for silver, exchange experts say, it might be found that any sharp rise in the dollar against the pound could be prevented.

Follansbee Bond Interest Not Paid

No funds were made available yesterday to pay the semi-annual interest on the Follansbee Brothers Company 5 per cent bonds of 1947. Under date of May 29, the receivers sent a letter to stockholders which said in part:

"Due to severe and continued operating losses for the past four years, resulting in insufficient working capital and inability to meet maturing obligations to creditors, to banks for borrowed money and interest due on bonds outstanding, the company deemed it advisable to consent to petition filed by a creditor and a stockholder in the United States District Court for Western Pennsylvania asking for the appointment of receivers for the company."

Relief Corporation Asks Bid on Pork

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The Federal Surplus Relief Corporation has invited bids for purchase and processing of hogs into smoked pork for distribution to the needy. The bids will be opened here June 11. Hogs averaging from 100 to 210 pounds each, will be bought over a period of 15 days to begin when contracts are awarded.

STRIKE THREAT FOGS STEEL OUTLOOK

By B. E. V. LUTY

Production of steel ingots this week may be estimated at 58 per cent of capacity against 56 per cent last week, 58 per cent in the preceding week and 60 per cent, the peak rate, in the week before that.

The decrease had been attributed to seasonal decline in consumption outbalancing the disposition to stock steel on account of price advances, while the recent increase is assigned to fear of labor troubles in the steel industry as early as the second half of June. This is indicated by the fact that on some orders which customers has desired to be shipped late this month, June 30 being the price deadline, requests have been received that shipment be made as soon as possible.

Stocking of steel from the double influence will scarcely be sufficient to raise the rate much if any above the present level, when there is the opposing influence of declining consumption, there being a seasonal decline in both the automobile and farm implement industries while in business generally a more and more cautious policy is being adopted through fear of labor trouble in various quarters.

Production of steel ingots in the 12 months through May 31 was a trifle over 30,000,000 tons or two and one-half times the lowest production in 12 months, the period through March, 1933, 55 per cent of production in the record year 1929 and 66 per cent of average production in the very active period of seven years through 1929.

SMALL USERS BUOY MARKET

It is quite doubtful that anyone 12 months ago would have predicted so heavy steel production in the ensuing 12 months had he known that business was going to have a backset in the late months of the year, that little railroad steel would be made until April of this year, that automobile production would be insignificant in November and December and that building in general would not have any material increase.

The explanation of the excess of production over what would have been expected on the basis of old time factors is the relatively heavy requirements of small consumers and

500 ASK ACTION ON M'LEOD BILL

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Representing upward of 10 million people who lost money in closed national banks, more than 500 delegates of the National Depositors' Committee meet here today and Sunday.

They ask action on the McLeod bank deposit payoff bill or the Steagall bill with the permissive payoff provision.

At the opening session today, Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, and Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, will be principal speakers. Representative Bacharach (Rep.), of New Jersey, will preside.

The afternoon session will be addressed by Representative George A. Dondero (Rep.), of Michigan, with Clarence H. Mutz, head of the depositors' committees of Eastern Pennsylvania, presiding.

Senator Royal S. Copeland (Dem.), of New York, will address the morning session Sunday, which will be presided over by Representative Louis T. McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania.

Edward J. O'Keefe, head of the New Jersey delegation, will preside at the afternoon session, which will be addressed by Samuel Conley, R. B. Cadwallader and Charles D. Hyman, legal advisor to the New Jersey delegation. Delegations from all over the country are to attend, Charles P. Bloome, of Philadelphia, acting chairman, stated tonight. Eleven state Governors had promised to attend or send welfare directors to represent them, he added.

Make This at Home

To the Very Tip of the Yoke It Flatters

Pattern 1535

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

If a woman tilts the scales a little more than she should, no one will ever know it when she wears this house dress. That is the kind of innocently deceiving model it is. It is all a matter of good lines and carefully considered details—and those in this frock have been given much thought—even to the very tip of the V which finishes the clever yoke. You would be surprised to know that pretty little point does for the figure. The frock really is nice in twin prints, as you see it, but it is smart in contrasting fabrics also—and some women will like it best in one tone.

Pattern 1535 is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 2½ yards 36 inch fabric and 1⅛ yards contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number, BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

The smartest warm weather fashions, the newest fabrics, and the summer season's outstanding accessories are illustrated and described in the NEW PATTERN BOOK FOR SUMMER. ORDER YOUR COPY OF THIS HELPFUL NEW SUMMER BOOK. PRICE OF BOOK 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

Address orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

1—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.
5—Address your request to the PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH PATTERN DEPARTMENT 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

OBITUARY

The Rev. Dr. Charles Gilmore

The Rev. Dr. Charles Gilmore, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church at Cadiz, O., died Friday morning at his home. Dr. Gilmore was a graduate of Geneva College and Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and was a member of the seminary board. Recently he celebrated the twentieth anniversary of his pastorate at Cadiz.

Dr. Gilmore was the oldest son of the late James and Mary Plumer Gilmore and he is survived by his widow, Josephine Rippey, and four children, Josephine, Marian, Elizabeth and Charles L.; also one brother, Dr. James L. Gilmore, of Pittsburgh, and two sisters, Mrs. Samuel A. Taylor and Miss Elizabeth P. Gilmore, of Wilkinsburg.

Services will be held at Cadiz Monday at 10 a. m. Burial in Homewood Cemetery, Pittsburgh.

Miss Margaret E. Rowland.

Funeral services for Miss Margaret Elizabeth Rowland, of McKeesport, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Hunter-Edmundson-Striffler funeral home, 600 Market street, McKeesport.

Miss Rowland, a daughter of the late John Varner and Eliza Green McCully Rowland, died Thursday. She was born in Castle Shannon and had been a resident of McKeesport since 1878.

She leaves two nieces, Mrs. Helen Rowland Fahnestock, of Wilkinsburg, and Mrs. Elizabeth Gibson Senn, of El Paso, Tex.

Mrs. Sadie M. Tompkins.

Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Sadie Milligan Tompkins from her home at 615 Grandview avenue, East Pittsburgh, to St. William's Catholic Church. Mrs. Tompkins died Wednesday in Pittsburgh Hospital. She leaves her husband, Harry Tompkins; a son, Harry, Jr.; a daughter, Mrs. Lottie Rotchford, and a sister, Miss Agnes Milligan.

Mrs. Blanche J. Davison.

Services for Mrs. Blanche Jamison Davison, who died at her home, 315 Castle Shannon road, Mt. Lebanon, yesterday, will be held in the Edward B. Laughlin funeral home, 3310 West Liberty avenue, at 2 p. m. Monday. She leaves her husband, Harold J. Davison.

Mrs. Margaret T. Hiller.

Services for Mrs. Margaret Thompson Hiller, 80, widow of August Hiller, wil be held in her home, 3605 Dawson street, at 2:30 p. m. Monday. Mrs. Hiller died Thursday. She leaves her daughter, Mrs. Howard Dimling, of Pittsburgh.

Frank S. Wiesmann.

Services for Frank S. Wiesman, son of Theodore and Mary Pilgrim Wiesman, will be held in his home, 124 Freeland street, Mt. Oliver, at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Mr. Wiesman died suddenly Thursday.

The Thin Man

By DASHIELL HAMMETT

"I was listening," Gilbert told me as we left the building. "I think it's silly not to listen whenever you get a chance if you're interested in studying people, because they're never exactly the same as when you're with them. People don't like it when they know about it, of course, but"—he smiled—"I don't suppose birds and animals like having naturalists spying on them either."

"Hear much of it?" I asked.

"Oh, enough to know I didn't miss any of the important part."

"And what'd you think of it?"

He pursed his lips, wrinkled his forehead, said judicially: "It's hard to say exactly. Mamma's good at hiding things sometimes, but she's never much good at making them up. It's a funny thing—I suppose you've noticed it—the people who lie the most are nearly always the clumsiest at it, and they're easier to fool with lies than most people, too. You'd think they'd be on the lookout for lies, but they seem to be the very ones that will believe almost anything at all. I suppose you've noticed that, haven't you?"

"Yes."

He said: "What I wanted to tell you: Chris didn't come home last night. That's why Mamma's more upset than usual, and when I got the mail this morning there was a letter for him that I thought might have something in it, so I steamed it open." He took a letter from his pocket and held it out to me. "You'd better read it and then I'll seal it again and put it with tomorrow's mail in case he comes back, though I don't think he will."

"Why don't you?" I asked as I took the letter.

"Well, he's really Roseben..."

"You say anything to him about it?"

"I didn't have a chance. I haven't seen him since you told me."

Shows Nick Letter

I looked at the letter in my hand. The envelope was postmarked Boston, Massachusetts, December 27, 1932, and addressed in a slightly childish feminine hand to Mr. Christian Jorgensen, Courtland Apartments, New York, N. Y. "How'd you happen to open it?" I asked, taking the letter out of the envelope.

"I don't believe in intuition," he said, "but there are probably odors, sounds, maybe something about the handwriting, that you can't analyze, maybe aren't even conscious of, that influence you sometimes. I don't know what it was: I just felt there might be something important in it."

"You often feel that way about the family's mail?"

He glanced quickly at me as if to see whether I was spoofing, then said: "Not often, but I have opened their mail before. I told you I was interested in studying people."

I read the letter:

Dear Vic—

Olga wrote me about you being back in the U. S. married to another woman and using the name of Christian Jorgensen. That is not right, Vic, as you very well know the same as leaving me without word of any kind all these years. And no money. I know that you had to go away on account of that trouble you had with Mr. Wynant, but am sure he has long since forgot all about that and I do think you might have written to me, as you know very well I have always been your friend and am willing to do anything within my power for you at any time. I do not want to scold you, Vic, but I have to see you. I will be off from the store Sunday and Monday on account of New Years and will come down to N. Y. Saturday night and must have a talk with you. Write me where you will meet me and what time, as I do not want to make any trouble for you. Be sure and write me right away so I will get it in time. Your true wife, GEORGIA.

There was a street address.

I said, "Well, well, well," and put the letter back in its envelope. "And you resisted the temptation to tell your mother about this?"

"Oh, I knew what her reaction would be. You saw how she carried on with just what you told her. What do you think I ought to do about it?"

"You ought to let me tell the police."

He nodded immediately. "If you think that's the best thing. You can show it to them if you want."

Keeps Letter

I said, "Thanks," and put the letter in my pocket.

He said: "Now there's another thing: I had some morphine I was experimenting with and somebody stole it, about twenty grains."

"Experimenting how?"

"Taking it. I wanted to study the effects."

"And how'd you like them?" I asked.

"Oh, I didn't expect to like it, I just wanted to know about it. I don't like things that dull my mind. That's why I don't very often drink, or even smoke. I want to try cocaine, though, because that's supposed to sharpen the brain, isn't it?"

"It's supposed to. Who do you think copped the stuff?"

"I suspect Dorothy, because I have a theory about her. That's why I'm going over to Aunt Alice's for dinner: Dorry's still there and I want to find out. I can make her tell me anything."

"Well, if she's been over there," I asked, "how could she—"

"She was home for a little while last night," he said, "and, besides, I don't know exactly when it was taken. Today was the first time I opened the box it was in for three or four days."

"Did she know you had it?"

"Yes. That's one of the reasons I suspect her. I don't think anybody else did. I experimented on her too."

"How'd she like it?"

"Oh, she liked it all right, but she'd have taken it anyhow. But what I want to ask you is could she have become an addict in a little time like that?"

"Like what?"

"A week—no—ten days."

"Hardly, unless she thought herself into it. Did you give her much?"

"No."

"Let me know if you find out," I said. "I'm going to grab a taxi here. Be seeing you."

"You're coming over later tonight, aren't you?"

"If I can make it. Maybe I'll see you then"

"Yes," he said, "and thanks awfully."

At the first drug store I stopped to telephone Guild, not expecting to catch him in his office, but hoping to learn how to reach him at his home. He was still there, though.

"Working late," I said.

His "That's what" sounded very cheerful.

I read Georgia's letter to him, gave him her address.

"Good pickings," he said.

I told him Jorgensen had not been home since the day before.

"Think we'll find him in Boston?" he asked.

"Either there," I guessed, "or as far south as he could manage to get by this time."

"We'll try 'em both," he said, still cheerful. "Now I got a bit of news for you. Our friend Nunheim was filled full of .32s just about an hour after he copped the sneak on us—deader'n hell. The pills look like they come from the same gun that cut down the Wolf dame. The experts are matching 'em up now. I guess he wishes he'd stayed and talked to us."

Whole Family Odd

Nora was eating a piece of cold duck with one hand and working on a jig-saw puzzle with the other when I got home.

"I thought you'd gone to live with her," she said. "You used to be a detective: find me a brownish piece shaped something like a snail with a long neck."

"Piece of duck or puzzle? Don't let's go to the Edges' tonight: they're dull folk."

"All right, but they'll be sore."

"We wouldn't be that lucky," I complained. "They'd get sore at the Quinns and—"

"Harrison called you up. He told me to tell you now's the time to buy some McIntyre Porcupine—I think that's right—to go with your Dome stock. He said it closed at twenty and a quarter." She put a finger on her puzzle. "The piece I want goes in there."

I found the piece she wanted and told her, almost word for word, what had been done and said at Mimi's.

"I don't believe it," she said. "You made it up. There aren't any people like that. What's the matter with them? Are they the first of a new race of monsters?"

"I just tell you what happens; I don't explain it."

"How would you explain it? There doesn't seem to be a single one in the family—now that Mimi's turned against her Chris—who has even the slightest reasonably friendly feeling for any of the others, and yet there's something very alike in all of them."

"Maybe that explains it," I suggested.

"I'd like to see Aunt Alice," she said. "Are you going to turn that letter over to the police?"

"I've already phoned Guild," I replied, and told her about Nunheim.

"What does that mean?" she asked.

"For one thing, if Jorgensen's out of town, as I think he is, and the bullets are from the same gun that was used on Julia Wolf, and they probably are, then the police'll have to find his accomplice if they want to hang anything on him."

"I'm sure if you were a good detective you'd be able to make it much clearer to me than it is." She went to work on her puzzle again. "Are you going back to see Mimi?"

Synopsis

Nick Charles, noted detective, who tells the story of "The Thin Man," and Nick's wife, Nora, meet Dorothy Wynant, daughter of a former client, in a speakeasy. Dorothy asks where her father is and Nick refers her to Herbert Macaulay, Wynant's attorney. Macaulay tells Nick. Mimi, Wynant's divorced wife, is hunting Wynant.

Next day Nick reads of the murder of Julia Wolf, Wynant's secretary. Mimi found the body when she went to get Wynant's address.

While a Mr. Norman is telephoning to Nick a loud report as of a shot is heard and his words end abruptly.

It is learned Julia was a racketeer's sweetheart.

Dorothy gives Nick a gun which she says she got in a speakeasy. Morelli, a gangster suspected in Julia's murder, shoots Nick.

Police find Dorothy's automatic in Nick's apartment. Dorothy, beaten by Mimi, seeks shelter at Nick's, and tells new story about gun. Julia served time for working badger game, Guild tells Nick. Wynant's letter urges Nick hunt slayer. Nick talks with Studsy. Guild and Nick quiz Nunheim. Nick convinced that Mimi is hiding evidence.

Now go on with Charles' narrative.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT'S ADMINISTRATION—CABINET MEMBERS

A close friend of Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft was elected to the Presidency (1909-1913). Taft's first measure, the Payne-Aldrich bill (1909) failed to fulfill the pledge to reduce tariff. The dismissal of the Chief Forester Gifford Pinchot—who waged war against Secretary Ballinger's sale of public lands withdrawn from sale by Roosevelt—made Taft unpopular. Progressive Congress members, "Insurgents," ceased to co-operate with the President.

Important events of his administration: Extension of civil service in postal offices; prosecution of trusts (Standard Oil and American Tobacco Co.); reservation of minerals on public lands for sale; recommendation of the Sixteenth Amendment (income tax) and Seventeenth (popular election of Senators); progress in the construction of Panama Canal, toll-exemption for American coast to coast ships; institution of civil government in Alaska; New Mexico and Arizona admitted as states; head of the Department of Labor was created a cabinet member; arbitration treaties were negotiated with Venezuela and European powers for peaceful settlement of all differences; Mexican revolution necessitated protection of border by troops, Cuban uprisings, intervention to restore order; the sale of Mexican territory to Japan was opposed in the Lodge resolution, an extension of the Monroe Doctrine.

The Congress of Berlin (1878) pledged Turkey to good government, especially in Macedonia, restored to her. Not fulfilled, insurrections broke out. European Powers worked out thorough reforms (1907) but revolution in Turkey (1908) postponed introduction of them. "Young Turks" came to power. They aimed at liberalism and nationalism. Their ruthless Ottomanization drove the Christians into rebellion. Encouraged by the Turkish-Italian war (1911), ending with Italian annexation of Tripoli and a number of Turkish islands, Bulgaria, Servia, Greece and Montenegro allied (1912) and attacked Turkey.

In the battle of Lule Burgas, Eski-Baba, Novibazar, by capture of Adrianople, Saloniki, Skutari, Durazzo, etc. Turkey was defeated and in the final treaty (London, 1913) had to renounce all her European territories except a small strip around Constantinople (First Balkan War).

The victors warred now over the "spoils" (Second Balkan War, 1913) complicated by Rumanian claims for territory in pay for her neutrality and Turkey's attempt to regain some of her losses. Bulgaria, standing unaided against all of them, lost. The Treaty of Bukarest (August, 1913) left Bulgaria much reduced, deprived of Adrianople and without control of the railroad leading to Dedeagatch, her single new port in the Aegean Sea.

Austria-Hungary opposing a strong Servia at her threshold as well as a Servian outlet to the Adriatic, an autonomous Albania was created, all contributory causes to the World War.

DIABETES—CONQUERED BY SCIENCE

Diabetes is a disease of certain cells, the "Islands of Langerhans," scattered through the pancreas, a gland behind the stomach. These islands, when normal, produce insulin that, discharged into the blood, regulates the use of sugar formed from food; when they are diseased less insulin is produced than needed, sugar cannot burn in body, is retained in blood. One of the greatest medical discoveries was made by the Canadian doctors F. G. Banting and C. H. Best (1921) who prepared insulin from animal pancreas, injected it into diabetics and checked the disease. Anyone may detect diabetes by test for excess sugar with Benedict or Fehling solutions.

VANITY FAIR—CHARMING BECKY SHARP

Drawing by Fred Barnard.

Vanity Fair, the masterwork of W. M. Thackeray (1811-1863) is one of the greatest novels.

Magnificent but unscrupulous Becky Sharp, daughter of a penniless artist, while a governess, captivates cynical old Sir Crawley, whose second son, Rawdon, a cavalry officer and gambler, she secretly marries.

Gentle, unintelligent Amelia Sedley, her father bankrupt, is deserted by army officer George Osborn. Brought to senses by Capt. Dobbin, he marries her.

Becky—through skillful maneuvering—reaches highest society; but, compromised by old Lord Steyne, loses her husband.

Osborn falls in Battle of Waterloo. Dobbin, returning from India, woos the grief-stricken Amelia, who consents to marriage only after Becky reveals Osborn's infidelity. 94-III-A

UNSATURATED HYDROCARBON SERIES—THE COAL TREE

Ethylene-, acetylene-, benzine-series (above), from which a thousand useful compounds are derived, consist of unsaturated hydrocarbons (possessing fewer H atoms than their C atoms can bind). Unused valence bonds are shown to form double bonds in graphic formulae. Hydrocarbon series are homologous having same difference between neighbor members of each series.

Destructive distillation of coal (heating by exclusion of air) yields many valuable hydrocarbons and their compounds (above right). Rubber consists also of hydrocarbons (C5H8)x. (Chemistry)

Too Expensive

The Cost of Government Can and Should Be Reduced. Comment on Local News.

J. W. Bamford, chairman of the delinquent tax collection committee appointed by Council, says Pittsburgh's municipal expenditures are exceeding budget allowances at a rate which threatens a deficit of a million dollars at the end of the year. The people are in no mood to pay higher taxes to meet the shortage, nor are they likely to look sympathetically towards another bond issue to pay the obligations. Economy is what they desire.

State Treasurer Charles A. Waters warns that the commonwealth, too, faces a serious deficiency in revenue, and that it may be necessary to disappoint state-aided institutions such as hospitals and universities which have been counting on the Legislature's grants. For the Supreme Court, Mr. Waters points out, held that there can be no such thing as a floating debt created through appropriations in excess of revenues.

The federal government is confronted with a deficit of some billions of dollars, and the deficit is steadily increasing. County Commissioner C. C. McGovern has sent a circular to all the taxpayers calling attention to the county's financial difficulties and asking what the people are going to do about it. In city, county, state and nation, then, we have a situation that bodes ill unless heroic corrective measures are soon taken.

The National Industrial Conference Board issued today a report that has a direct bearing on this problem. It states that the per capita average of wages and salaries of active federal, state and local government employes in 1932 was 24.3 per cent greater than the per capita full-time rate for employes in all other fields of employment, and that the per capita average of wages and salaries of government employes decreased only 1.2 per cent from 1929 to 1932 while the average compensation of other employes dropped 21.1 per cent.

In 1929 taxes collected by federal, state and local governments amounted to only 12½ per cent of the national income, but by 1932 they had mounted to nearly 25 per cent, and last year, if government borrowings should be included, the cost of government amounted to about one-half of the national income, according to Ray E. Untreiner, assistant professor of economics, California Institute of Technology, who discusses the subject in a recent issue of the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Fortunately we do not have to look far for the remedy for this dismal state of affairs. "One of the principal causes of our tax burden," says Prof. Untreiner, "is the multiplicity of our taxing bodies." "We are overburdened with overlapping offices of all kinds," says Commissioner McGovern. And State Treasurer Waters says relief can be found only by eliminating certain departments in the state government and by a more scientific set-up of local government.

Here, then, the taxpayers are given the key to the solution of their troubles. The government that has come down to us from oxcart days must be modernized by consolidation of counties, townships and school districts; the excrescences of government must be lopped off, and government jobs not treated as plums to be given political parasites as the spoils of victory at the polls, but as positions calling for the same kind of efficiency that is demanded in private business.

Citizens who take more than an academic interest in government will urge their City Councilmen, their Representatives and Senators in the Legislature and in Congress to work for the abolition of oxcart government. We are to have an election of legislators, both state and national, in the fall. The candidates should be required to state explicitly what their attitude will be on these questions. The legislative candidates should say, for example, whether they will vote for or against consolidation of school districts.

Consolidation of school districts would be only a beginning in the abolition of oxcart government, but it is one of the matters on which it is worth while to concentrate attention, because it is easily demonstrable that it would save the taxpayers of Allegheny County several hundred thousands of dollars annually and improve the general efficiency of our educational system. Moreover, it has been before the Legislature in recent years and is certain to come up again.

Another change that would save the taxpayers money and improve the administration of the government would be to substitute for our squire and constable system a system of minor courts presided over by judges learned in the law, whose compensation would be in the form of a regular salary instead of fees. It is encouraging to find vigorous agitation for such a change in Philadelphia, where the grand jury now in session is investigating charges that a score of crooked constables have been plundering the city.

Citizens' Business, published by the Bureau of Municipal Research, points out that with the minor courts presided over by lawyers there would be less likelihood of corruption than under the present system, because lawyers are subject to codes of professional ethics which mean nothing to our present squires, and also because a lawyer in a minor judicial office will hope for higher judicial office, and the approval of the bar will help him get it, while the lay magistrate cannot look for promotion to a higher court.

The spoils system is responsible for much of the burden that the taxpayers are bearing, and it is disturbing to observe the extent to which partisan political considerations have entered into the filling of positions at City Hall under the administration of Mayor W. N. McNair. Two hundred and forty-one city employes have been dismissed during McNair's first four months in office, that their jobs might be given to others. Councilman W. A. Magee says this is unprecedented.

There appears to be justification, however, for some of the changes in the city detective force. It has been charged that in previous administrations men were appointed city detectives, not for detective ability, but as a reward for political services. It is notorious that the detectives have failed to solve many crime problems, particularly bomb outrages and other crimes of gangsters, that they could reasonably have been expected to solve.

*Apropos of gangsters, there is an entertaining arti*cle in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly about an unusual monument to one of them. The monument is a huge skull fashioned from a natural rock. The American Weekly, distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, is replete with interesting features.

Defaulter nations and delinquent nations now owe the United States Government $304,150,842 in UNPAID "war debts."

On June 15, in accordance with the solemn agreements of these nations, another $174,652,179 will be due and payable—making a total of $478,803,021 belonging in the United States Treasury.

Of thirteen debtor nations only one—Finland—has kept its promises up to date.

Other nations, taking advantage of the Hoover moratorium, are trying to make the American taxpayer defray their just debts to the Federal Government.

Congress a few weeks ago laid down a perfectly reasonable proposition. Passing the Johnson Act, Congress declared that any dishonest nation may default if it wants to, but defaulters cannot borrow any more American money.

That puts the onus where it belongs—on the debtor nations. What will they do on June 15—pay or default?

CALIFORNIA DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—Los Angeles stifles ennui with stunt parties. Hal Roach tossed one last night for Irvin Cobb. At the exclusive Bel-Air Country Club it offered a penal motif. As guests stepped from cars they were seized by roughneck guards, yanked inside, mugged and finger printed.

After being held awhile in a detention room, actually savoring of disinfectant, they were hurried into convict uniforms and marched lockstep into a bare dining room containing rows of plank tables and hard benches. Food was brought by "trusties" on tin plates and coffee in tin cups.

The absence of knives, forks and spoons soon incited incipient mutiny with everybody pounding the table. The utensils were grudgingly brought, but not before all saw Ed Hutton, whose oceangoing yacht tugs at anchor in the harbor, tear chunks from his steak with his bare fingers. And sop gravy with bread chunks.

A rasping orchestra played "The Prisoner's Song" in singsong or rather sing-sing fashion. Irving Thalberg, the young $350,000 a year executive, was threatened with the dungeon timidly asking for a second helping of ice cream. At 11, lights went out and everybody, rather bewildered, wandered away in the dark for something to eat.

Tonight another dinner at the California club offering an Hawaiian theme. Native guitars twanged island melodies and dusky hula girls, exploiting their pelvic school or torsion, swayed about the diners lassoing them with the bright coral lei. Hawaiian singers—they are always singing goodby but never go—chorused the farewell arias. Cecil De Mille arrived from the studio in his director's costume, a honey colored costume that was a honey. Indeed, he was a production. The affair was for the Ed Huttons who have been cruising in the South Seas and are off to Alaska. Will Hays was host. And what a host!

George McManus, dean of the comic strip, sat a chair from mine at the Hutton party. He came to Los Angeles from New York seven years ago for a two-week stay and has become a part of the local scene, a home owner adding a lustry cry to the chanson of eternal praise. He enjoys trips to New York at intervals but goes as a visiting Elk. Incidentally, he is the only New Yorker I know who can tell you the precise technical reasons why the old Dead Man's Curve at 14th street was given that grewsome name. Many just think they know.

Today I saw Bob Williams' amazing dog Red-Rust, one of the most unusually trained in the world. It is a Manchurian sledge dog, suggesting size and coloring of a closely clipped chow. It has been taught completely to relax into a boneless lump and in such flexibility is as limp as a snake. Draped over an arm it suggests a red fox fur at only a few steps. Fixed in any grotesque position it remains until the master speaks. The owner spent one year, four hours daily, conveying the idea of relaxation. One morning it came like a flash.

Los Angeles, more than any city I know, harbors the most varied group of cults to poultice the spiritual bruises. A hundred and one religionists, from the yogi to the inhalationist, exhort from bungalows, tents and magnificent temples, each certain of having grasped the universal panacea and invoking it as casually as a drug from the pharmacopoeia. Indeed, they have chronic "samplers" who go from one to another as materialists to the patent medicines.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Nervous Breakdown?

DO YOU FEEL LIKE ENDING IT ALL?
HAVE YOU LOST YOUR JOB?
HAS YOUR GIRL TURNED YOU DOWN?
AFRAID OF THE FUTURE—JITTERY GENERALLY?
AND OF COURSE YOU THINK YOUR CASE IS UNIQUE.

What's the big idea—come-on talk for a patent medicine slogan? No, these are serious questions about what may ail you, and what certainly does ail an increasing number of decent but desperate people. And you'll find them facing you, on the cover of a book you need to buy:

"NERVOUS BREAKDOWN . . . ITS CAUSE AND CURE." by W. Beran Wolfe, M. D. (Farrar & Rinehart, publishers).

"NERVOUS BREAKDOWN." That used to be one of our American jokes. Like Big Feet, Mothers-in-law and Saturday Night Baths. People had it, but no one ever took them seriously. "Just an old lady's disease—all imagina

But Nervous Breakdown isn't a joke any longer. Nor is it an old lady's disease. It is rapidly becoming a national menace. And, though scientists admit that it is largely rooted in the imagination, we no longer think that sick imaginations are baby stuff, to be shushed off with a scolding, or bought off with toys.

What makes people break down nervously? Why do quiet, controlled, kindly, seemingly healthy people suddenly "go all to pieces"—become frantic, terrified, fiendishly cruel, so sick they must go to bed, where they alternately weep and storm?

BECAUSE THEY ACTUALLY HAVE "GONE TO PIECES." Something in their lives—something upon which all their outward conduct and their inner dreams was based—has exploded.

What keeps human beings happy and healthy?

A FEELING OF SUCCESS . . . A FEELING OF PROGRESS.

Every person must have certain things or he cannot live. He must have food, water, air, rest. These are his animal necessities. But he has certain human needs which are just as vital. He must have a balanced program of work and play . . . something to love . . . something to worship . . . a sense of safety . . . and a sense of success.

STARVED PRIDE WILL WRECK A MAN AS SURELY AS A STARVED STOMACH.

So in planning our lives, there must be a place for all things. There must be adventures and rewards, or we cannot find happiness and health. But, unfortunately, few of us know how to plan our lives. Often we mess things up through our own stupidity or greediness. Often others meddle—force us into a false position.

And lately our whole social organization has become such a monstrous muddle that millions, who could have managed to make good in a more orderly, leisurely world, are cracking up under the strain.

Why are our jails and asylums crowded as never before with rebels and misfits? That's why. The pretty young wife in a hysterical tantrum—the vicious fiend murderer on his way to the gallows—they are both the victims of unbalanced lives—lives that didn't get what they needed and raised a riot in compensation.

For "no human being can bear to remain inferior." If we can't achieve a sense of power in a healthy way, we'll do it an unhealthy way.

WHAT'S NERVOUS BREAKDOWN? NERVOUS BREAKDOWN IS THE REVOLT OF A SICK SPIRIT . . . A SICK SPIRIT TRYING TO "GET ITS OWN WAY" . . . TRYING TO ATTAIN THAT SENSE OF SUCCESS OR SAFETY WHICH IT HAS LOST OR NEVER ACHIEVED.

Why are people self-conscious? Super-sensitive? Why do they have "martyr complexes?" Persecution "complexes?" Why do some people take a malicious delight in inventing and peddling lying gossip? Why do some turn against those they love best? Or become so "devoted" that they can't let their loved ones out of their sight? Why do they develop strange ailments and perversions?

Some one of these questions—perhaps all—hits YOU, or someone you know. And you'll find the answer in Dr. Wolfe's book. You need that book. All America needs it. It isn't merely a doctor's treatise on sick nerves. IT'S A ROAD MAP THROUGH THE MUDDLE OF MODERN LIFE — WITH A SIGN POST FOR EVERY BAD CURVE AND DANGEROUS DETOUR.

Platt Amendment Was For Cuba's Good

By James T. Williams, Jr.

ABROGATION of the Platt Amendment will sever the tie which has bound the United States and Cuba in a most neighborly of relationships since Cuba became a republic.

The Cuban people did not win their independence. It was won for them by the United States. As a result of the war with Spain and the liberation of Cuba from the yoke of Spanish rule, it was obvious that Cuba required protection if Cuban independence was to be maintained.

As the United States was unwilling to admit Cuba to statehood, the Platt Amendment was agreed upon as the most feasible method of enabling the United States and Cuba to safeguard their mutual rights and discharge their mutual responsibilities.

There never was the slightest intention on the part of the United States of abusing the power of the Platt Amendment to interfere in the domestic affairs of Cuba. Its sole purpose was to enable the United States to assist the Cuban people in preserving their independence.

When the President calls upon the Senate to advise and consent to abrogation of the Platt Amendment in order that this country may renounce "those rights . . . of interference in Cuba," he has apparently not been given by the Department of State all the papers in the case.

* * *

Root's Letter To Gen. Wood

AMONG these papers is one sent by Elihu Root, Secretary of War, to Leonard Wood, Governor-General of Cuba, under date of April 3, 1901, in which Mr. Root said:

"You are authorized to state officially that in the view of the President, the intervention described in the third clause of the Platt Amendment is not synonymous with intermeddling or interference with the affairs of the Cuban government, but the formal action of the government of the United States, based upon just and substantial grounds, for the preservation of Cuban independence, and the maintenance of a government adequate for the protection of life, property, and adequate for discharging the obligations with respect to Cuba imposed by the Treaty of Paris on the United States."

Of the mutual benefits which the Platt Amendment was designed to bestow and of its real meaning and purpose, Mr. Root in his annual report as Secretary of War for 1901 said:

"Cuba has acquiesced in our right to say that she shall not put herself in the hands of any other power, whatever her necessities, and in our right to insist upon the maintenance of free and orderly government throughout her limits, however impoverished and desperate may be her people. Correlative to this right is a duty of the highest obligation to treat her not as an enemy, not at arm's length as an aggressive commercial rival, but with generosity which toward her will be but justice; to shape our laws so that they shall contribute to her welfare as well as our own . . .

"Aside from the moral obligations to which we committed ourselves when we drove Spain out of Cuba, and aside from the ordinary considerations of commercial advantages involved in a reciprocal treaty, there are the weightiest reasons of American public policy pointing in the same direction: for the peace of Cuba is necessary to the peace of the United States: the health of Cuba is necessary for the health of the United States. The same consideration which led to the war with Spain now requires that a commercial arrangement be made under which Cuba can live."

* * *

Another Victory For Sugar Lobby

WHEN the Roosevelt administration entered power in March of last year, it faced the imperative duty of making a new commercial arrangement "under which Cuba can live."

This the beet sugar Senators and Representatives in Congress have long opposed. They have led the fight to abrogate the Platt amendment in order that they might oppose a new reciprocity treaty "under which Cuba can live."

It is a victory for the beet sugar states, but it has been won at the expense of Cuba's welfare, of the national defense of the two countries and of American honor.

The Confessions of an English Opium Eater

Have You Read Them? They Are Interesting.

A MARVELOUSLY learned man, and a writer of the highest ability, was the Englishman Thomas De Quincey, distant cousin of our American Josiah Quincey, who dropped the aristocratic "De" for democracy's sake.

But for use of the pernicious drug that cast its shadow over all his life, De Quincey might have been the greatest of English prose writers, greater even than Laurence Sterne, whom Goethe called the greatest.

Reading De Quincey's "Confessions of an English Opium Eater," you find it difficult to believe that an human being could absorb such quantities of a horrible drug and live. Yet there is no question as to the truth of his statement that he took habitually, daily, five thousand drops of laudanum, the form in which he took the opium, and sometimes as many as twelve thousand drops, his regular daily dose, enough to kill a hundred men unaccustomed to the drug.

INTERESTING is De Quincey's description of a Malay sailor who came to his cottage, and fell upon the floor, exhausted. De Quincey, as a user of drugs, knew what he wanted and gave him a piece of crude opium, "large enough to kill six dragoons and their horses." The Malay swallowed it all, and went on his way, cheerful.

In De Quincey's day, the horrible danger residing in drugs was not realized as it is now. Governments and men did not know that death would be preferable to drug slavery.

De Quincey declares that in his opium eating days the use of the drug was widespread in England. It could be bought for a penny or two, openly, in any drug store. Government had not yet regulated the sale of substances that free the mind of "past regrets and future fears" and subjects it to regrets and fears infinitely more horrible.

It sounds unbelievable, but it is true, that in this country, not long ago, a great fortune was built up by selling to mothers a "syrup" for children that "soothed" them with laudanum.

Even workingmen, when times were bad, wages lacking, life hard to bear and beer too costly, would buy their penny worth of opium at the chemist's shop.

De Quincey declares that he valued opium, not because of its power "over bodily disease and pain, but over the grander and more shadowy world of dreams." He tells of Coleridge, whose unfinished poem "Xanadu" is supposed to be the product of an opium dream, hiring "porters, hackney-coachmen and others to oppose by force his entrance into any druggist shop" to buy opium. When the opium craving became irresistible, Coleridge would push the hired man aside, asking him indignantly: "Are you aware, my man, that people are known to have dropped down dead for timely want of opium?"

ARTHUR BRISBANE has written, for the editorial page of tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph, in the "March of Events Section," an article on Thomas De Quincey's "Confessions" that may interest you.

Human Side of the News

Henry M. Stanley, the Brilliant Reporter, Whose Explorations Opened Africa to the White Race

By Edwin C. Hill

OF ALL the habitations of mankind, Africa, I think, has had the strangest lure. It goes far back into time. It is the graveyard of so many empires. Its diamonds, its gold, its ivory and its slaves have invited adventures for 8,000 years. Its human life has counted for less than the drops of water in its mighty rivers. If all the blood that has been shed in Africa could be gathered together in a single stream, that river would flow endlessly to the sea.

The Dark Continent called to Alexander, to Caesar and to Napoleon. It defeated them one by one. Until very recent times, its jungles were as impenetrable to the white man as the secrets of its sorcerers and witch-doctors. Within those jungles lie buried cities that were old before Solomon built his temple in Jerusalem — before the Phoenicians caught upon their purple sails the glow of the western sun.

* * *

Africa Shaped Like Human Skull

ITS VERY shape is sinister, a gigantic human skull, floating between the Atlantic and the Indian oceans. Africa is always in the news—news that has a queer and magical power, as strange as the wizardry of its own sorcerers, to stir the imagination.

Every month or so, we read of a new expedition setting off to quest for its yet undiscovered secrets—animals never seen by the eyes of a white man—pygmies—lost temples—that fabulous region where the elephants go to die. They set off with every possible facility and comfort of modern equipment and science. They go in motorcars and airplanes, as well as in the caravans which take their way, on foot, to the deep interior.

It is nothing new for adventurous ladies to plunge, alone, except for their porters, into Africa's mysterious heart. And I wonder, when I read of these modern explorers and thrill hunters, if a single one of them ever gives a thought to the great man who made easy adventures possible; who, single-handed, conquered the terrors of the Dark Continent, opened it to the white race and dreamed of an empire to be founded on right and justice. The great man who got Africa into his blood, who could never get it out, and who came to his end in London stricken by the ingratitude of kings and the broken faith of parliaments—Henry Morton Stanley, Sir Henry M. Stanley—Bula Matari, the Rock Breaker, as the black men called him.

Not 10 men in the last century dared as much as Henry M. Stanley, or dreamed a dream so magnificent. He was a newspaper reporter, as a young man, coming from England to work here for Bennett, of the New York Herald. And one day he got from James Gordon Bennett, the younger, the most extraordinary, the most thrilling, assignment that was ever handed to a reporter. As we are told in a recent biography of Stanley, "Bula Matari," Bennett, in Paris, sent for young Stanley. The reporter found the great man in bed.

"Who are you?" asked Bennett, as Stanley entered the room.

"My name is Stanley."

"Ah, yes. Sit down. I have important business on hand for you. Where do you think Livingstone is?"

"I really do not know, sir."

"I want you to go to Central Africa and find him. Act according to your own plans, but find Livingstone. Draw a thousand pounds, and when you have got through that, draw another thousand. But find Livingstone!"

News of Livingstone Demanded by Public

DAVID LIVINGSTONE, doc missionary and dreamer, lost somewhere in the he the Dark Continent. Fo not a word had been he him. The public news. Bennett, with a genius news, sent young Stanley on the wildest, strangest quest that any man ever embarked upon, as casually as if he had been dispatching a reporter to cover a fire.

Only 28, and already stirred by the magic and mystery of Africa, Stanley set out. The problem was overwhelming, the difficulties enough to daunt the bravest. He must set forth into an utterly strange world. There was only a ghost of a chance that he could find the elderly Dr. Livingstone in the vast stretches of the African continent. I doubt if there ever has been an adventure quite like it in history. Month after month, his forces divided into five caravans, Henry M. Stanley literally fought his way into Central Africa—through a region as large as Europe, utterly unmapped and unknown to white men.

Rivers, swollen by rains into swamps, barred his way. He waded them and forged ahead. Inpenetrable thickets blocked his path. He cut through and went on. The lowland jungle exhaled a perpetual miasma. Tropical fever struck him down, and never in his life was he to be rid of it. But he staggered on. Upon the highlands his caravans were attacked by savages. He fought them off. Insects in vast clouds made life an agony by day and by night. He brushed the blood from his face and held to the trail.

And then, after eight months of the frightful journey, came the electric news that a white man was to be found in the village of Ujiji. Stanley pressed on, and came to the fringe of the village. Not within memory of man had it seen so large a caravan. The column marched into the village escorted by a noisily rejoicing mob, beating drums and sounding horns. And, in the market place, Stanley found the white man, old and ill.

And then came a dialogue which could only have taken place between two Englishmen, the greeting between the old man who had been lost to the world for years, and the young man who had overcome ten thousand devils to find him:

"Dr. Livingstone, I presume?"

"Yes" . . . They shook hands.

"I thank God, doctor, that I have been permitted to see you."

"I feel most thankful that I am here to welcome you."

As casually as if they had drifted together in the traffic of the Strand or Picadilly,
